Advisers of President Become Alarmed at Market.

Modify System For Quotations

By Elliott Thurston.

President Roosevelt's monetary advisers sought yesterday to check the precipitate fall of the dollar and of Government bond prices as fresh rumblings of retaliation came from abroad, and late in the day Canada took cognizance of the depreciating dollar by instructing 13,000 Canadian postoffices not to accept United States currency.

President Roosevelt dismissed questions about the weakness in the Government bond market by emphasizing that Government securities are a sound investment. Whatever the reason, the fact was that after the President's monetary advisers put on the brakes in the gold manipulation policy the dollar's sharp drop was halted and Government securities recovered some of the ground they lost the day before.

Treasury and Reserve officials breathed easier. They had been deeply disturbed by the effects of the gold manipulations upon the price of Government securities and by the possibilities of foreign reprisal or defensive action. The Canadian action, late in the day, was symptomatic though not otherwise important.

Set Under World Level.

Whether Prof. George F. Warren and his associates, who are the authors of the gold buying policy, heeded what to the Treasury were danger signals, or whether the President yielded to other counsel, was not made clear. In any event, for the first time since the present policy was initiated, the price for domestic newly mined gold was set at a figure under the world price in dollars. Thereupon the sharp decline in dollars and Government bonds abated.

There was some reason to think that the President had turned to Treasury advice—Secretary Woodin, incidentally, had several conferences with Mr. Roosevelt during the day—because the more ardent inflationists supporting the gold buying methods have been contending that hostile influences in Wall street were rigging the Government bond market or the dollar in exchange in an attempt to frighten the Administration. Hence the disposition of these inflationists was to ignore the rumors of foreign reprisal as well as the sagging of Government bond prices.

Only 5-Cent Advance.

Until yesterday the domestic gold price had been boosted upward daily, save for Sundays or holidays, to a point each day above the dollar price in the world market. Yesterday, for the first time, the price was advanced only 5 cents over the day before. This made yesterday's price $33.20. At the same time the London price was $33.26.

There were intimations, but no

Factor Asked For $528,000

U. S. Holds Kidnap Victim Owes That Amount on Income Tax.

The Internal Revenue Department has ordered an assessment of $528,000 for delinquent income taxes against John Factor, alleged Chicago kidnap victim, it was learned last night. Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, said he had ordered the assessment.

Under the order, the Government can tie up all of Factor's assets. These include $50,000 posted by him to assure his appearance when the United States Supreme Court decides on a demand of England that Factor be delivered for prosecution on an alleged $9,000,000 stock fraud.

It is understood that Factor is accused of evading income taxes for 1923, '24 and '25. Considerable of the $528,000 total is believed to represent penalties.

Factor has stated that he paid $120,000 to kidnapers of himself and his son, Jerome. He testified before a grand jury at Chicago against the seven Touhy gangsters accused of kidnaping him.

Trawler Reports Disabled Boiler

New York, Nov. 10 (U.P.).—The trawler Foam, of Boston, was reported in trouble tonight with a disabled boiler in a radio message to the Radiomarine Corporation.

The message said the Foam was being towed by the trawler Sea, and that the Coast Guard vessel, Harriet Lane, was proceeding to her assistance, expecting to reach her at 8 a. m. Sunday.

Winter to Linger; 26 Thermometer Figure Expected

Winter's grip on Washington and vicinity will continue over the week-end, the Weather Bureau stated last night, although slowly rising temperatures and a light rain will ease the cold today.

A new low for the season was forecast for early today with a 26 degree minimum. Today will be slightly warmer than yesterday and will lead rain tonight or tomorrow.

Low temperatures will return tomorrow and continue tomorrow night.

Yesterday was the coldest day of the season with high winds adding to the discomfort of temperatures which never rose above 40 degrees. The predicted minimum of 28 degrees failed to arrive Thursday night, however, the low being 32 at 6 a. m.

Humphrey Suit Will Be Started In Ouster Test

Former Republican Trade Commissioner to Get Party Aid.

William E. Humphrey, ousted by President Roosevelt as a Republican member of the Federal Trade Commission, yesterday disclosed definitely that he will file suit to attach the salary of his successor, Commissioner George C. Mathews.

By this action, the legality of his removal will be put up to the courts.

Humphrey said he will file suit in the United States Court of Claims, with the expectation that the case will go to the United States Supreme Court.

Authorities admit there are some fine legal points involved, but the greatest significance in the case is arising from the Republican party interest. It is the admitted intention of party leaders to make the Humphrey removal a test case, and should Humphrey be upheld in his contention that he can not be removed at will, the President will be open to Republican attacks for "dictatorial" policy.

Humphrey will be represented by the legal firm of William J. Donovan, former Assistant Attorney General.

The former commissioner was removed by the President because his views did not "agree" with those of the Chief Executive. Humphrey maintained that as he was appointed for a term of seven years, he could be removed only for misconduct or abuse of office, neither of which was charged.

Los Angeles, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Divorce from Richard Towers, movie cameraman, was granted today to Diane Warfield, actress, whose most recent screen appearance was in "Too Much Harmony."

Her own personal case was one of too much discord, she testified. "When I didn't play bridge to suit him," she said, "he called me a nitwit, and when we played tennis he would throw down his racquet and break up the game."

NRA Starts Price Fixing On Cleaners

President Approves Code Providing $1.50 Fee for One Suit.

Move Is Seen as Test by Roosevelt of New Policy.

As NRA Division Administrator Whiteside yesterday asserted that codification of industry will be made permanent, President Roosevelt yesterday drove the entering wedge of price fixing into the recovery structure and called the NRA into the Government's battle against racketeering.

The President's action was contained in his approval of the cleaners' and dyers' code, which allows the industry's code authority to fix minimum prices for cleaning a suit, and which makes racketeering a violation of the fair practice agreements.

Whiteside is president of Dun and Bradstreet. He is also the NRA official seeking to establish a compulsory code of fair practices for the investment banking business, so as to eliminate abuses injurious both to themselves and investors.

Price-Fixing Test Seen.

Eight men who are administering the most important codes, Whiteside declared at a hearing on the retail jewelry code, told him they never would return to cut-throat competition despite the burdens of code regulation.

The Administration for long has been vague concerning fixing of minimum prices.

Consumers' organizations had fought against price fixing on the minimum side, contending it imposed hardships on retail purchasers and enabled industry to amass unconscionable profits.

In allowing the insertion of price-fixing clauses in the cleaners' and dyers' code—a measure guaranteed to raise consumers' costs perhaps 1,500 per cent in isolated instances—observers received the impression that the President was using the cleaners' code for a testing ground.

Normal Price, $1.50 a Suit.

Under the code, "fair and reasonable wholesale and retail prices" are to be prescribed by a code authority subject to the administrator's approval.

The extent to which these "fair and reasonable" prices may soar and what they may mean out of the consumer's pocket may be judged from the fact that the NRA believes $1.50 is the normal price for cleaning a suit.

The NRA expects the code to add 20,000 workers and $11,000,000 annually to the pay rolls of the industry, it was announced.

Blow at Racketeers.

The code minimum wages will be from 27 to 35 cents an hour in the North and 20 cents in the Southern zone. The Washington minimum will be 30 cents and the maximum week 40 hours.

Equally important as the price-fixing arrangement, the NRA announced, "is the provision aimed at the racketeers in the trade, who, although sweating their labor, have resorted in many communities to violence and intimidation in order to maintain exorbitantly high prices."

Asserting that "most of the havoc is due to price-cutting," it was pointed out that the "normal" price for cleaning a suit has been lowered to 45 cents and even 19 cents, with the result that "most of the retail establishments are forced to operate at a loss."

Noted Explorers Meet To Plan Pole Flights

Dunedin, New Zealand, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Three noted explorers, Sir Hubert Wilkins, Lincoln Ellsworth and Bernt Balchen, were reunited when their supply ship Wyatt Earp arrived today from Norway.

Final preparations are now being made for proposed transantarctic flights. The supply ship will sail in December for the Ross Sea, whence the members of the expedition will make a 3,000-mile air survey of the Weddell Sea.

Wedell Will Attempt New Air Mark Today

New York, Nov. 10 (U.P.).—James R. Wedell, holder of the unofficial land plane speed record of 305.33 miles an hour, will leave Floyd Bennett Field at noon tomorrow in an attempt to set an official speed record between New York and Miami.

He hopes to make the 1,200 miles in four hours.

Rebels Cheer Hernandez, Later Slain

Hundreds to Face Trial for Revolt Costing Lives of 150.

Havana, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—As war-torn Havana struggled toward normalcy today the Cuban government moved to punish the hundreds of rebels who engaged in a two-day revolt that cost 150 lives.

"We are now preparing the cases for court-martial," said Col. Fulgencio Batista, leader of the Cuban army, who directed the heavy bombardment of the rebels' last stronghold, Atares Castle.

"I personally will assure justice for all, and the law will be observed with leniency in deserving cases.

"We can say now that the government is finally consolidated and the army, as one man, is supporting President Ramon Grau San Martin and is ready to defend him against all dangers."

150 Dead, 50 Wounded.

Col. Batista's aid, Capt. Mario Hernandez, set at 150 dead and 50 wounded the casualties among the rebels who surrendered Atares late yesterday.

"The rebels were led by followers of former President Gerardo Machado," Capt. Hernandez told the Associated Press. "Proof of this was furnished by former Police Maj. Manuel Lugo, who was accused of many crimes and was once sought by the A B C Secret Society, and who was found dead in Atares Fortress."

Summary court-martial will be conducted for military leaders of the rebellion, army headquarters announced. Rebel soldiers will be tried later in an ordinary court-martial, and civil prisoners will be heard in civil courts. Among the latter is Humberto Allen, a Cuban-born American. No charges were filed against him, and his release is predicted.

The subdued insurgents were lodged in Principe and Cabanas Fortresses.

The wheels of industry, still for more than 40 hours while battle raged in Havana, started moving today. Street cars and buses appeared again and storekeepers opened their shops.

There were sporadic outbursts of shooting today by snipers who defied army orders that they be shot on sight.

Recommends Leniency.

Reyes Spindola, the Mexican charge d'affaires, reported:

"I talked with Col. Batista and recommended leniency for the prisoners," he said. "The colonel answered that everything possible will be done to avoid bloodshed."

Col. Batista set the first group of court-martials for tonight and asked death sentences for three leaders, Sergt. Basilio Gonzales and Privates Alejo Hernandez and Ismael Rodriguez. Lieut. Urbano Soler was chosen to act as defense counsel.

Capts. Cruz Quesada and Adolfo Gonzales, Lieuts. Otilio Soca Llanos, Juan Estevez, Jose M. Pino, Tiburcio Feria, Rafael Alvarez, Armando Suarez and Prosecuter Capt. Enrique Borbonet Echevarria.

Hugh Trevor, Actor, Dies After Relapse

$26,000,000 Write-Up Told In Stock Quiz

Deal Between Projector Co., Theater Equipment Firm Uncovered.

A $26,000,000 write-up in stock of the International Projector Co. yesterday was uncovered by the Senate Banking Committee as investigators inquired into formation of General Theaters Equipment Co., now in receivership.

Operations through which 1,000,000 shares of International Projector stock with $2.22 book value were acquired in 1929 by General Theaters Equipment Co. for $28.50 a share were explained by Harley Clarke, president of the holding company.

Albert H. Wiggin, retired Chase National Bank chairman, was brought into the picture through his Shermar Corporation, which participated in the G. T. E. financing after Chase Securities Corporation declined to come in.

Financing Outlined.

A memoranda to Wiggin from M. W. Dodge, former Chase official, was read into the record. It outlined the proposed financing, and described a camera International Projector hoped would "revolutionize the film business."

Earlier, the committee in executive session decided to drop its investigation of Chase loans to Cuba. State Department records on the loans uncovered by committee investigators were rejected as "throwing no new light on the subject."

"We concluded we should pursue the matter no further," Chairman Fletcher explained. "We have enough in the record already."

Restaurateurs Renounce NRA

Indianans Move to Drop Out, Charge Chiselers Take Profits.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 10 (U.P.).—Members of the Indiana Restaurant Association tonight authorized their executive committee to withdraw the association from compliance with the NRA.

The action does not commit the restaurant owners to taking down their Blue Eagles. Final decision was left to the committee.

Declaring that "chiselers" have made it impossible for them to make money, delegations from 36 counties voted, 28 to 8, to renounce their NRA pledges, if their executive committee deems it advisable.

At the close of the meeting, Francis Wells, State representative of the Department of Commerce, said he believed local compliance boards would adjust complaints.

"Even if members of the association removed their Blue Eagles," he said, "they would not be relieved of their pledge in the President's reemployment agreement."

Association members said that many restaurants are cutting prices and working employes long hours, making it impossible for firms abiding by the fair practice code to make a profit.

Ship Rides Into Port With 18 Dead Men

Lisbon, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—A ship of death rode into the harbor today manned by only four men.

Word Nears On Russian Recognition

Kerensky Debt and Far East Are Hinted as Obstacles.

By Kendall Foss.

An announcement on Russian recognition was expected momentarily following a three-hour conference last night at the White House between President Roosevelt and Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign minister.

The conference was described as being "a friendly chat," but it was known that a thorough review of subjects relating to recognition was made.

The conference, which came to an end shortly before midnight, was the second held between the President and the commissar during the day.

No Others Present.

The first meeting was at noon in the executive offices of the White House, with Secretary Hull, Undersecretary Phillips and William C. Bullitt, special assistant, taking part. At 9 o'clock in the evening the President himself received Litvinoff in his private library for a confidential chat, at which it was understood no one else was present.

Progress was reported after each session, but details were not forthcoming. At a late hour yesterday no meetings had been scheduled for today, but it is expected the day will not be entirely wasted.

Snag Is Denied.

Officials insisted no snag has turned up to mar the even progress of the negotiations, but it is clear that the discussions are lasting somewhat longer than had been generally expected.

It is a fair assumption that Litvinoff has been confronted with a much higher stack of documents than he anticipated. For example, it was indicated yesterday that one of the things which was taking time was a 109-page resume of the Kerensky debt situation.

The first day of the conversations at the State Department, Litvinoff had no papers with him and on the second day he brought only a moderately fat briefcase. Agreement in principle on the major outstanding points of difference has clearly been the Soviet aim throughout; a very thorough understanding on a longer list of items appears to be the American retort.

Contacts Moscow.

In support of this there were clear indications that Litvinoff has been in communication with the government in Moscow either yesterday or possibly as early as Thursday.

It is said Litvinoff came to Washington armed with full authority to negotiate the establishment of diplomatic relations. He might have been reporting progress, of course, but it is a deal more likely that he was asking the Kremlin for new instructions on some unforeseen point.

The sort of thing which could occasion such a request would be the Kerensky debt problem or the method of repaying a possible trade loan. It is possible, though less likely, that Far East problems are involved.

Loan Tangle Seen.

It will be recalled that of the $187,000,000 credit advanced by this Government to the Russian Provisional government of Kerensky in 1917, Boris Bakhmeteff. Kerensky ambassador here, spent some $60,000,000 financing White Guard attacks against the baby Soviet state. This was after the fall of Kerensky, when Bakhmeteff was

Army Officer Commits Suicide To Get Cash for Friend's Wife

Miami, Ariz., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Lieut. George R. Sutherland, 28, of the Eighth United States Cavalry, El Paso, killed himself, a military court has decided, because he felt himself "honor bound" to make his insurance available "to save the wife of a friend from disgrace."

His body will be sent to Chicago tomorrow, at the request of his sister, Alice Sutherland.

The young Army officer had served here for five weeks as construction officer for the Globe area, Civilian Conservation Corps.

Elkins Solomon, assistant manager of a Globe wholesale firm, who said he had been a close friend of the dead man, related to the military court that Sutherland had told him a friend's wife in the East was in financial difficulties, and that he, Sutherland, was honor bound to take his own life so that his insurance could be used "to save the wife of a friend from disgrace."

Egg, Stink Bomb Barrage Fails To Halt Kingfish

Alexandria, La., Nov. 10 (U.P.).—A barrage of eggs, stink bombs and oranges failed to deter Senator Huey P. Long tonight as he addresesd a mass meeting here.

The first eggs thrown at the speakers' stand, erected in front of the City Hall came from the street directly in front of the Senator.

The fiery Kingfish stepped back a foot or two and calmly asked the hecklers to stop.

"I'm sorry they hit some of you people," he said. "I would rather that I had been hit."

Austria Orders Rule by Army To Block Riots

Death Penalty Restored to Prevent Violence on Anniversary.

Vienna, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Martial law was declared throughout Austria tonight and the death penalty was restored in a move to prevent possible violence Sunday, when the fifteenth anniversary of the republic will be observed.

A few hours earlier the administration warned that early mass would be the only public gathering permitted Sunday and appealed "to the whole people to spend November 12 in a spirit of meditation and peace."

Murder, arson, and "all acts of violence" will be subject to the death penalty.

All Violence Included.

The government threatened martial law two months ago if such a course were deemed necessary to cope with political conditions arising out of cabinet dissension and the activities of outlawed Nazis.

All acts of violence, even damage to property or participation in rioting, are included under the martial law provisions. The automatically reinstated death sentence was abolished by Article 85 of the constitution. It now becomes an emergency measure.

Martial law was declared almost simultaneously with the suppression of Socialists' attempts to hold 300 district meetings in various sections of Vienna. Many Socialists were slugged and more than 100 arrested.

Pledge to Law-Abiding.

A communique, issued for compulsory printing in all newspapers, said the government was yielding to popular demands for the restoration of the death penalty and was doing this in the only way possible under the constitution—by the declaration of martial law.

"The peaceful population of Austria naturally has nothing to fear," the announcement read.

"On the other hand this measure is to be understood as meaning that henceforth perpetrators and abettors and participants in disgraceful and bloody crimes and violent acts menacing the public safety will not be able to reckon with the light penalty hitherto specified in our laws."

Youth's Kidnapers Demand $40,000

San Jose, Calif., Nov. 10 (U.P.).—Kidnapers of Brooke Hart, 22, former Santa Clara University student, who disappeared last night, are said to have communicated twice today with his wealthy father, Alexa J. Hart. They demanded $40,000 ransom.

Chief of Police J. N. Black told the United Press he did not believe Hart had been kidnaped.

"We expect to find him tonight or tomorrow near where he left his car," Black said.

Sheriff William Emig and Department of Justice agents renewed activity in the case tonight when Hart said he had received a letter and a telephone call.

President Renews His Plea Against Capital Punishment

President Roosevelt would like to see capital punishment abolished throughout the country, it was made known yesterday.

Discussion at the President's biweekly press conference developed he is opposed to the death penalty in principle. His views have not been altered, it was made clear, by general opinion among law enforcement officers with whom he has discussed the problem, that executions serve as a deterrent to murder.

Mr. Roosevelt, it was explained, both as President and as Governor of New York, has found the duty of passing on applications for commutation of death sentences most unpleasant. He would be pleased if all laws providing capital punishment should be repealed.

Irrespective of the President's personal wishes, however, it is his view that the issue is one for legislative rather than executive action.

Observers recalled that Mr. Roosevelt recently telephoned the District Jail from bed, where he was confined by a cold, to stay the execution of a condemned colored man barely three minutes before he was to go to the electric chair. The reprieve, recommended by the Department of Justice, was based on new evidence.

Bills substituting life imprisonment for the death penalty in Washington have been introduced repeatedly by Representative Kvale (Farmer-Laborite), Minnesota, but have failed.

The death penalty has been opposed as inhumane by Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent of District penal institutions, and Col. W. I. Peak, former head of District Jail and now superintendent of Lorton Reformatory.

President to Erase 5% on Dividends, Half Cent on Gas.

Business Fear Of Delay Allayed

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

First fruits of the overthrow of the eighteenth amendment for the American taxpayer will come on Janury 1 when the one-half cent per gallon of gasoline and the 5 per cent dividend taxes imposed by Congress last spring will be terminated. The taxes on capital stock and excess profits of corporations will likewise expire July 1.

This became certain yesterday when President Roosevelt was represented as ready to "keep faith" with the American people by proclaiming the repeal of the eighteenth amendment as early in December as possible, thus fulfilling both his promises to end last spring's "nuisance taxes" at the repeal of prohibition and the requirement of the revenue section of the recovery act providing for the termination of the levies in such an event.

At the time of their enactment it was estimated these taxes would provide $225,000,000 annually for the Treasury. Taxes on liquor are expected to produce sufficient revenue not only to take the place of that lost by termination of the special taxes enacted by the last Congress, but also to permit repeal later on of many of the "nuisance taxes" passed during the Hoover regime.

Business Fears Allayed.

In some business circles fear existed that due to his anxiety to bring about a balanced Federal budget, President Roosevelt would delay proclaiming the end of prohibition until after the first of the year. In that event the one-half cent gasoline and the dividend taxes would remain in force until January, 1935.

President Roosevelt believes, it may be said on the highest authority, that for him to delay proclaiming the end of prohibition longer than necessary, even though it would mean many additional millions of dollars for the Treasury, would be "bad faith" on his part.

Although it was explained on the President's behalf that his policy for handling the liquor situation after repeal becomes effective on December 5 will not be completely formulated for probably two weeks, the attitude of the Administration became further clarified during the day.

Enforcement Remains.

In the first place, it was made clear that there would be no dismantling of the prohibition enforcement division of the Justice Department, now comprising 900 men. This force will be used to carry out the Federal Government's duty, under the twenty-first amendment, to prevent the flow of liquor from wet into dry States, the latter this day numbering 29.

Nor will there be any loosening after December 5 of the rigid Federal control of the $25,000,000 industrial alcohol business, it was said. This task will become more of a revenue problem than one for police officers, since the aim will be, as it has been, to prevent diversion of industrial alcohol into bootleg channels.

Meanwhile, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced in its first official statement on the subject that it was proceeeding with the formulation of a code for the

Hitler Insists Voters Refute "Beast" Brand

Berlin, Nov. 10 (AP).—Chancellor Hitler brought his preelection campaign to a dramatic close today with a direct appeal to German workers to be "true to yourselves" in the Reich's moves for international equality.

"I do not need your vote," he asserted, "For I am firmly in the saddle. But you yourselves need the vote, if you want to be true to yourselves."

Huge, glistening dynamos able to develop staggering electrical energies seemed dwarfed when the chancellor went into action in Germany's largest electrical factory.

The dictator-chancellor chose this singular setting to tell the nation it must fight for peace, and in Sunday's plebiscite on the Reich's foreign policy must answer the world's "accusation that the German people are bloodthirsty beasts."

Demands Different Policy.

"Before the world, you and I want to show we demand being treated differently," he asserted. "We do not want to bother about other peoples and they should not bother about us."

Every German stopped in his tracks and ceased all activity for a minute of silence as Hitler mounted an improvised platform in the dynamo shop of the Siemens works near Berlin.

Heralded by sirens everywhere, his speech was heard through loud speakers on every street corner, in every shop, office, and school. All the arts of the propaganda ministry were used to make the address an auspicious finale for the campaign ending Sunday, when voters will express their viewpoint on Germany's withdrawal from Geneva and vote for an almost all-Nazi Reichstag slate.

"If any one has the right to address you, my workers, it is I, for I came from your ranks and always considered myself one of you," the Chancellor said.

Spotlights On Him.

"Through industry as study—yes, through hunger—I worked myself up. In this historical hour I address you."

Workers climbed on iron beams in the shop and perched high on the machines to get a better view of him.

A battery of high-powered lamps was focused on Hitler, clad in leather boots, brown breeches, a black coat, and brown shirt.

He launched into an attack on the Versailles Treaty and maintained that Germany would never again gather with other nations around the green table of diplomacy unless her equality were assured.

"We are ready to go into every international conference and every treaty negotiation, but only as equals. I do not intrude upon private society unless I am treated as an equal; similarly, I will not have this nation treated as a shoe-shiner.

"Either you give us equality or you will never see us," he said to the world.

Nazis in Peru to Vote.

Lima, Nov. 10 (AP).—German Nazis living here asked and received permission today to participate in the German plebiscite next Sunday. Accordingly they will gather aboard a German steamer and sail beyond the limit of Peruvian territorial waters to cast their ballots, the results of which will be cabled to Berlin.

Those in Rome Take Part.

Rome, Nov. 10 (AP).—Several hundreds German residents of Rome will vote in the Reich's plebiscite Sunday. They will board the German steamer Duisburg and proceed outside the 3-mile limit, then vote.

Ohio Governor Wants Dictator on Liquor

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 10 (AP).—An iron-fisted dictatorship to control sale of liquor in Ohio was proposed today by Gov. George White as he let it be known he would call the Legislature into immediate session if a majority of its members showed a disposition to grant him power to establish such a commission.

"Make liquor permits hard to get and hard to keep," was the way he outlined his stand.

Armistice Day Finds Europe Armed Camp

Every Frontier Is Guarded Heavily; Tension Near Snapping Point.

Geneva, Nov. 10 (U.P.).—Nations of the world observe the fifteenth anniversary of Armistice Day tomorrow with their leaders more "war minded" than at any time since the end of the World War, it was agreed in well-informed quarters at the League of Nations today.

Every frontier in Europe is more heavily guarded than at any time since the war ended. At the close of 15 years of painful peace, the continent again resembles an armed camp.

The League, deserted by Germany and Japan during the last year, stands more powerless than before in the face of the rising tide of militarism.

Germans Vote Today.

The Germans go to the polls Sunday in a one-party election which observers agree will overwhelmingly indorse Chancellor Adolf Hitler's abrupt decision to quit the World Arms Parley and the League.

In league quarters it was felt that the most dangerous crisis will come should the disarmament conference adjourn finally without a treaty limiting armaments. Germany threatens to declare herself freed of the military restrictions of the Versailles Treaty. Europe then must decide whether to mobilize or overlook the scrapping of the pact ending the war.

Spain did not enter the World War, and Armistice Day there is not observed, except by colonies of foreigners.

France Insists on Pact.

France will demand that the treaty be upheld, it was generally admitted, and insist on forcing Germany to observe it. Sanctions or armed penalties, if necessary, already have been hinted in Paris.

The tension in the Far East between Soviet Russia and Japan threatens to plunge these two nations into what is rapidly coming to be regarded here as the inevitable "next Russo-Japanese war."

In London the United Press Bureau reports a fear that the "war tension appears as near the snapping point as it was in 1914." The report added that in England "only armament manufacturers are boom industries today."

Holmes Unruffled By NRA Workings

"Nothing to Howl About," Says Retired Justice.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 10 (AP).—The Yale News, in an interview with Oliver Wendell Holmes, retired Justice of the United States Supreme Court, quotes him today as saying changes under the NRA are "nothing to howl about."

"There always have been changes in the interpretations laid on the Constitution, and there always will be," the college daily quotes the retired justice.

"The developments in the last few months are nothing to howl about."

The paper says Mr. Holmes "seemed not at all perturbed" over "recent controversies over the constitutionality of the NRA."

$26,000,000 Stock Write-Up Bared

mittee will call Harry F. Sinclair, oil operator, to the stand when hearings resume. Sinclair was subpenaed to appear Thursday but was ill.

Clark, a more willing witness than Arthur Cutten, the Chicago trader, who testified Thursday, yesterday told how stock in a number of theater supply companies was acquired by a group of bankers headed by Pynchon & Co., and including Wiggin's Shermar Corporation.

Stock in International Projector was bought by the bankers at the rate of $90 for one share of preferred and 3 shares of common. The public was sold the stock at the rate of 1 share of preferred and 1 of common for $100. The banking group profited $250,000 from selling 25,000 shares of preferred stock. They retained 50,000 shares of the common.

Details of Organization.

Clarke gave details of the organization of General Theaters Equipment Co. in August, 1929, and the transaction whereby G. T. E. took over International Projector stock having a book value of $2,225,616 and listed it on their books at $28,488,000.

G. T. E. exchanged 1¼ shares of its stock for 1 of International common, and International stockholders were given the same opportunity, he said. About 200,000 shares, mostly held by the public, were exchanged one for one after expiration of a given time limit, he said.

Pecora asked Clarke to account for the write-up in International stock from $2.22 a share book value to $28.50 on the books of G. T. E., in light of the stock earning only 73 cents a share the previous year.

Clarke said this was because of the "potential" earning power of the stock. He said the company had a $4,000,000 contract that was not carried out because of the depression.

"The fact was it wasn't carried out," said Pecora. "You were trying to reach the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow."

Heinz Spanknoebel Is Indicted by U. S.

Reputed Nazi Agent Cited on Espionage Charge.

New York, Nov. 10 (AP).—A Federal grand jury today returned an indictment charging Heinz Spanknoebel, reputed Nazi agent, with acting as an agent of the Presse Abtheil, a press division of the ministry of propaganda of the German government, without registration with the State Department.

The maximum penalty possible under the espionage statute is five years' imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

The investigation of Spanknoebel's activities by the grand jury had been under way for three weeks and resulted from charges made against Spanknoebel in protests made to Mayor John P. O'Brien against a proposed German day celebration in a local armory. Mayor O'Brien refused to permit the celebration on the ground that it might result in disorder.

Secret Report Accuses Berlin, Belgian Says

Germans Fail to Disarm, Senator Says Data Revealed.

Brussels, Belgium, Nov. 10 (U.P.). Extracts of what he claimed was a secret report of the Interallied Military Commission, declaring that Germany had not disarmed according to the terms of Article 5 of the Treaty of Versailles, were made public tonight by Senator the Baron de Dorlodot, of the Catholic party.

Baron de Dorlodot issued a summary explanation of the text of the extracts.

He said that for the entire year of 1930 the conference of ambassadors had sought to reach an agreement on the report. Finally, on January 12, 1931, the senator said, they arrived at an accord of their findings and forwarded an agreement to Geneva, containing the findings of the commission.

Claims Text Altered.

Baron de Dorlodot claimed that the text of the commission's report had been altered to delete the commission's original finding that Article 5 of the Treaty of Versailles demanding Germany disarm had not been fulfilled.

"From all the facts exposed in this report, it must be concluded that Germany can not be considered as having fulfilled all the clauses of Article 5 in the treaty."

Quotes "Revised" Text.

He alleged this was revised to read:

"The commission can not, on its own initiative, declare that the spirit of the military clauses in the Treaty of Versailles have been fulfilled in the least. Only until those shortcomings which this general inspection has disclosed have been redressed sufficiently can one say that the stage of disarmament demanded by the treaty has been reached, and Germany today is still far from this."

De Dorlodot said he was not willing to accuse Paul Hymans, foreign minister in Belgium, of withholding information, but said he believed Hymans gave insufficient attention to the report, because of the Locarno peace treaty.

Indianapolis, Nov. 10 (AP).—A statement by Gov. Paul V. McNutt that he expects the office of Special Assistant Postmaster General to be offered to R. Earl Peters interested Democratic political circles here today.

In Washington Postmaster General James A. Farley would neither confirm nor deny that Peters, a close personal friend, would be offered a Federal job.

Camden, N. J., Nov. 10 (AP).—Pain from his injuries was bad enough, but William T. Pierce, 42-year-old contractor, claims the scars commenced to itch so much he wears out shirts and underwear scratching and he wants $26,000 damages.

Five other persons were injured in the accident, which, with Pierce's claim, total $231,000.

Former Slave, Who Grew Rich Buying Land in Georgia, Dies

Americus, Ga., Nov. 10 (AP).—John Crawford, 89, who was born a slave in Virginia and became one of the wealthiest Negroes in Georgia, died at his home here from the infirmities of age.

Crawford acquired his wealth by accumulating land after leaving the services of the late Dr. Hinkle and Capt. W. W. Hooks, of Americus. His employers gave him 100 acres of land in lieu of wages. He added to his holdings and disposed of them in 1910 for $78,000.

Crawford came to this section from Virginia, where he was the property of Col. Shade Crawford, soon after the close of the Civil War.

French Urged To Meditate Lack of Allies

U. S. Not Likely to Enter "The Next War," Member Tells Deputies.

Paris, Nov. 10 (U.P.).—France was warned today of the danger of isolation in "the next war."

Pierre Taittinger, a Right Wing deputy, declared during a foreign affairs debate in the Chamber of Deputies that France would stand without the majority of her allies who fought with her against Germany in the years between 1914 and 1918. He hinted that there was little reason to expect the United States to enter another European war, and added:

"We can hardly rely on the efficacy of the League of Nations and its economic sanctions. As concerns collective military sanctions (penalties), the declarations of Norman Davis, American arms delegate, have left us without hope that the United States will participate in any measures of coercion.

"Great Britain is equally reserved. The conclusion therefore is that it would be a crime under the present state of affairs for France further to disarm."

The French view Davis' attitude as indicating Washington is in no mood to be drawn into a European controversy which might lead to war. France, without America or England, would face a serious crisis in enforcing military penalties against Germany, French leaders agree.

LaGuardia Tells Policy on Liquor

Law Will Be Enforced, Says Mayor-Elect.

New York, Nov. 10 (AP).—Mayor-elect Fiorello H. LaGuardia, asserting he will ask the Legislature to issue liquor licenses on the basis of population, today pledged his cooperation to the State liquor-control board in enforcement of its stringent temporary regulations.

"Whatever regulations the State gives us will be enforced," said LaGuardia. "Overlooking and winking at violations of the liquor laws were what brought about prohibition in the first place. That must be avoided.

"I was one of the pioneers in the fight on prohibition. I fought it for 12 or 13 years, and I don't want to see the abuses, graft and control of politics of preprohibition days return."

Gold Advances Curbed to Aid Dollar Price

official confirmation, that the foreign gold buying operations, which are shrouded in secrecy, had been abated simultaneously. At all odds, the Administration slowed up on its policy and, for this or other reasons, the dollar stiffened somewhat after having fallen the day before to its lowest point since war days of 1914, and the Government bonds, off as much as $15 per $1,000 the day before, likewise came back. However, the stock market wavered and commodities sagged, contrary to the objective toward which the gold experimentation is directed.

The dollar closed the day in London at $5.16¾ to the pound. It had plunged down to $5.16¾ before the turn came, and it was assumed in Washington that the British would not long tolerate this state of affairs as soon as its trade advantages to the United States began to materialize.

The Associated Press reported from Paris that the dollar had dropped 27 centimes during the day, closing at 15.84 francs (6.31 cents to the franc) after touching 15.80 francs (6.23 cents), which was the lowest since 1925.

Speculative Effects Wane.

The speculative effects which had been produced by the gold price boosting inevitable waned with a resultant sagging in stock and commodity prices.

Had the fall in Government bonds continued, the reserve system would have been faced with the question of supporting the market with more purchases, despite a strong disinclination among most of the reserve officials to pursue this course which would lead in the end to the sort of currency inflation that Mr. Roosevelt has so far opposed.

Talk of stabilization revived, not only in Washington, but in London and Paris, on the theory that the Administration would not continue much longer with the gold manipulations and that the only alternative to "greenbacks" is stabilization. Rumors persist that meantime something will be done about buying silver and issuing currency against it, but the White House professes to be doing nothing on this line, though various interested groups are ardently promoting the idea.

Thomas Makes Prediction.

Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, chief congressional inflationist, said yesterday he was for artificially boosting the price of silver. Senator Pittman, of Nevada, predicted that there would be "paper inflation" if the Administration did not buy silver and issue currency against it. The committee for the Nation has taken an interest in promoting the silver program.

Officials were not much concerned about the Canadian scorning of the dollar, since Canadian law limits postoffices to accepting only Canadian legal tender, though the law has not been observed as long as American dollars have been considered sounder than Canadian dollars. The chief effects, practically, will be noted at border offices where American money has been exchanged for Canadian. Psychologically, however, the action was not relished by the "sound money" officials here.

U. S. Credit Emphasized.

The importance of sustaining Government credit was emphasized yesterday by a compilation prepared by the National Industrial Conference Board, Inc., of New York, showing that the Government is committed to a total potential expenditure of fully $18,000,000,000 for public works, the A. A. A., farm credits, home owners' loans, emergency relief, the Tennessee Valley authority, Federal deposit insurance and the R. F. C.

This does not mean that Government debt is going up this much. Many of the outlays will be repaid. All of the money will not be needed, presumably, certainly not at one time. However, the obligations to which the Government is committed mean that billions must be raised by selling bonds to the public or by resort to the printing press. Hence, as the bond market weakens, the sound money advocates fear the Government will be unable to go on raising money in the usual way, save at vast discounts and heavy interest charges, and that the temptation will be to turn to the printing presses—to greenbacks.

Officials Relieved.

Thus, Treasury, reserve and budget officials were relieved when the gold policy was abated yesterday sufficiently to arrest the downward movement of Government securities.

Advocates of a definite policy, which will remove the uncertainty over the future value of the dollar, took fresh hope of a reversion to their ideas since the President has set his face against the printing press.

Dollar in Late Rally.

London, Nov. 10 (AP).—American currency fell to another new postwar low today and rallied on later covering purchases to close at $5.11¾ to the pound.

It opened at $5.13 in relation to the British unit, slid to a low point at $5.16¾, and then appreciated to $5.11 just before the end of the dealings. The close at the end of after-hours trading was $5.13.

Some traders said they were not so much influenced by American gold purchases as by general anxiety over the dollar's future.

Construction Code Dispute Grows Tense

League and National C.ofC. United on Adoption; Labor Opposed.

The situation before the NRA grew tense last night as industry and commerce united in maneuverings to force adoption of a master construction code. Opposed to the proposed code are labor forces, led by the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor.

The code is sponsored by certain NRA officials, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the Construction League of the United States. In the league are 17 National organizations, including the American Institute of Architects, the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Associated General Contractors, building material manufacturers' associations and similar groups.

League Fight Outlined.

Developments included:

Statements by league officials outlining a battle for early approval of the code, lambasting labor as sponsoring illegal practices and seeking to create an impasse, and promising next week will force a "crisis in the opposing demands of industry and labor at the NRA."

Statements by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, charging labor with obstructionist tactics designed to win high-pay scales, but which threaten to tie up the construction industry.

Statements from NRA Consumers' Advisory Board sources, charging the league code deals satisfactorily with labor, but that it might be interpreted as preventing a home owner from painting his own home, delaying construction through contract clauses aimed to uphold prices and eliminate cutthroat competition.

Issue Up Next Week.

Statements from the NRA Labor Advisory Board that it will take up the stormy question next week, determined to see that labor's rights are protected. Statements from a war-council meeting of American Federation of Labor officials and union employers charging the code causes the NRA to "discriminate" against their interests and to play into the hands of a New York publishing house by soliciting the league code.

The tenseness was recognized by the Construction League in announcing a statement by Col. John P. Hogan, of New York, that he has been named chairman of a league committee which will come to Washington next week to "secure immediate adoption of the code."

The code fixes a minimum wage for unskilled labor at 40 cents an hour. It provides for a single master code to govern all construction with subordinate codes for architects, engineers, building supply producers and contractors.

As against this setup sought for and indorsed by Division Administrator Malcolm Muir and Deputy Administrator Malcolm Pirnie, the A. F. of L. building trades department and employers of union labor represented by the National Association of Builders Exchanges and the National Association of Building Trades Department are proposing a single master code for the building construction industry.

In a code presented by the two organizations it was proposed that in cities where there are prevailing wage scales resulting from collective bargaining with union labor, these scales should be code pay scales.

Labor Demands Criticized.

In throwing its support to the Construction League, the Chamber of Commerce in its semimonthly publication circulated among its Nation-wide membership criticized labor demands, declaring that "serious obstacles to the speeding up of private building operations on a wide scale are beginning to appear in difficulties that have arisen over code provisions for the construction industry."

Pointing out that its president, H. I. Harriman, has written to the membership calling attention to the gravity of the situation, the chamber said:

"It has been generally recognized that private as well as public construction should go ahead as rapidly as possible. However, any large or immediate expansion of private building appears impossible if wage rate proposals now before the National Recovery Administration are to prevail.

"Codes generally have confined themselves to maximum hours of labor and to a minimum wage for any employe in an industry. After conclusion of hearings on the general construction code, and after the document had been revised and was approaching final form, proposals earlier made by representatives of labor came forward within the Recovery Administration that to the usual provision fixing minimum wages for all employes there should be added provision for fixing higher minimum pay for skilled workers.

"Obviously, these proposals, if made effective in the codes, offer an obstacle to resumption of building in many parts of the country."

Revision Meeting Urged.

Meanwhile, with the situation coming to a head, M. J. McDonough, president of the building trades department of the A. F. of L., and Earl F. Stokes, representative of the National Association of Builders Exchanges, and Alton L. Wells, representative of the National Association of Building Trades Employers, met and decided to ask Recovery Administrator Johnson to call a meeting of all representatives of the construction industry for the purpose of revising the code.

Both the labor interests as represented by the A. F. of L. and union employers and the Construction League officials agree that the code under fire was solicited from the league.

Such solicitation, McDonough and the union employers announced after their conference, constitutes discrimination against them. Wells, for the building trades employers, asserted that Division Administrator Muir had told him no code setting up Public Works pay scales would be approved and that Muir had shown no interest in his code despite that "collective bargaining is an essential of the NRA scheme and all we proposed was to make valid collective bargaining agreements which have been effective for the last 15 years."

However, if the league code is adopted, McDonough said the result will be that the industry will be dominated by a "New York publishing house." Division Administrator Muir is president of McGraw-Hill, the New York publishers of trade magazines. Wells added that W. T. Chevalier, a member of the league's code committee, is director of McGraw-Hill's engineering publications.

Stable Dollar Termed Vital To End Slump

Nicholas Roosevelt Hits President's Tendency for Inflation.

New York, Nov. 10 (AP).—Nicholas Roosevelt, former Minister to Hungary, in an address today called for stabilization of the dollar and a return to the gold standard by the United States as soon as possible.

"Unless the President has determined to accede to the demand for currency inflation voiced by such members of his party as Senator Thomas, Gov. Charles W. Bryan and others," said Roosevelt, "the sooner he stabilizes the dollar and returns to a gold standard the more rapid will be our recovery.

"The dangers of inflation are already so well known that it is inconceivable that any one with Mr. Roosevelt's high sense of public responsibility and earnest desire to see the country pull out of its present depression as rapidly as possible can favor currency inflation."

Speaks Over Radio.

"Unfortunately, the unwillingness to follow the logical consequences of rejecting inflation—I mean the stabilization of our currency—is increasing the feeling of insecurity and uncertainty on the part of millions of individuals.

"Not only the large corporations hesitate to embark on any new plans for industrial expansion, but also small merchants and business men, not to mention the bankers who are called upon to advance further credits, are reluctant to embark on any new ventures so long as they do not know what their dollars will be worth a few months from today.

Calls Feeling General.

"I found this sentiment widespread among business men with whom I spoke throughout the Middle West. I know the same sentiment is widely held here in the East.

"The exact relationship of the dollar to gold is not as important as the fact that a definite relationship is established. In other words, whether the gold content be fixed at 65 cents, or 60 cents, or even 50 cents, is not so important as fixing it at some definite rate."

Bermuda to Entertain Hull.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 10 (U.P.). A fund of 100 pounds sterling (about $515), for the entertainment of Secretary of State Cordell Hull and party while here on their way to Montevideo, was approved by the House of Assembly today.

2 Union Jacks Burned In Dublin Armistice Fete

Dublin, Nov. 10 (AP).—Dublin witnessed the biggest and noisiest armistice eve demonstration in years tonight, which culminated with the burning of two large Union Jacks on the college green.

To guard against the serious trouble expected tomorrow, it was reported the government has ordered troops to stand by.

Farley Forces Launch Battle To Oust Curry

Move to Wrest Control of Party Machinery From Tammany.

New York, Nov. 10 (AP).—Independent Democratic forces behind Postmaster General James A. Farley organized today for a fight to a "showdown" to wrest control of the party in New York City from Tammany Hall.

Praising Farley as a "fearless" leader, former State Senator James I. Sheridan announced the "recovery party," whipped into shape to back the mayoral candidacy of Joseph V. McKee, would be held intact to battle against the "arrogant" leadership of Tammany by John F. Curry.

As Tammany leaders, stripped of power and patronage by the victory of Mayor-elect Fiorello H. LaGuardia, Fusionist, moved swiftly to carry the fight to Farley and Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, Sheridan said the "battle is only started."

Says Curry Must Go.

"It is inspired by the decent men and women who will not tolerate the leadership of Mr. Curry," said Sheridan, Manhattan chairman of the McKee party.

"The statement emanating from the leader of Tammany Hall blaming State Chairman Farley for Mayor John P. O'Brien's defeat had all the earmarks of an alibi," said Sheridan, commenting on Curry's demand that Farley be ousted by the State committee as State chairman for "disloyalty" in backing McKee.

Sheridan said Curry "courted inevitable defeat" by being "blind, deaf and dumb to all signs and reasoning."

He said for Curry "to try to cover up his long series of mistakes" by advocating that Farley be deposed sounded "ridiculous" when the election figures showed more votes cast for McKee than for Mayor O'Brien.

Meanwhile, Curry laid plans for a fight to hold his Manhattan organization intact and prepared for an invasion of the Bronx in a drive to overthrow Flynn as leader. The Bronx fight will come to a climax within a few weeks with the election of a State senator to replace Henry Shackno, elected City Court judge.

Election to Be Called.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman must call a special election within a month to fill the vacancy, and in the balance will hang the Democratic party's control of the State Senate. If a Republican is elected the Democrats will lose the Senate.

Political leaders believed that Curry, seeking to embarrass Farley and Flynn, might throw the backing of his anti-Flynn Bronx allies to the Republican candidate, who is also likely to have the support of the Fusionists. Curry already has charged that Farley's part in the mayoral election cost the Democrats election of several members of the Assembly.

NRA Guards Welfare of All, Says Richberg

Assails Critics of New Deal Before Bar in Cleveland.

Cleveland, Nov. 10 (AP).—In the present economic stress, individual freedom must restricted where necessary for the good of the masses, Donald R. Richberg, counsel for the NRA, told the Cleveland Bar Association tonight in defending the constitutionality of the national recovery act.

"It is always possible," he said, "for the shallow reasoner to argue that the restraining features of a law will interfere with the freedom of the individual.

"The real issue is simply this:

"The freedom of individuals today depends not only on security from physical violence, but also on economic security. Those practices which definitely destroy economic security of great masses of people are clearly destructive of their liberty.

Denies Favors for Few.

"In this situation, there is neither logic nor legal foundation for the contention that a few individuals have a right guaranteed by the Constitution to engage in business practices which inevitably destroy the economic security and the freedom of all others engaged in such a business. Such a construction of the Constitution would make it a charter of anarchy instead of a covenant of law and order. * * *"

The address was broadcast on a coast-to-coast hookup.

The speaker said the recovery act could be exercised within the Constitution.

"The American Government," he went on, "in the spring of this year faced a fight for its right to live. * * * Let not the inspiring confident leadership of a great President blind us to the fact that, with any fumbling, timid hands upon the wheel in the month of March, the ship of state might well have crashed upon the rocks. * * *

"And if we are not altogether blind and forgetful, how can we listen otherwise than with scorn to the petty partisan who now, in the safety won for him by the courage of a great leader, comes forward with a fine-spun argument that there are constitutional limitations which can be distorted into prohibitions against the emergency exercise of its powers by the Government for its self-preservation. * * *

As for Government regulation of business, Richberg said the recovery act did not provide for it, save as a last resort. He said the act has been administered solely to permit organization cooperatively of units of trade and industry for self-government.

Labor Rights Upheld.

The right of employes to bargain collectively, he said, as provided in the recovery act, had been sustained previously by the Supreme Court when "expressed in almost the same words in another Federal law." He did not cite the law.

He concluded:

"The recovery program must be carried through, to bring about a permanent improvement in the economic welfare of the American people. The issue of its success or failure does not depend upon a few people, but upon many, and it lies largely with the great body of the lawyers of America."

Pharmacists Meet Tuesday.

A meeting of the District Pharmaceutical Association will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday night. Marion S. Alley, president of the organization, will discuss purposes of the organization.

G. O. P. Renews Fire on Policies Of Roosevelt

Charge Official Reports Prove Failure; Moley Answers Attack.

The Republican attack on President Roosevelt was renewed yesterday with a leaflet in which the G. O. P. National committee declared that official reports of the Administration itself testified to the failure of the Democratic program.

At the same time Raymond Moley, in his new role as editor of the magazine Today, returned the fire of the Republicans by declaring their criticism of the Administration showed "second rate politics" and challenging them to produce a better program than the one offered the country by the Democratic party.

The leaflet was made public at a press conference called by George F. Getz, new Republican treasurer. Everett E. Sanders, Republican chairman, was present but had little to say, except that he believed the whole recovery program would be the issue in next year's congressional elections.

Currency Policy Hit.

Mr. Getz, however, thought the principal issue would be the Roosevelt currency policies. He contended the Administration's "unstable money policy had prevented business men from making long-term commitments" and that as a result "capital was impounded."

The Republican treasurer revealed he had been in conference with Representative Chester C. Bolton, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, and Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, a member of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee. They discussed steps that should be taken in preparation for next year's Congressional campaign.

Mr. Getz said that his first task would be to get funds to pay off the $176,000 deficit the party accumulated in last year's Presidential campaign.

The Republican leaflet cited the October issue of the Federal Reserve Bulletin, the Department of Commerce's "Survey of Current Business," a bulletin of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and the "Monthly Survey of Business" of the American Federation of Labor as evidencing the failure of the recovery program.

Documents Quoted.

These documents were quoted to show that there has been "an industrial decline" and along with it "decrease in employment and wages" and that the Democratic Administration has failed "to restore prices of agricultural commodities to a parity with those of industrial commodities."

Mr. Moley's editorial, which appeared in the current issue of the magazine published yesterday, constituted the first rejoinder from Democratic quarters to the opening of the Republican attack 10 days ago when President Roosevelt was charged, in great detail, with repudiating the pledges of his party platform and campaign speeches.

At the same time the Republicans renewed their attack on the Roosevelt policies, contending in a leaflet which appeared under the imprimatur of the Republican National Committee that official reports of the Administration itself testified to the failure of the recovery program.

Assails G. O. P. Policy.

Mr. Moley in his editorial contended that "if, as it now seems, the Republicans content themselves with mere opposition and harking back to the past they will remain in a minority for a long time."

Mr. Moley contended the only thing the Republicans offer as a substitute for the Roosevelt policies is "a return to chaos and anarchy."

"This is not statesmanship; it is second-rate politics," he concluded. "Not only will it fail to drive the Democrats from power, it will not provide even a moderately effective opposition."

Malady Killed Texas Guinan

Entertainer Called One Victim of Epidemic at Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 10 (U.P.).—Further investigation of the epidemic of amoebic dysentery among World's Fair visitors revealed today that Texas Guinan, widely known night club entertainer, was a victim of the disease.

Miss Guinan died Sunday in Vancouver, B. C. She had been in Chicago a short time before.

A brother, Thomas Guinan, denied that she could have been afflicted with the rare tropical disease, but the diagnosis was pronounced positive by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, city health director.

Managers of Chicago hotels met with Dr. Bundesen today to discuss new precautionary measures. The epidemic, which has taken 15 lives and affected more than 100 persons, is believed to have originated in diseased hotel and restaurant employes. Dr. Bundesen announced that the outbreak is completely under control.

Martinsburg Offering Classes for Workers

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 10 (Spl.).—A vocational night school for employed persons will be offered again at the high school here under direction of Edwin W. Miller.

The faculty will be from the high school staff. The course will run 25 weeks and a $2 tuition fee will be charged this year, of which $1 will be refunded those attending 75 per cent of the classes.

Astronomy Error Costs Man Grief, Rooster His Neck

Montreal, Nov. 10 (AP).—A tale of a rooster that mistook a street lamp for the sun was told in court today by Jake Karpman, who appeared on a "nuisance" charge.

Karpman explained his rooster would awake during the night and, mistaking the street light for the sun, would begin crowing. Thus both the rooster and Karpman earned the title "nuisance" in the neighborhood.

"You found it difficult to reason with a rooster?" inquired Recorder Semple.

"Yes, your honor," Karpman replied. "What's worse, that rooster looked so much like a hen I couldn't find him among the rest, so I killed them all."

"Effective," commented the recorder in suspending sentence.

Nation Warned New Epidemic Is Killing Many

Amoebic Dysentery, That Started in Chicago, Is Spreading.

The U. S. Public Health Service yesterday broadcast warnings throughout the country against outbreaks of amoebic or tropical dysentery. The epidemic, according to the Health Service, originated in two Chicago hotels and probably has been carried to other parts of the country by World Fair visitors.

Although a number of persons now in Washington recently stopped at the two hotels, Dr. James G. Cumming, in charge of contagious disease investigation in the District Health Department, said no extraordinary measures are planned here since no cases have been reported.

Cases are not generally recognized, it was said, and some of them have been operated on for appendicitie or ulcerative colitis with unfortunate results.

The disease is not uncommon in the tropics and southern part of the United States but is rare in the North. Its treacherous symptoms, often confused with those of other intestinal disorders, do not develop until about three weeks after the person contracts it. Amoebic dysentery is highly communicable through food. Symptoms are similar to other dysentery cases.

Soviet Recognition Word Is Held Near

not really representing anybody except himself.

Obviously there is room for delay in determining whether or not this $80,000,000 is a legitimate claim against the Soviet government. Another angle to the same problem which may be at the bottom of the apparent prolongation of the conversations is the business of whether these debts must be recognized formally or whether they can be settled quietly without an official Soviet admission of responsibility for the repudiated debts of former Russian governments. For if the U. S. S. R. formally admits these pre-Soviet debts, a number of other nations will promptly want their Tsarist and Kerensky claims met. Notably France and Great Britain have much larger claims.

Way Out Offered.

A way around this has been offered by the Soviet in previous recognition discussions with other countries. It involves a new loan to the U. S. S. R. at an abnormally high rate of interest, say 12 per cent, the excess to go toward wiping out old debts.

In the trade field the only likely stumbling block is the method of repaying an American loan with which the Soviet Union would purchase goods here. Five hundred million dollars has been mentioned in Russia as the amount that country would like to spend in the United States if satisfactory credits could be arranged. The presence of Henry Morgenthau, jr., in the State Department discussions with Litvinoff indicates trade matters have received at least some attention.

Gold or Goods.

A sizable loan can, of course, be paid back only in gold or goods. The Russians presumably would hate to pay very much of it in gold and the United States hitherto has shown no desire to import any more from the Soviet Union than it must. There is, too, the further complication of American monetary uncertainty which is making it difficult to negotiate trade agreemnts with any foreign countries.

Smiles still adorn the faces of all the chief figures in the recognition conversations. And, although no words of any significance find their way between the smiling lips, it may safely be predicted that nothing serious has arisen. The worse that can be feared is that several more days will be needed before a real announcement is made officially.

County Lifts Tax Arrears Penalty

Prince George, in Virginia, Votes Relief Plan.

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 10 (Spl.).—Prince George County taxpayers may settle their back taxes without paying a penalty if they pay in full by April 1, but current taxes are payable December 5, and 5 per cent penalty will be added if they are not paid by that time.

The county supervisors decided to lift the penalty on condition that tax bills are settled by next April and interest paid.

The supervisors have no authority relative to the curent taxes and can do this only for 1932 and previous years.

distillers' industry and that a public hearing on tentative regulations soon will be called. Harris E. Willingham, new chief of the beverage section of the A. A. A. will have charge of this work.

Code Goal Outlined.

Tentative objects to be accomplished in this code were set forth by the A. A. A. as follows:

Laying the foundations for supervision which will facilitate collection of revenues by the Government.

Benefit to the farmers of the United States by encouraging the use of American grains at satisfactory prices.

Coordination of the various branches of the industry.

Temporary control of the liquor industry, through State code committees, by setting up regulations for manufacture and sale of liquor during the interim period while States are enacting control laws.

Spokesmen for the distillers, the statement recited, emphasized a desire to organize the industry in such a way as to drive out bootleggers. They also were represented as favoring inclusion in the code of a prohibition against any distiller owning retail outlets for his products.

Responding to suggestions that by invoking an AAA code, the Federal Government was seeking to deprive State governments of their power to police the liquory industry, the statement asserted that "it is not the intention to encroach on State's rights through the proposed codes, but to assist the States in their task of regulating liquor traffic."

State Laws to Prevail.

"Where a code differs from an existing State law, provisions can be made for modifying operation of the code to conform with the State statute," it was explained.

"One of the questions which has arisen concerns the possible return of the old-time saloon. Since there is no lawful liquor trade now in existence, except in liquor for medicinal uses, the intiative in formulating a code for this branch of the industry must be taken by the Administration."

Dr. James M. Doran, chief of the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol, started work fixing allocations for importers of medicinal liquor under the liberalized policy adopted Thursday at the White House. The allocations will be based on the average monthly importation of medicinal liquors since the liberalization of the prescription law last spring. It is expected to approximate 250,000 gallons in the next month.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings said repeal of the eighteenth amendment would become effective the minute the thirty-sixth ratifying convention acted. There is no need to wait until such action is recorded formally with the State Department, he said. Therefore, it appears that prohibition will end around 3 or 4 p. m. on December 5, when the Utah convention ratifies repeal.

Repeal Automatic.

The Constitution does not require the President to proclaim adoption of a Constitutional amendment. This duty is prescribed for the Secretary of State when he receives formal notice of action by the thirty-sixth State. Incidentally by his departure tomorrow for the Montevideo Pan-American conference, Secretary Cordell Hull will escape this duty, which to him probably would be unpleasant.

Secretary Hull has been a lifelong dry, and at the Democratic National convention last June he led the fight against the prohibition repeal plank finally adopted by the party.

The revenue section of the recovery act, however, provided when the President proclaimed either the balancing of the budget, exclusive of public debt receipts and payments, or the repeal of prohibition—whichever occurred earlier—the taxes imposed in that law should be terminated at specified times.

The taxes imposed by that act on the time of their termination in the event of a Presidential proclamation were as follows:

Tax of 5 per cent on all dividends to be deducted and withheld from such dividends by the payor corporation, to expire on January 1 following repeal.

Tax of $1 for each $1,000 of the adjusted declared value of corporation capital required in its business to expire July 1 after proclamation.

Excess profits tax equivalent to 2 per cent of such portion of a corporation's net income in excess of 12½ per cent of the adjusted declared value of its capital; to expire after the "taxable year during which the date so proclaimed occurs"—which, in case of some corporations, means January 1 and for the remainder July 1.

President Roosevelt has not yet given serious consideration to rates of taxation for liquor which he will recommend to Congress in January. The general belief around the Capital is that the present tax of $1.10 a gallon on whisky will be substantially increased, possibly doubled.

2 to 9 Years Given Youths In 'Frat' Fire

Youthful Prisoners Are Ordered Committed Despite Appeal.

Convicted of setting fire to the Sigma Chi Fraternity House, H. Albert Smith and Edward J. Parlton were sentenced yeterday to serve two to nine years in prison. Sentence was pronounced by Justice Peyton Gordon in District Supreme Court. Although both noted appeals, they were ordered committed.

Smith and Parlton were charged with starting two fires in the frat house, then at 1312 N street northwest, early on July 9. Seventeen members were asleep in their rooms. Several narrowly escaped death.

Smith and Parlton offered an alibi. They contended that at the time of the fire they were 62 miles from Washington. They testified their automobile broke down in Gunpowder Falls, Md., just about an hour after the fire alarm was sounded here.

John J. Sirica, prosecutor, charged the trip to Pennsylvania was arranged to provide an alibi.

Planes Save Arctic Crew

Survivors of Ill - Fated Schooner Trip Ill After 2 Weeks in Wilds.

Cameron Bay, Northwest Territories, Nov. 1 (by radio to United Press).—Two ski-equipped airplanes today brought survivors of the ill-fated schooner Speed back from the wilderness of Great Bear Lake to this outpost of civilization.

The men, frost-bitten and ill after two weeks in the Arctic wilds, were survivors of a party of 11 which started across the lake from Fort Franklin October 21 and met misfortune in a late autumn storm.

Two men were killed when fire broke out and the schooner was destroyed.

The rescue planes set out yesterday after Stanley Hooker and Bill Parker, members of the crew, had fought their way through 125 miles of wind-swept northern tundras to bring word of the plight of the party.

The Federal Diary

(Trade-mark Applied For)

By Morgan Baker

Harris & Ewing.

These two men, Dr. M. L. Wilson, left, and Clarence E. Pickett, right, are in charge of the expenditure of $25,000,000 made available through the public works bill to help stranded agricultural and mining populations. Dr. Wilson is director of Subsistence Homestead Division, Interior, and Mr. Pickett is chief of the Stranded Industrial Groups Section.

"BLATANT demagoguery" was charged yesterday to Representative Blanton by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in the most vigorous statement in behalf of the Federal employe issued by the labor leader since the A. F. of L. convention.

BAKER.

"Representative Blanton," Mr. Green said, "has resumed his reactionary attacks on the living standards of Government employes.

"A sample of his 'argument' for lower pay for Federal workers is contained in a letter he wrote to E. Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, as follows

"'If you will send me a list of your members who are dissatisfied with their Government pay and are willing to give up their positions I will furnish from my own district 500 qualified applicants for each position, who will gladly take the job at a lower salary. You had better let well enough alone.'

"That is to say," Mr. Green continued, "that Representative Blanton proposes to put Government jobs up at auction and sell them to the lowest bidder. This scheme in the present period of hard times and unemployment would reduce wages and salaries to a starvation basis.

"Blanton's proposal is nothing but blatant demagoguery. His trick can be turned against him. He draws the comfortable salary of $8,500 a year. His record reveals that his major function is to detect measures which are designed to improve the economic conditions of the earning masses of the American people and then vote against them.

"If Representative Blanton should offer his job at auction to the lowest bidder in his own State, his office would undoubtedly be flooded with tens of thousands of qualified applicants, probably at half what he gets, and, judging from his anti-labor record, the qualification would not be high."

Two More Favorable.

Two more senators have given pledges of assistance in repealing the Federal pay cuts.

Senator Bronson Cutting, of New Mexico, yesterday wrote:

"I voted against the economy bill and continue to believe that there was never the slightest justification for the passage of any part of that act. I shall at all times be active in any attempt to repeal or modify the injustice done at that time to the Government workers, as well as to the veterans of the World War."

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, declared:

"I have always voted and worked against any pay cut. I do not think this is the way to bring back prosperity."

The score stands:

Restoration pledges	118
Favorable	24
Evasive	13

Tensile Qualities of Final Food Barriers Are Sought in Tests.

Woods Hole, Mass., Nov. 10.—The tensile properties of the final barrier which digested food substances must pass as they permeate the cells of the body is being studied at the Marine Biological Laboratory here.

This barrier is the surface of individual body cells. Through this surface the nutriments must pass before they begin their work of sustaining life.

The tension at this surface has been measured here on one type of cell. It is about 1,000 times less than the tension at the surface of water in air and about 250 times less than previously has been supposed.

The cell, which has been carefully measured, is the egg of the sea urchin, a spiny shellfish especially favorable for study. This egg has a fair likeness to the general run of body cells, which obey the same laws.

The measurements were made by Dr. E. Newton Harvey, of Princeton University. He used a centrifuge miscroscope, which whirls the eggs at the rate of about 8,500 revolutions a minute around the outer rim of a ring about a foot in diameter. A winking light, synchronized to flash once at the same point in each revolution, causes the flying cell to be apparently standing motionless and perfectly visible while rotating.

Slowly the cell can be seen to separate into two parts under the pull of centrifugal force. The break in the surface can be seen as clearly as the tearing of a piece of paper. The forces causing this division are recorded by the centrifuge, and from them the tension at the surface can be computed.

Kentucky Tax On Real Estate Likely to Stay

Proposal Seems Refused; Repeal Lead Passes 65,000 Mark.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 10 (AP).—Defeat of the proposed State amendment to permit the Legislature to remove the State real estate tax seemed almost certain tonight as additional returns from Tuesday's elections in Kentucky increased the margin of opposition to the proposal.

Neville Miller, Democrat, swept into the lead for mayor of Louisville tonight, with a majority of 322 votes over Dan M. Carrell, Republican, when tabulation ended until Monday.

Miller overcame a lead of more than 1,000 votes during the night tabulation. The count in 406 of Louisville's 568 precincts was Miller, 44,295; Carrell, 43,973.

Repeal, 2,683 out of 4,204 precincts in the State—For, 28,674; against, 160,715.

In the contests for legislative seats, Democrats were leading in both senatorial and representative disrticts, with a working majority assured in both House and Senate.

Among these are the mighty Troublemaker, winner of the Piedmont Gold Cup at Llangollen last Saturday; Top Twig, winner of the Annefield race at Berryville this year; Corn Dodger, Dress Parade, Britannicus, Annapolis, Battleship, Oliver C. and Silver Pay, all Sommerville entries.

I'd Like to Be LaGuardia

By William Harlan Hale.

He must be a very happy man. During the next two months Mayor-elect LaGuardia can make his preparations in peace of mind, confident that when he takes office his power will be complete. To have sent Tammany sprawling and to have wiped the floor with McKee—there must be immense satisfaction in looking back over such a bout. I think that, of the shoes of all possible men, his are the ones I should most like to be in now.

Imagine the pleasure, on or after January 1, 1934, of standing in the windows of your office in city hall and watching the Tammany-bossed employes being bounced, in a long parabola, out the front door.

Could there be any greater fun than watching—to use a polite Soviet word for it—the "liquidation" of $4,000 messenger boys who have no messages to carry, of inspectors who haven't been doing any perceptible inspecting these many years, of sergeants at arms whose function has been nebulous since about the time of Grant, and of borough officials—like Hyman Schorenstein, county recorder of Brooklyn — about whose ability to read and write there is heavy doubt?

It would be glorious to stand up there in Napoleonic pose while the former provincial governors of the realm—the Tammany district captains, ward leaders, precinct chiefs—go groveling around below without one crumb of patronage for sustenance. It would make me glow with beatitude to know that not one of the thugs who beat up citizens at the polls with lead pipe, blackjacks and knuckle dusters was for once going to get even the slightest reward from the city treasury.

Yes, I'd like to be LaGuardia. And inevitably, after pondering on these immediate delights, my mind would wander on to the joys of more fundamental nose-thumbing and apple-cart upsetting. Before getting into deep water though, I might have a little fun with those brokers who wailed to high heaven when a tax was proposed on stock transfers, who threatened to move off to Newark, and who, with supreme insolence, jeered their mayor as he reviewed the great NRA parade. I would say, "Gentlemen, that was a nice fast bluff you put over on the city. But don't you think I know that your personal investments in Wall Street real estate, which would be endangered by the change, far outweigh the paltry tax that you would have to pay? Well, gentlemen, I call your little bluff. I hope you enjoy yourselves over in Newark."

"Oh, I think I could have a lot of fun. Trying to set before the country the example of a city with model workmen's insurance and municipal employment agencies, I would tear right through all those private employment offices whose record for defrauding tens of thousands of applicants has been so consistent.

Above all, I would have a royal time with the gentlemen who have great real estate interests in the slum areas of the city. Recognizing that housing conditions for poorer classes in New York are almost unbelieveable, when compared with those of a barbaric Nazi city like Berlin, I would realize right off that there was no use in relying on private enterprises for rebuilding these areas.

When people lectured me on the blessings of private initiative, I would remember that the "Old Law" tenements in New York, condemned in 1901, still house nearly two million human beings—a vast percentage of whom live in quarters that lack windows, heat, gas, and even water, and still rely, in 1933, on out-houses.

I'd have a wonderful time scheming out ways to get armies of house wreckers, backed up by batteries of steam shovels in there to clean out those miles of putrefaction. I'd start condemnation proceedings and listen to the realtors howl. I'd launch a great public campaign against the slum landowners who hold out for high prices, and probably end by taking the land by eminent domain.

They'd surely ring in the due process clause, which protects their property. "Property" indeed! A magnificent type of personal possession—a "property" constructed 50 years ago, which has given us a flourishing half century of disease, prostitution, and crime! I'd render the landowners a bill for what their properties have cost us in filling jails, hospitals, and asylums; and it would be spectacular to see how far the total outstripped the value of their land.

I'd call in social architects like Clarence Stein and Robert Kohn, and even theorists like Stuart Chase and Lewis Mumford to help me build habitations that are fit for modern Americans to live in. We'd not have any delusions about the ability of private business to construct such buildings; we'd not be thinking of rugged individualism, I am afraid.

Yes, we would have a great time up there in our committee room, running red pencils through whole stretches of city blocks and closing the windows to the angry shouts of "Communist!" "Red!" "Wrecker of Great American Institutions!" that came up from the general direction of downtown.

We'd probably get thrown out, with bag and baggage, at the next election. But what a tremendous lot of trouble a group of scrappy and practical reformers could start in just four years of power!

Schools Here Teach NRA Aims, Avoiding Controversy

Only Its Principles Are Discussed; Feature of Education Week.

An educational course on the principles of the NRA is being taught in the District schools as part of National Education Week.

"The course is a feature of this week's program dealing with current topics," explained Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, "and it is designed to be descriptive of the workings of the NRA rather than argumentative of it."

The objectives of the NRA are explained by instructors in the junior high schools, the high schools and the teachers college. Their explanations are based on pamphlets prepared by the History Department heads.

In a letter to teachers, Dr. Ballou ordered a program for the week based on the principles of the NRA. The course is to be based on the furnished information as well as other information "which the teacher may by reading and personal research find desirable."

"It is hoped by this plan," he said, "to bring to all pupils an intelligent understanding of the program looking to industrial and financial recovery."

Skyline Drive Plan to Reach President Soon

Grant of 200-Foot Roadway for Mountain Route Held Certain.

The proposal of Senator Harry D. Byrd and others to extend Skyline drive in the Blue Ridge Mountains from Shenandoah National Park to Great Smoky Mountain National Park in North Carolina and West Virginia will be submitted shortly to President Roosevelt by Secretary of Interior Ickes, administrator of public works.

Senator Byrd made this announcement yesterday following a conference with Secretary Ickes, Senator McKeller (Democrat), Tennessee; Senator Reynolds (Democrat), North Carolina; Representative Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina; Joseph Pratt, head of conservation work in North Carolina, and Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Works.

Byrd said the Secretary had decided definitely to sidetrack the proposal of Mr. MacDonald and Arno B. Cammerer, director of national parks, to extend the road to Washington.

Originally the Public Works Administration, of which Gen. Ickes is administrator, was asked for $20,000,000 with which to build the extension. When Ickes objected, however, it was agreed that the extension to Smoky Mountain could be built for $16,000,000. This is the figure now under consideration.

According to Senator Byrd, Ickes agreed to suggest to the President that the Government take over the project, building an extension of the drive from Front Royal, Va., to Smoky Mountain. This would be done with the proviso that the three States provide 200-foot rights of way.

Conferees yesterday expressed confidence there would be little trouble in acquiring the necessary rights of way.

An extension of time to November 15 in which to file supplementary data in support of objections to price schedules fixed by the Petroleum Administrative Board, supervising agency of the oil code, was granted yesterday by Secretary Ickes, oil administrator.

Richmond Bank's R.F.C. Loan Pushed

American Institution Will Get First Attention.

Richmond, Nov. 10 (AP).—Manager J. K. Daughton of the Richmond branch of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation yesterday said appraisal of the assets of the closed American Bank & Trust Co. would be given preferred attention to "the exclusion of other matters."

His statement followed announcement from Washington that four Richmond members of the deposit liquidation committee for Virginia would be debarred under the law from appraising the bank's assets. The legal department of the R. F. C. ruled that no local bankes could act in appraising the assets.

The bank receivers seek an $8,500,000 loan on its assets to pay preferred claims and 50 per cent on deposits.

Heiress' Auto In Fatal Crash On Elopement

Former Merry Fahrney's New Brother-in-Law Dies in Mishap.

Chicago, Nov. 10 (AP).—Merry Fahrney Parker-Pickering, who wanted to marry a Chilean count last Sunday, obtained a second husband nearer home today, but her elopement ended in an automobile crash and the death of her new brother-in-law.

The 23-year-old heiress of the Fahrney patent medicine millions and her bridegroom, Frank Van Sands Eiszner, of River Forest, twin suburb of her own home, Oak Park, were only scratched and bruised when the car in which they rode dived through a signboard at a highway curve south of suburban Aurora and rolled over.

Norman Peterson, auto salesman, suffered a fractured arm, and Noel Seeburg, fifth member of the wedding party, may have a skull fracture.

Divorced in September.

Mrs. Emory Fahrney, of Oak Park, was shocked when she heard of her daughter's marriage and the tragedy that followed. Last September there was a divorce from Hugh Parker-Pickering, by whom she had one child. Then last Sunday Mrs. Parker-Pickering came home from New York with the family attorney, Weymouth Kirkland, to plead for a ticket to South America and the blessing of her parents for her marriage to George Di Georgio, self-styled Chilean nobleman.

Kirkland said the immigration authorities had spoiled wedding plans in New York; that Di Georgio had been freed by New York police at Kirkland's behest on the promise he would leave the United States. The police had asked questions about some "bond and jewel" deal, he said.

Parental sanction was not forthcoming, however, and as Merry had not yet come into the fortune promised from her grandfather's estate she could not visit Chile.

Parents Surprised.

"I had absolutely no idea that either Merry or Mr. Eiszner contemplated marriage," Mrs. Fahrney said as she awaited her daughter's return from the hospital. "The family has known him several years. He used to come to the house frequently with other young people, but he was older than Merry and we never considered him as a suitor. Lately he has been coming here frequently, but even then we didn't think marriage was contemplated."

Eiszner is the son of John S. Eiszner, president of a cooperage company under his name.

Three years ago, the then Merry Fahrney, was involved in another tragedy that nearly cost her life. Essaying her first parachute jump from an airplane, she failed to clear the wing and her chute caught on the edge. Her pilot could not come down without dragging her to death.

While she struggled, Bruno Schustek, a wartime German aviator, went up in another ship and was lowered by a rope to aid her. Schustek loosed her parachute and Miss Fahrney descended safely, but Schustek was unable to climb back into his plane and fell to death.

Official Denies Getting Textbook Firm Graft

Washington Courthouse, Ohio, Nov. 10 (AP).—Forest Anders, a member of the county election board, today denied before a special State Senate committee investigating textbook costs that he had accepted money for use in the election of school officials.

A. T. Amerine, former representative of a book company, had testified he gave Anders money to help elect officials friendly to the company.

Rep. Greenway Present at Marriage of Son and Judge's Daughter.

New York, Nov. 10 (AP).—Miss Frances Lydia Hand, daughter of Judge Learned Hand, of the United States Circuit Court, and Mrs. Hand, was married tonight to Robert Munro Ferguson, son of Representative Isabella Greenway, of Arizona, and the late Robert Munro Ferguson.

Mrs. Greenway was present at the wedding, which took place at the home of the bride's parents, with Justice Philip J. McCook officiating. Members of the family of the bride and bridegroom were the only guests.

Among those present were Mrs. Greenway's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Breasted, Chicago; Mrs. Greenway's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin W. M. Cutcheson, and Mr. Reginald Fincke, an uncle of the bride. Also present were Justice August Hand, cousin of the bride's father, and the bride's sisters and their husbands, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Churchill, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Jordan, jr.

The bride is a descendant of John Hand, who settled in Southampton, Long Island, in 1664. Phoebe Hand, a great granddaughter of John Hand, was married in 1787 to Cornelius Vanderbilt, of Staten Island, and was the mother of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Mr. Ferguson attended the Santa Barbara School for Boys; was graduated from Yale in 1930, and is a member of the Racquet and Tennis Club. He is in business in New York.

Armistice Day.

Fifteen years ago today many nations joyously hailed the news that the armistice had been signed. For the first time in 1,567 days human blood ceased to flow. Millions who had been engaged in the organized destruction of life and wealth brought their ghastly task to an end.

Each recurring Armistice Day warns humanity to avoid war as the most dreadful of all calamities. Today, in spite of controversies and disturbances, most nations are seeking to preserve peace. The lessons of the great conflict have not been entirely forgotten.

The United States has taken its part in efforts to make peace a permanent world condition. Probably no nation apprehends that the United States will abandon its policy of co-operating with others in behalf of peace.

One trial after another has been made, by conference, by treaty, and by other means, to discover effective methods of preventing war. Superficially these attempts seem to have failed; but who can say that they have accomplished nothing? Although the cords woven may be frail, they may have helped to tie the hands of warfare.

Healing is in process, also. Painful and tedious as recovery may be, there is progress toward world health. This fact should afford some comfort to the heavy laden and strengthen them in their struggle.

On Armistice Day tender memories are revived in households which felt the stroke of war. The Nation is grateful to its defenders. It holds sacred the body of the Unknown Soldier as a symbol of remembrance. In millions of American homes Armistice Day is hallowed by the prayer that war may never cast its shadow over them again.

Our Bill for Interest.

A recent study by the research division of the National Education Association shows that 18 cents out of every dollar paid for taxes by the American people is used for the payment of interest and the retirement of debts. This is the largest individual item of expense to taxpayers.

The study suggests that the people are paying an enormous sum for past extravagance, although a considerable part of the combined public debt was incurred for war purposes and necessary public improvements. Regardless of what the origin of these debts may have been, however, it is evident that they now constitute a heavy burden upon taxpayers.

The Federal debt has reached a total of $23,544,000,000. Interest on that debt has cost taxpayers $238,654,129 already this fiscal year. The total receipts from the income tax fell considerably short of paying the interest on the public debt in the last four months. Customs receipts amount to only a little more than half the sum needed for interest. The Treasury has spent on interest considerably more than twice as much as it has spent on public works since July 1.

At present the Government is paying interest at an average rate of 3.313 per cent. With the public debt constantly rising, the total Federal outlay for interest this year may exceed $750,000,000. During the last four months 15.5 per cent of all Federal expenditures has gone into interest. Of course, this does not include anything for retirement of the national debt. Only nominal sums have been placed in the sinking fund for this purpose.

When Congress appropriated $3,300,000,000 for public works it provided for a sinking fund equal to 2½ per cent of the expenditures out of that fund. Similar funds are provided for the retirement of various other Government obligations. If a 2½ per cent sinking fund should be provided for the entire Federal debt, more than $1,300,000,000 would be required for interest and debt retirement.

The Family Airplane.

Eugene L. Vidal, director of aeronautics of the Department of Commerce, suggests that manufacturers consider the market possibilities of small, low-priced airplanes. Mr. Vidal believes that it would be possible to build a pleasure plane for as low a figure as $700, and that the expense of operation and upkeep would be less than that of an automobile of medium price. Professional and amateur pilots and air enthusiasts would purchase such planes in large numbers, in Mr. Vidal's opinion.

The airplane motor has been vastly improved in the last seven years. Today a motor rarely fails on take-off or in mid-air. Progress has been made in providing better methods of preventing gas tank combustions. In wing and propeller technique improvements have been made. Wings now take a better grip on the air, and propellers can be pitched at angles that catch the air more effectively on take-offs. Today there is little danger that parts of the machine will crack or that wing fabrics will be damaged while in flight. But after all, the skill that is acquired only by constant flying is still the primary safeguard in coping with unexpected emergencies.

On the cost side one queries whether, under existing conditions, even a $700 plane could find any considerable market. Since the automobile is not likely to be displaced, the addition of an airplane would increase the family budget by an amount equivalent to, or greater than, the cost and upkeep of another automobile.

Science, however, incessantly works toward greater efficiency and lower costs, and it may be that the family of the future will be able to utilize and enjoy both an airplane and an automobile.

German Election Methods.

Chancellor Hitler has issued a decree calling for general elections to the Reichstag on November 12. At the same time, the voters will be asked to indicate their attitude toward the foreign policy of the government. If they approve that policy, notably the action taken in withdrawing from the disarmament conference and the decision to retire from the League of Nations, they will vote "Yes;" contrariwise, "No."

The average foreigner naturally is somewhat confused by this voluntary appeal of a dictatorial government to the voters of the Reich. He begins to wonder whether the revolutionary overthrow of the republican government, established under the constitution of Weimar, has destroyed representative institutions in Germany as completely as he had supposed.

These doubts are dissipated, however, when he discovers that the German voter when he goes to the polls on November 12 will not be exercising a right to determine or to modify governmental policies. The candidates for the new Reichstag have been "hand-picked" in advance of the election. They are, for the most part, National Socialists; the rest are individuals who do not belong to the party but are acceptable to the Hitler government.

Consequently, the voter has no real electoral choice, because he is denied the privilege of casting a ballot for any one who is not in accord with the policies of the regime in power. Moreover, the referendum is not a referendum according to the generally accepted understanding of that term, because the voter is not asked to determine the government's foreign policy. He is permitted merely to state whether he approves or disapproves what has been done and is in contemplation.

In short, the November 12 poll is a proceeding by which the German people are called upon publicly to indorse, or to refuse to indorse, policies determined for them and not by them. It is not a bona fide election that permits them to choose between alternative policies or to give expression to independent political views.

By appealing to the electorate, the government evidently hopes to pile up a great majority for its new Reichstag and to obtain a popular testimonial in favor of its foreign policy which will enable it to claim that the German masses are overwhelmingly behind it. That has been the purpose of the impassioned appeals made by Chancellor Hitler, who concluded a recent Berlin address, broadcast to the nation and to the world at large, by asking the people to vote "Yes" on the referendum, thereby declaring "for equality of status, for honor and for the cause of real peace."

Political prophets seem to think that the response will satisfy the most ardent supporters of the government. The Frankfurter Zeitung, formerly an organ of liberal political opinion, devotes a lengthy leading editorial to a refutation of charges that the election will be a farce. The secrecy of the ballot, it is maintained, shows that the government has incurred a risk by soliciting the support of the people in this open fashion. No doubt there is some risk, but it is very slight compared to the risk which a government has to take in a country where the press is free to criticize the policies of those in power, where opposition parties are competing for votes, and where voters do not go to the polls or stay away because of fear of consequences.

No electorate really is free to express its views, however secret the balloting may be, when it is denied the opportunity to make a decisive choice, and when official propaganda takes the place of the clash of hostile political groups which mold public opinion and make the people powerful in democratic states.

Red Cross Roll Call.

Following its appropriate custom, the American Red Cross on Armistice Day opens its annual appeal for greater membership. While this great organization is intimately associated with humanitarian work in war and in relief efforts in connection with national disasters, its activities have been broadened during the depression years until it has become one of the vital agencies in the distribution of both private and Government aid to the needy.

The Red Cross is completing a gigantic program which undertakes the delivery of flour and clothing manufactured from Federal donations of wheat and cotton into virtually every county and town in every State. Chairman John Barton Payne reports that during the last twelve months similar supplies have been distributed to more than 25,000,000 persons throughout the country. This organization was able to do the work in an efficient manner through its 3,700 established chapters and 10,000 branches, which enlisted the services of hundreds of thousands of volunteer workers.

Processing and distribution costs borne by the Red Cross have made heavy drains upon its funds, but in addition to helping the unemployed the organization never has failed to respond to the calls for aid when catastrophes bring loss and suffering to communities. Prompt assistance has been rendered during the year in connection with no less than 117 disasters. The Red Cross has relieved many disabled former service men and their families.

From Armistice Day until Thanksgiving, Red Cross stations will be conveniently located to receive responses to the roll call. All the widespread activities of the Red Cross are financed through membership dues, and present necessities among millions of unemployed offer a most urgent appeal. The membership fee is a small contribution in comparison with the added hours of self-sacrificing effort given by volunteers among the members.

Scarcity of Waterfowl.

For several years American waterfowl have been in a bad plight, according to the Federal Bureau of Biological Survey. The hunting season for this class of game birds opens next Thursday, and since it will be a critical time for waterfowl, sportsmen are urged by the bureau to be moderate in shooting.

The present situation is considered to be almost as serious as it was two years ago, when the emergency called for a presidential proclamation limiting the shooting season to one month. This fall the Government survey shows that pintails, mallards and black ducks are the only species which are likely to be fairly plentiful. On the other hand canvasbacks, redheads, scaups, blue-winged teals and several other varieties of ducks have been greatly reduced in numbers, even though they may be abundant in a few favored spots.

The Federal Bureau makes a special plea to hunters to retrieve all wounded birds. It is estimated that more than 7,000,000 waterfowl are crippled and lost every year, resulting in a serious decrease in the stock of breeding birds without any resulting benefit.

Officials of the Biological Bureau suggest that, with breeding stock preserved, the next important step should be to carry out the program already undertaken to restore water areas. There is need of more sanctuaries and of continued research to discover the most practical means of increasing the number of wild ducks and geese by protecting them against enemies and disease.

The Crisis in Education.

Information reaching the Federal Office of Education leads Commissioner George F. Zook to declare that school conditions are worse than at any other time in recent history. He finds that 100,000 additional children are deprived of educational opportunity this fall because of the closing of schools. About 2,280,000 children of school age are lacking school advantages.

While no city public schools have closed thus far, nearly 2,000 rural schools in 24 States failed to open for the present term, Commissioner Zook reports that many private schools and 16 institutions of higher education have closed since last year.

Estimates indicate that 1,500 commercial schools and colleges have closed, as well as 24 parochial schools affecting 3,000 children. In some communities free public schools have become tuition schools. One town of 15,000 population is charging from $3 to $5.50 per child per month, which is a prohibitive fee for poorer families.

In order to meet the shortage of funds, one out of every four cities in the United States has reduced its school term, and many rural schools are expected to run less than three months. Teachers' salaries have suffered severely in the demand for reduced expenses. The prospects for early closing indicate that one-third of the country's teachers will receive for expert services less than $750 per year. Schools in many States have eliminated instruction in art, music, home economics and physical education.

Many leading educators recently have made appeals for Federal aid for schools. Commissioner Zook limits his comment to the statement that a canvass of the world reveals that American schools have not been safeguarded from the impact of the depression as well as schools in some other nations.

Advertising Soviet gold bonds in American papers as investment "protection against loss resulting from possible further depreciation in the dollar" is rubbing it in before recognition.

Uber's Farm Remedy.

By Robert B. Smith, in the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Ever since the Agricultural Adjustment Administration began operations its headquarters has been the rendezvous of hordes of persons, each with a comprehensive and infallible cure for the ills of the farmer.

There was, for instance, Dr. Eldorado Uber, who introduced himself as the former proprietor of a school of rhythmic dancing in New York. Dr. Uber called recently at the Department of Agriculture and asked for an interview with Secretary Wallace.

Unfortunately for Secretary Wallace—and possibly for the Nation—the secretary at that particular time was at the White House sitting in on the President's conference with a group of Western governors seeking a solution of the farmers' strike and other problems. Dr. Uber was very much disappointed when he found that the secretary was not available. However, he agreed to tell his mission to some of the subordinates in the department. Naturally, he had a cure for agricultural maladies. The cure was rhythmic dancing, to be taught to the farmer so that the latter's social outlook could be improved.

"The farmer," quoth Dr. Uber, "has got to develop socially as well as economically. If we let the economic side get ahead, we can't have harmony."

The farmer, in Dr. Uber's projected Utopia, would dance gayly from his house to the barn, swinging a milk pail in each hand. It would be done rhythmically, of course. There would be an appropriate rhythm for the milking of the cows—also for such tasks as cleaning out the stables and tidying up the barnyard.

Some of those who talked with Dr. Uber were left with the impression that he would install some kind of a musical attachment upon the farmer's plows so that the horses could prance rhythmically down the furrows.

Thus the farmer's life would be filled with harmony and beauty and he would cease to worry about such things as the prices of hogs and wheat and corn. Possibly the commodity market tickers could be trained to produce rhythmic quotations pleasing to the farmer.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

LETTER ON THE FARM STRIKE.

Cousin Seth:

The farm strike is getting pretty serious. All the hens went out today. They say they're not getting enough for their eggs and that all they're doing is laying for Gen. Johnson.

* * * *

Their hours are as long as ever, they cackle, and it is just as hard to lay an egg as it ever was, despite the President's radio speeches. If anything, they have to do more scratching to make a living than ever and the worms haven't heard about the new deal.

* * * *

All the cows are out now. They say machine-milking is to blame for their unrest, and that one way and an udder their happiness isn't what it used to be. Shorter hours don't mean a thing to them, as they work from dawn to dusk anyhow.

* * * *

The sheep are discontented. They say the Farm Board pulled a boner when it changed the word "three" to "four" in the old nursery rhyme:

Baa Baa, black sheep, have you any wool?
Yes, sir, yes sir, three bags full.

They elected a leader today and wherever he goes they will follow, despite all orders from Gen. Johnson.

* * * *

We farmers can't do a thing with the hogs. Ever since those three little pigs got a job with Walt Disney and became moving picture stars overnight with the big, bad wolf, the pigs of America have been shouting, "Favoritism!" and denying all interest in farm life. They all want to be actors. There ain't a pig on my farm that don't act like he thought he was John Barrymore.

* * * *

My horses alone seem philosophic and patient. Give me a horse for common sense any time. They still do all I ask for the same quantity of hay and oats and respond to "gid-dap" with the spirit of cooperation so lost to America these days.

* * * *

My hired man left last week. He insisted that he was entitled to three hours for lunch, Saturdays and Sundays off, and a promise I would come and cart him home when he got too drunk to walk back to the farm from town.

* * * *

My boy, Josiah, is not much help to me, as he is so educated that he reads all the newspapers and Moley's magazine. It was a mistake to send him to college, I guess. All he does is read and argue over the new deal. His appetite is just as enormous as if he did a good day's work, though.

* * * *

My daughter is giving me concern, too. She is taking a magazine course in "How to Become a Picture Star" and her pet notion is that all vaudeville actors ought to pay a royalty to those jokes about the farmer's daughter.

* * * *

All in all, things are pretty bad. About all I can do is sit around and whittle, and that, come to think of it, is the purpose of this letter. Here's what I am writing for: Is there any code for whittling?

Rush me an answer.

Yours truly,
ZACHIA HOSTETTER.

NO INCENTIVE.

Well, prohibition is dead and it is already amazing how many people have stopped drinking to excess.

One of the benefits of repeal is that we can now use the bathtub for bathing instead of bottling.

But it's pretty tough on the fellow who just spent $5,000 building a rathskeller in his cellar.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

Pride and Prejudice.

Jane Austen wrote this novel in 1796 and 1797, but it was refused by the publishers, who saw "nothing in it," and it was not printed till 1813—the charming three-volumes went to a second edition the same year; I bought a beautiful set of this second edition in a Munich book shop for 75 cents.

Jane Austen never traveled more than about one hundred miles; the characters in her novels are not in the least "unusual", and there are no adventures. Furthermore, the only locomotion she knew anything about was the same kind used by Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and Homer—horses. She did not dream that England would one day be covered with railway trains and motor-cars. Her observations were confined to the villages and small towns where she lived; and totally unlike the Bronte sisters, her pictures were all drawn from actual life rather than from the imagination. She did her full share of the housework, had no separate study of her own, but wrote her novels in the family sitting room, amid the general mild hubbub of conversation.

She is the greatest woman novelist who ever lived, in any country or in any age. There are many men who read Pride and Prejudice through every year. Disraeli was a very busy man; he read this novel 17 times.

Every man and woman in it is alive; they run true to form. They act and talk as real people would act and talk. The entire work is illuminated by the author's intelligence. Furthermore, how fortunate it is, that although she lived in one of the most exciting periods in British history, during the whole Napoleonic wars, and although her two brothers were admirals in the British navy, she paid no attention in her novels to curent events, but presented eternal manifestations of human nature.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter.

By Robert Quillen.

My dear Louise:

To every person worth his salt there comes, soon or late, the desire to accomplish something worth while.

His ambition may seem wholly selfish. He may have no higher motive than a hunger for applause. Or he may have an honest desire to do his part in a world that is sadly in need of help.

But whatever his motive may be, his effort to do something big is an unconscious protest against the shortness of life. He wishes to build a monument that will remain when he is gone.

The Pharaohs built pyramids. Other men have founded cities, built bridges, written books. But all of these things eventually crumble into dust. There is only one kind of monument that endures forever and forever.

It is the influence of an idea.

I don't know what job you will choose, and I have no desire to influence you against your natural inclination, but I wish to give you this much warning.

Any achievement that brings you money or fame may be forgotten when you are gone, or long before; but any impression you make on human minds—whether you do it intentionally or by accident—will remain to honor or dishonor you so long as the human race lives.

It is much like planting the seed of grass. If the seed is in good ground it will grow to maturity and produce more seed, and this will be scattered far to germinate and produce again and so on without end.

Today some act or word of yours may impress a dozen people. To some extent, however little it may be, that impression will influence and direct their lives. And their lives, thus influenced by you, will in turn affect other lives and so through endless generations.

I don't mean to say that every act or word of yours will affect the destiny of the race. Much that we do and say is so negative and colorless that it makes no more impression than a passing shadow on the ground.

But at times you will influence those about you, for good or ill, and that influence will bear its natural harvest in their lives as sure as gun is iron.

Some remark of George Washington's may have caused a neighbor to do something that caused another to do something that caused one act after another, generation following generation, until at last it resulted in my writing this.

Many a girl wishes she were a princess, with powers to direct the lives of others. Well, you have that power—and a lot of responsibility goes with it.

Watch your step, my dear. Only one kind of person would start a bowlder rolling down a mountain without knowing where it would land.

Love, DAD.

Prospects of Soviet Trade.

Kansas City Times.

While the question of promoting trade with the Soviet Union is not the most important factor in Russian recognition, nevertheless it legitimately will take a leading place in the discussions. As already has been indicated the picture will be painted in glowing colors.

There is a real danger that the Washington Government, in its anxiety to find a market for surpluses, may force more credit on the Soviet Union than it can afford to accept. It is difficult for Russia to make direct payments to this country, since two of its chief products, oil and lumber, are those of which America has a surplus. In the two big years of Soviet trade, when we sold more than $100,000,000 of products to the union, payments were made through England and other countries. That is, Russia would sell England oil, and accept payment in British credits in New York for English goods exported to the United States.

Protecting Against Crime.

Topeka Capital.

Bankers are being advised by their associations to keep down insurance rates by various protections, as keeping the time lock on at all hours when the bank is open, to have only one entrance to their banking room, keep a minimum amount of currency and bonds on hand, have police or sheriff's officer nearby when opening or closing the bank, and where three or fewer employes are in service, close the bank at the noon hour.

Another item of protection, which is underscored, is to establish, if possible, both local and State-wide police radio systems. States so equipped have the lowest insurance rates on robbery and holdups.

The Doctrine of 1933.

Chaleston News and Courier.

The new doctrine is that it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a man who lives within his income and meets his obligations to enter the Kingdom of Heaven.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

OF ALL the discussion and recriminations that are following in the wake of the New York mayoralty campaign there is one voice not heard at all, a voice that we should like very much to hear—that of "Holy Joe" McKee himself. Here was a man who was right on the firing line, so to speak, the man who was in the midst of the attack. No other person possibly could be in position to speak as authoritatively as he, but instead of speaking he has gone off and folded up. Hasn't got his job back in the bank yet, either.

BARGERON.

There is now Boss Curry of Tammany, who shows no reticence at all, who says very loudly, in fact, that the Democrats can not expect to win in either State or Congressional races so long as Mr. Farley remains as chairman, and Jim replies very affably that he has no comment to make, that what he is going to do is to go away for a vacation and rest.

* * * *

IN other quarters we hear other assertions and demands, but "Holy Joe," with the best story of all simply keeps his peace. If he were to speak he would probably say that the greatest blunder the Administration here made was not in putting him in the race but in failing to go through with him after it had got him in.

The story would reveal incidentally that it was not wholly Jim Farley's doings, neither the blunder of putting him in nor of failing to go through with him. The Administration put him in and then got cold feet.

Several days prior to the announcement of McKee's candidacy there was a conference lasting several hours at the White House between Mr. Roosevelt and Messrs. Farley and Ed Flynn, the latter the leader of the Bronx and a close friend of the President and who had visions of being the boss of all New York.

* * * *

THE understanding was that the Administration was to throw its unstinted support behind McKee. It will be recalled that the announcement of his candidacy was delayed for several days, that even after the announcement had been scheduled for one afternoon at 4 o'clock the time was advanced until 8 o'clock that night, and then did not appear until the next day.

The reason for this was that the cautious Mr. McKee wanted a definite letter of support from the Administration, which the Administration would not give. There had been such a sharp reaction to its going into the fight that it was even then being frightened away. The persuasion with Mr. McKee to go ahead and make the jump must have been very strong, however, because he finally downed his reluctance and announced his candidacy.

But the fright of the Administration developed into a conviction to keep hands off and Holy Joe was left hanging in the air.

* * * *

HE DID the best he could. He called himself the recovery candidate, insisted that a vote for him was a vote of confidence for the President. The other candidates simply laughed at him and pointed out that the Administration could not be seriously behind him; that Jim Farley, indeed, had gone to Texas to find Jack Garner.

The result was that Holy Joe lost the votes of those who resented the Administration's butting into a local fight and did not pick up those who would have been forced to his side by an aggressive Administration support.

* * * *

The greatest contribution to the campaign from Washington was made, in fact, by Hugh Johnson, and Holy Joe would be the last man in the world to call that friendly. When Holy Joe displayed the Blue Eagle he stepped on Johnson's toes. And Johnson very promptly called on him to take it down. Observers on the scene said that action killed any chances McKee may have had.

I'll bet there are those in Washington who could wring Johnson's neck for this—but they won't.

More Talk in Washington.

Shoe and Leather Reporter.

What will President Roosevelt and his numerous adjutants do when 96 senators and about 435 representatives are in Washington, all talking at once, early in next January?

Evidently Not.

These people who insist that there be a managed currency puzzle us exceedingly. Haven't they wives?

President Puts End to Lavish U. S. Buildings

Modesty, Utility to Rule, He Says; $16,678,675 for Post Offices.

Symbolic of the easy informality of the Administration itself, the architecture of 237 new public buildings approved yesterday by President Roosevelt will be a radical departure from the monumental edifices in which generations have recognized the Government.

Announcement that more modest and modern postoffices had been adopted as a policy was made by the President at his Friday press conference as Secretary of the Interior Ickes, public works administrator, sat swinging his legs from a table and smiling assent.

Allotment of $16,678,675 for the new buildings, involving drastic revision of earlier projects, was made by Administrator Ickes, bringing to 389 the total of Federal structures to be erected under supervision of the Treasury, at a cost of $53,935,944. Additional such buildings are now under study.

Claim Saving of Millions.

Officials estimate a saving of 52 per cent by the new policy—a saving of millions of dollars—without sacrifice of efficiency. The new utilitarian buildings will be constructed on suitable sites, but not necessarily the most expensive corners, and special attention will be given to delivery facilities.

"Application of this rule of reason," the Public Works Administration said, "has made possible justification of the new postoffice structures at a greatly reduced cost, giving the communities affected all the widespread regenerative benefits of more than 160,000 man-months of employment during construction."

Virginia Gets Two.

Two of the new postoffices, whose construction already has been approved by Congress, will be built in Virginia, one at Galax at a cost of $51,200, the other at Blacksburg at a cost of $41,700. West Virginia will get four of the buildings: Alderson, $47,300; Welch, $67,100; Keyser, $57,200; Montgomery, $50,700. Easton, Md., also gets a building for which $42,400 has been set aside.

Most of the new structures will be built in small cities, scattered throughout the country, under plans prepared by the supervising architect of the Treasury. Local materials will be used, where possible, instead of expensive stone hauled a long distance.

Replace Cramped Quarters.

Each of the new postoffices, according to Secretary Ickes, is to take the place of a building in which inadequate space has been leased by the Government at large expense, or where the physical condition of the building and working conditions are poor.

The highest price to be paid for any of the 237 new structures will be $598,000, at Dallas, Tex. The others range from a $33,200 structure at South Pittsburg, Tenn., in the vicinity of Muscle Shoals, to $350,000 at Worcester, Mass.

Deadline Extended For Oil Price Data

10 Days More Allowed on Objections.

The Petroleum Administrative Board yesterday extended for 10 days the time for filing supplementary data in support of objections to oil schedules to be effective December 1. Affidavits setting forth the character of the objections must be filed on or before November 15, but cost data may be filed at any time before November 25.

The change in the date of filing cost data was made to give producers additional time to gather material in support of their contentions regarding price schedules, which fix prices from the oil well to the motorist's tank.

Penal Isle Mosquitoes Killed by Electricity

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Nov. 10 (AP).—Trindad health authorities are studying an electrical mosquito-killer installed a few weks ago at the French penal colony on Devils Island.

The device uses a secret lure to attract mosquitoes within close range. There is a current of air which sucks them into a trap. The lure is said to be light of selected wave lengths. By varying the waves it is claimed mosquitoes can be attracted from considerable distances. The light is electrically produced. The lure is the invention of Mlle. Germaine Courdon, of Paris.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 10 (AP).—The board of visitors at the College of William and Mary has informed Gov. Pollard he is expected to return to his old post as dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Government and Citizenship upon the expiration of his term in January.

Commenting on the possibility of his return to the teaching profession, the governor today said during the past four years he has learned a few things more about the subject of Virginia government, the subject he taught at the college.

Relief Schools Aimed to Help Hungry Pupils

Experts Perfect Program for Federal Fight on Malnutrition.

Emergency nursery schools to serve a dual purpose—providing care and food for undernourished children and finding unemployed teachers jobs—will be established throughout the country as the result of a two-day conference which opened yesterday.

Child welfare experts and teachers from all parts of the country gathered in the Federal office of education to discuss organization and operation of the relief schools.

The project will be financed by the Emergency Relief Administration through part of its allotment to the division of women's work, headed by Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward. It is estimated that thousands of trained women will be put back to work through these schools.

The project is part of the program sponsored by the United States Children's Bureau to arrest malnutrition in children who have suffered through four years of depression.

Twenty members of the conference will complete their program today. Their recommendations will be forwarded to State relief administrators.

Full Personnel Named for New Forestry Area

8 West Virginia Counties Comprise District for Fire Control.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 10 (Spl.).—An organization to watch for and supervise fighting of forest fires in this newly created district has been set up, G. C. Hamilton, of Petersburg, named district supervisor, announced here today.

This district has eight counties, including the Eastern Panhandle and South Branch Valleys, and is known as the "South Branch Valley forestry district." It has been subdivided into ranger and tower areas and will be manned by the following:

Towers—North Mountain, G. C. Bartgis; Sideling Hill, N. A. Dawson; Pinnacle Mountain, Wayne Shumaker; Elk Horn Mountain, Edgar Sites.

Section rangers—B. Frank Files, Jones Spring; S. A. Park, Keyser.

Rangers—Thomas M. Henry, Berkeley Springs; C. C. Spring, Great Cacapon; I. E. Miller, Vanderlip; Luther Harmison, Sector; Harry Burns, Keyser; Jerry Abernathy, Elk Garden; Herbert Foley, Gormania; E. E. Kessell, Kessell; Edgar Kile, Petersburg; Walter Ansel, Springfield; J. F. Teter, Fort Seybert.

Each ranger area will have a warden and crew who, however, will be kept on duty regularly only during the periods when mountain and forest fires usually occur. Limited funds, Hamilton said, prevent full-time work. Men summoned to assist regular crews are paid $1 per day under State authority. The forest fire authorities have had trouble in previous years in getting some counties to shoulder the expense, but Hamilton said today all but one county in this area had cleared up past debts in this respect.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Ulcers on Legs.

One of the duties of the school nurse is to cure up the sores on the legs of the children, principally the boys, since the girls rarely have such things. Every boy knows, and most men remember, how these ulcers afflict the youth of the land. Some of them are on the shins, because that area is so readily barked. Most of them, afe on the ankles or not far away from there. They have a way of piling up thick, hard scabs and they will not heal.

Of course there is nothing about them that threatens life or endangers the leg, but they are unsightly they leave large and unpigmented scars, and they cramp the style of the boys.

When school lets out the school nurse goes off the job and it is just in the summertime that these leg ulcers are most troublesome.

A scab is good for a sore up to a certain point. It is composed of dried wound secretion, including some blood and some cast-off cells. Not only is it fairly near sterile but, because of the substances that go to make it up, it has some ability to kill the bacteria that follow it. It covers and protects the repairing cells that are at work below.

But scabs supply another illustration of the well-known fact that too much of a good thing is bad. Thick heavy hard scabs prevent leg ulcers from healing by irritating them much as a corn irritates a toe. The first step in healing leg ulcers is to get rid of big, hard scabs. To do this cover the ulcers with a lot of gauze wet with boric acid solution. Put this on at bedtime, hold it in place with a bandage, and leave it on all night. The crust should be loosened by morning. If the crust or scab again piles up a horny mass, repeat the process. A light scab, on the other hand promotes healing. This may be all the treatment needed.

In some cases it will be wise for the boy, after soaking off the scab, to sit quietly for 15 minutes, letting the sun shine directly into the sore.

In a few cases some support is necessary. The best way to supply this is by means of a rubbe. adhesive bandage. It will answer, usually, to apply this below and around the ulcer. In some cases it will be best to put a little vaselined gauze over the ulcer, cover it with a piece of rubber sponge, and then carry the rubber adhesive over the ulcer area.

In practically all cases these indolent leg ulcers in children are easily cured. That they hang on is because they are neglected. Nobody takes the time necessary to give them care. If these simple mechanical procedures fail to cure let the doctor take on the job.

There may be some reason other than neglect for the persistence of the ulcers. If medicines are to be used locally it is safer to let the medical man pass on the needs.

Radio Waves and Ripples

THREE human interest episodes depicting the varied type of work done by the organization will feature the annual Red Cross roll call program tonight from 9:30 to 10 over the National Broadcasting Co. network.

Fred Cushman, 17, of Tarrytown, N. Y., will tell of the rescue of an 8-year-old girl from the Hudson River last September. The episode illustrates the life saving and first aid service of the Red Cross, through which more than a million persons have been taught how to save lives at the scene of an accident.

Then Miss Elizabeth Lowry, of Lebanon, Va., one of the 700 public health nurses in the employ of the Red Cross, will tell from the N. B. C. station in Washington of a call she received to a Virginia mountaintop one night last February, during a blizzard, to aid in nursing 12 men who had been critically injured in the explosion of a grist mill boiler.

A third story will be told by a woman who suffered heavily in the south California earthquake last March to illustrate the type of work the Red Cross carries through in a disaster relief operation.

Floyd Gibbons, rapid-fire speaker and journalist, will announce the program. John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, will speak, and music will be furnished by the Navy Band.

Paul Seeley Gives Lecture On 'True Ideas'

A lecture on "Christian Science: The Revelation of True Ideas" was delivered last evening in Memorial Continental Hall by Paul Stark Seeley, C. S. B., of Portland, Oreg.

Mr. Seeley is a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. He was introduced by Edwin J. Grayson, First Reader of Third Church, Washington, under whose auspices the address was given. The lecturer said in part:

"But, says some one, I want true ideas to fill my thought, but how can I get them? By study of the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. In these books is the clearest revelation of God's ideas available to men. Read contemplatively the great statements therein. Digest, assimilate them. Then use them in daily life. Cling to them when negative thoughts would surge into consciousness. Battle down the suggestion of fear, resentment, sickness, sin, with the Christ, the saving true idea of God.

"A young inquirer into Christian Science read the textbook through. He liked it but did not seem to get very much out of it. He had read it rather hastily, not recognizing that its teachings, which were so contrary to his past education, needed to be carefully pondered and digested. When he returned the book to the friend from whom he borrowed it the friend asked him if he liked it. He replied affirmatively, but without much enthusiasm.

"The friend said, 'Well, perhaps you got about as much out of it as I did when I first read it. But I knew that there was something there I hadn't understood, so I started reading it again, more thoughtfully. I read the first page of the chapter on Prayer close to 50 times. Then I began to realize what it really meant.' The inquirer decided to follow his friend's example. More thoughtfully he approached the book. That first page he read and reread over 30 times and then the power of the ideas there given began to be realized. He was started on the road Godward.

"If our automobile engine doesn't start quickly we try again and again until it runs. So, with our mental mechanism. We can not expect to get anywhere if we stop trying simply because it doesn't 'spark' at our first effort. If we are to grasp the great ideas of existence we must be willing to think, to think as Christ Jesus thought.

"We need to read not so many words, but to understand the spiritual meaning of the words we read. Without the spiritual thought-value words are valueless. On the eagle wings of uplifting thought we are exalted to the realization of our oneness with God."

Reviewers Report on Screen and Stage as Picture Houses Launch New Bills

Margaret Sullavan Plays Opposite Boles; Hits at Other Theaters.

"ONLY YESTERDAY." Universal picturization of a story suggested by the book, "Only Yesterday," by Frederick Lewis Allen, featuring Margaret Sullavan, John Boles, Billie Burke, Jimmy Butler, Reginald Denny, Edna May Oliver and an all-star supporting ensemble. Directed by John M. Stahl. Previewed Friday midnight, November 3.

It is upon the lachrymose requiem of a thwarted and a futile love that the full resources of Universal City and Director John M. Stahl have here been concentrated to lend point to a retrospective title whose completely remorseful significance is that "it seems only yesterday."

The reference is to an episode of the early days of America's entry into the Great War that had burned itself into the heart of a young girl steeped in the romance of Old Virginia. This mere incident in the life of a young lieutenant, who returned from the front a captain who did not even recognize the girl whose heart he so completely occupied, through the years had become her most precious heritage, nurtured, cherished and protected even from the man whom it most vitally concerned.

For fifteen years this great love dominated the life of this lonesome, yearning, soul-starved mother, until finally impending death moved her to reveal her secret to the man whose life she should have shared from that first moonlit night in pastoral Virginia when love and life were young.

A Story of Sacrifice.

While many enlivening and diverting embellishments have been utilized to grace the action with touches of movement and gayety, the narrative is essentially the tearful chronicle of a defeatist's losing fight for happiness. It is a story, however, that is so human, so naturally and poignantly played and so skillful in its use of the cutback that it may not with any justice be described as a work wholly and unequivocally dedicated to Niobe's somber moods. It embraces moments of delightful comedy and intervals of good-natured banter between mother and small son that are wholly disarming in their warm and appealing spirit of an ideal camaraderie. A New Year's Eve celebration also adds the fillip so frivolity to portions of the story that need it most.

Psychological Defects.

Psychologically, the play is no stronger than it should be. It makes more of a rotter of the chief male character than that figure in the story deserves to be and in close analysis strips him of most of the manly virtues and leaves him a rich and handsome weakling. This was probably not precisely what the author had in mind; it is, nevertheless, what comes out upon the screen.

Margaret Sullavan, as has been iterated and reiterated in the recent press, contributes an intelligent, authoritative and moving portrayal of the girl-mother who never confides the fact of his fatherhood to the boy's dad until death has made another guardian for the youngster imperative. It is quite Miss Sullavan's picture, although such deficiencies as exist in the role of the man, played with fine discretion by John Boles, are the author's errors of commission, not the actor's.

Fine Juvenile Performance.

No finer juvenile performance has been seen upon the screen than that offered by Jimmy Butler, fatherless son of a doting mother. Master Butler possesses an extraordinary comedy sense for one of his years and plays with a freedom from mannerism and artificiality that stamps his work with an unusual authenticity. Billie Burke and Reginald Denny are others who are importantly cast in roles of more definite worth to the picture than those myriad others played by a long list of the cinema's notables, who appear only in one extended party scene, employed to emphasize the sinister consequences of the market debacle of 1929.

A cartoon comedy and a new issue of the Universal News are the only auxiliaries of a major feature that has been executed with such obvious prodigality of time and material resources as to warrant being listed among the dramas of serious import that deserve the interested and respectful consideration of any playgoer whose demands are not exclusively for the frivolous and the flippant.

"COLLEGE COACH." Warner Brothers picturization of a story by Niven Busch and Manuel Seff, featuring Dick Powell, Lyle Talbot, Pat O'Brien, Ann Dvorak, Arthur Byron, Hugh Herbert, Arthur Hohl, Donald Meek and Berton Churchill. Directed by William A. Wellman. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

"College Coach" seems not quite to have the courage of its convictions. Launching itself as a more or less vigorous indictment of the commercial abuses of collegiate football—which it personifies in the braggart figure of the world's greatest gridiron coach—and the devious ways in which husky bruisers are kept in the line-up regardless of their scholastic standing, it eventually condones most of the things it purports to condemn, makes a hero of the coach in the eyes of the college world as well as his neglected wife and ends with nothing of a corrective measure even so much as suggested.

It is by this dubious process of pussyfooting that "College Coach" evades the charge of propagandizing the most popular of the fall sports and stands, at the end, just another picture in which the star back wins the game for dear old Calvert in the last minute or two of play!

The actual gridiron sequences have been done times without number in other pictures of the present and other years. It has nothing new to offer in the manner of treatment accorded the locker room and playing field sequences and derives whatever punch it possesses from the single-handed display of dynamics contributed by Pat O'Brien, in the title role. Dick Powell, cast as the honest chemistry student who also plays a vicious half back, tries heroically to look and act mad on various occasions, but still leaves the impression of being a dandy, light singing comedian. Lyle Talbot is to the life what Mr. Powell only pretends to be in the matter of bone and sinew.

Ann Dvroak, in the only feminine role in the cast, seems to have lost something of the fire and authority she revealed with Paul Muni in "Scarface," but registers mildly on the side of effectiveness as a lonesome wife, even so. An unusually long list of known actors lend their talents to roles of varying degrees of importance in this timely but ineffectual film that wastes its strength trying to carry water on both shoulders. Mr. Wellman's direction betrays no serious flaws, the story being what it is.

Guy Lombardo a Hit.

On the stage, Guy Lombardo and his 10 Royal Canadians not only make a striking appearance in their scarlet mess jackets and black dress trousers, but also make the most melodious and most perfectly orchestrated instrumental music that has been heard on a Washington stage in months. No stress is laid here on the trickiness of elaborate arrangements designed to emphasize overinstrumentation, but a great deal is laid upon the inherent beauty of many popular melodies played as they were written—quietly, soothingly, with fullest legato effect to passages that were never intended to be rendered otherwise.

Yesterday's program, at the second afternoon performance, embraced such hits as "Dinner at Eight," "You're Goin' to Lose Your Gal," "Annie Doesn't Live Here Any More," "Better to Have Loved and Lost," "The Last Roundup," "Stardust" and "Lazybones." Many of these selections served to introduce the band's solo voices and its familiar vocal trio. The act was greeted by thunderous applause.

Other Vaudevillians.

Other vaudeville specialists introduced by Miss Audrey Sieber, the new mistress of ceremonies, included James Evans, an upside-down foot juggler, who uses large globes, tables, bedsteads and heavy maltese crosses as the implements of his trade; Annie, Judy and Zeke, with their grotesque Hill-Billy harmonies and rustic comedy—Annie being one of the most gifted pianists that ever came this way and Judy a singer and dancer of bizarre accomplishment—and Harry Lang and Louise Squire in an interval of crossfire and song that suffered a little from the blight of mediocre material.

The Universal News and the orchestra's "Dixie Melodies" overture, under the baton of Maestro Freddie Clark, completed an entertainment of which Mr. Lombardo and his boys are the undisputed highlight.

Loew's Fox

BERKELEY SQUARE." Fox picturization of the stage play by John Balderston, adapted to the screen by Mr. Balderston and Sonya Levien, starring Leslie Howard, with Heather Angel, Valerie Taylor, Irene Brown, Beryl Mercer, Alan Mowbray, Betty Lawford, Ferdinand Gottschalk and David Torrence. Directed by Frank Lloyd. Reviewed Friday morning.

A great many years ago, Kant, the famous psychologist and philosopher, made a strange observation. "Time and space have no existence apart from mind," he said. "Things and places, matter and substance come under the same law and exist only as mind creates them. Mind is supreme and the universe is but the reflected thought of God."

The same idea is elaborated upon by Playwright John Balderston and we have, as a result, one of the most charming and thoughtful cinemas of the current season, "Berkeley Square."

"Suppose you are in a boat, sailing down a winding stream," says Peter Standish to the American Ambassador in London. (The ambassador, evidently never having heard of Mr. Kant, is a bit in doubt as to the sanity of young Mr. Standish.) "You went by a grove of maple trees upstream. But you can't see them now, so you saw them in the past, didn't you? You're watching a field of clover now; it's before your eyes at this moment, in the present. But you don't know yet what's around the bend in the stream there ahead of you. But I'm up in the sky above you in an airplane. I'm looking down on it all. The past, present and future of the man in the boat is all one to the man in the plane. Doesn't that show how all time must really be one? Real time is nothing but an idea in the mind of God!"

Genesis of the Plot.

As a modern young American, Peter Standish has inherited an old house in London. This home in Berkeley Square is so filled with historic associations and strange vibrations that the Past soon becomes much more real to him than the present and he is obsessed with the idea of conquering the years between the present and the time of that eighteenth century Peter Standish whose diary he has found.

With this thought in mind Peter Standish of Today finds himself changing personalities with the Peter Standish who is living in the past. He knows that he can change nothing in the events that have transpired and have been so carefully noted in the diary of that earlier Peter, and yet he finds that Destiny has played him a scurrilous trick.

He is ensnared in the life of the eighteenth century Berkeley Square. It is narrow, a bit sordid and not overly sanitary. He is trapped into observations that cause him to be regarded with hate and fear. He praises masterpieces that have not yet been painted; speaks of people who have not yet been born, quotes books which have not yet been written and falls in love with the girl he can not possibly marry since the destiny of Peter Standish has already been written by the finger of inexorable Time.

But the girl from the Past and the man from the Future find that love is something founded upon infinity and part with the knowledge that they will some day meet in a glorious Present.

Howard Repeats Success.

Producer Lasky borrowed Mr. Leslie Howard to play the role of Peter Standish which he enacted so brilliantly upon the legitimate stage and Mr. Howard gives one of the most charming and delicately shaded performances of his motion picture career. Heather Angel, a charming young British ingenue, gives to the part of Helen Pettigrew the necessary wide-eyed sympathy and understanding to make it thoroughly lovely. The remainder of the cast is uniformly excellent and Frank Lloyd, who directed "Cavalcade," may safely feel he has added another gem to his directorial successes in his handling of a story that might so easily have been tedious and lacking in popular appeal.

A grand stage show begins with an overture of "Student Prince" selections by Phil Lampkin and his orchestra. This is followed by a fast moving and colorful performance given by the Five Elgins, who juggle hats, brilliant Indian clubs and what-have-you in a most nonchalant and graceful manner.

John Fogarty sang some good old Irish ballads in the good old Irish way—and did the customers like it! His "Irish Lullaby" was especially well received.

Timblim Returns.

"Slim" Timblim, who made a late arrival on the Fox bill, in place of Jans and Whalen, pulled some elegant new rib-ticklers and some old ones which he slipped in so blithely that they sounded much funnier than they really were and made Mr. Timblim and his two assistants bright spots on an excellent bill.

Barney Rapp, introduced by Phil Lampkin, brings his orchestra and entertainers to Washington from their long engagement at the Hotel New Yorker. They have some splendid arrangements of the newer numbers and some excellent rythmic variations of the older favorites. The Three California Redheads do some snappy stepping, Slim Moore and Kay Picture sing a bit, and the orchestra doubles in brass, harmony, comedy and a musical interlude on some bottles, celebrating the repeal of dat ol' debbil prohibition!

"CHARLIE CHAN'S GREATEST CASE." Fox picturisation of Earl Derr Biggers' "The House Without a Key," featuring Warner Oland and Heather Angel, with John Warburton, Robert Warwick, Frank McGlynn and Walter Byron. Directed by Hamilton MacFadden. Reviewed Friday morning.

The other half of the great pair of modern detectives comes in for his share of the public's accolades this week with Earl Derr Biggers' cinematized "House Without a Key," with Warner Oland depicting the inimitable Charlie Chan.

As a matter of fact, Charlie Chan has solved much more complicated and difficult cases than this one, but the murders of the Brothers Winterslip afford him a chance to carry on with no impediment to his avid followers on both the screen and the printed page.

Following the formula of earlier writers, Dan Winterslip is found murdered. It is not long before his puritanical brother, Amos, is also found dead. With such slim clews as a piece of seaweed, an illuminated watch dial, and two types of cigarettes of the same brand, Chan unravels the mystery.

Oland Stars as Chan.

The more we see of Warner Oland, especially in this role, the more we are impressed with his extraordinary talents in depicting two diametrically opposed Chinese types—the beneficent Charlie Chan and the diabolically cunning Dr. Fu Manchu, the while never permitting the one to merge, even slightly, into the other. Here in the title role, Mr. Oland is even more completely Chan than ever.

Robert Warwick is the brother who has taken his fun—and other things—where he found it, and first succumbs to the assassin's knife. The suspicion naturally drawn upon the self-righteous brother, Amos, played by Frank McGlynn, is eliminated through his unhappy dispatch.

Furnishing more of the heavier movements of the drama, as well as some of the lighter, tenderer moments, the two amorous subplots are played by the charming Heather Angel and broad "A" John Warburton, Virginia Cherrill and sleek Walter Byron.

The Supplementaries.

"Scouring the Seas," another of the "Adventures of the Newsreel Camerman" series, reveals the hazards of newsreel photographers battling the high seas for thrillers. As this series is screened, the pictures seem to be much more effective than in the newsreels themselves.

An amusing comedy, though true to the love-and-marriage type, is "Leave It to Dad," with George Bocked and Jean Dane playing the young lovers. A release of the Paramount News completes the list of auxiliaries.

The two pivotal figures in Universal's "Only Yesterday," which inaugurated its engagement with a public preview in the Rialto Theater last night. Margaret Sullavan and Jimmy Butler, as mother and son—and charming ones, as you can plainly see—hold undisputed sway over the lachrymal ducts of the public at large, especially its distaff members. They are supremely effective.

"FOOTLIGHT PARADE." Warner Brothers picturization of a screen play by Manuel Seff and James Seymour, featuring James Cagney, Joan Blondell, Ruby Keeler, Dick Powell, Guy Kibbee, Ruth Donnelly, Frank McHugh and Hugh Herbert. Directed by Lloyd Bacon. Reviewed Friday afternoon, second week.

Like most of its predecessors, this picture is a variation of the backstage theme firmly established years ago by "Broadway Melody." As the theme has been varied with each successive presentation, so here yet another is offered, one which bears more than a passing resemblance to the opening of "Once in a Lifetime."

With the advent of sound pictures, Chester Kent, producer of extravaganzas, finds that his market is extremely curtailed, if not actually wiped out. A bright idea comes to him, and out of that grows the business of creating prologues for pictures.

Whether there is any particular implication to be drawn by analogy to Chester Hale and Fanchon and Marco, is not clear, yet like these, Kent achieves success. His crowning creations, "Honeymoon Hotel," "By a Waterfall" and "Shanghai Lil," numbers clinch an all-important contract.

A Clever Cast.

As the producer, James Cagney finds one of his most congenial roles. Notwithstanding that, and the presence of delectable Ruby Keeler, a bevy of dazzlingly beautiful girls and a notable cast of principals, Joan Blondell, in the part of Kent's secretary, outshines all the rest.

It can not be gainsaid that these three spectacular girl-and-music numbers are the dernier cri in cinematic creation. The very magnitude of production, magnificent lavishness of staging, profligacy in outlay, make these scenes overpowering in their appeal.

An issue of the Paramount News, including unusually clear shots of the G. W.-Tennessee game, is the only subsidiary.

Notre Dame Head Better.

Rochester, Minn., Nov. 10 (AP).—The Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame University, was resting comfortably today following a minor throat operation by Mayo clinic physicians.

Music Leaders Commend Post Plan for Opera

Presentation of "Aida" for Students, Amateurs Wins High Praise.

The special matinee presentation of the opera, "Aida," by the International Opera, which The Post has arranged for music students and amateur choristers and instrumentalists on November 25 at the Washington Auditorium, was highly praised yesterday by two local music leaders whose efforts long have been directed toward public appreciation of good music.

Dr. Edwin N. C. Barnes, director of music in the public schools, of Washington, and Mrs. Gertrude Lyons, president of the District of Columbia Federation of Music Clubs, acclaimed the Aida matinee as in line with their own desires that the compositions of the masters might be presented for music lovers at popular prices.

"Never before in my years of music work in Washington," stated Dr. Barnes, "have I heard of so practical an arrangement for familiarizing the student with a great opera. This can not help but prove worthwhile to the many young people enrolled in the public schools' choruses and orchestras."

"The Post is to be commended for bringing a presentation of one of the finest of all operas within the range of the average student's purse," Mrs. Lyons said.

Miss M. Adele France, principal of Saint Mary's Female Seminary, St. Marys City, Md., added the following note to her request for tickets: "The whole school deluged me at once when I asked the girls to put in their orders promptly. The Post is doing a mighty fine work."

Ticket allotments for the students' matinee are in charge of Mrs. Louise Proctor Engle, of The Post. Requests for reservations must reach her by next Monday. The entire Washington Auditorium has been reserved, with best seats priced at 40 cents and all others at 25 cents. On Tuesday tickets not allotted to schools will be placed on sale to the general public.

Japan Offers Olive Branch to Russia

Foreign Minister Suggests "Get-Together" Move.

Tokyo, Nov. 10 (AP).—The suggestion that Russia and Japan should get together and agree to cease all military activity along the entire extent of the Siberian-Manchurian border was made today by Japanese Foreign Minister Koki Hirota.

"It would be a good idea to extend the provisions of the Portsmouth Treaty, whereby Russia and Japan agree to abstain from military measures along their mutual frontiers, to the entire extent of the Siberian-Manchukuo border," Hirota said.

Bank Typist Balks Daylight Holdup

Pair Seized and $2,000 Is Recovered.

San Francisco, Nov. 10 (AP).—A bank stenographer who stepped on a silent burglar alarm button as two gunmen were ordering her and six others to a rear room, frustrated the daylight hold-up of the Fillmore-California branch of the American Trust Co. today. She was Miss Dora Young.

Police patrol cars speeded to the bank and captured the men as they were fleeing with $2,000 in currency.

The men gave their names as Ross McNeil and Thomas Coleman, Colorado ex-convicts, and confessed, police said, to a series of branch bank hold-ups in the bay region.

Gas Kills Official And Two Others

Baltimore Councilman, Woman and Man Found.

Baltimore, Nov. 10 (AP).—City Councilman George W. Konig and another man and a woman were found dead in a gas-filled apartment here late today.

The bodies of Konig and the unidentified woman were in one room and that of Matthew Connor, the apartment tenant, was on the kitchenette floor, with gas flowing from an unlighted oven burner.

Coroner B. P. Herzog rendered verdicts of accidental death. He said the trio had been dead about 12 hours.

Milne Mystery Ably Presented By Drama Guild

Exposing with professional craftsmanship the fallacy of the perfect murder, the Drama Guild of Washington opened its season last evening at the Wardman Park Theater with A. A. Milne's "The Perfect Alibi."

Frank E. Jamison, as the lord of the manor, is the unfortunate victim. The conspirators, who after 27 years manage to wreak their vengeance, are Thomas M. Cahill and Harold A. Weinberger, both sterling performers, whose depicted diabolical scheme will stand as the finest bit on Washington's amateur stage.

Playing a hunch that her uncle's death was not self-inflicted, Ada Green, assisted by Howard Frederick, is finally led to the correct solution. Others in the cast include Joseph P. Haltigan, as the butler; Mary L. Minnix and Naoma Warden, as house guests; Herbert Eby, as the police constable, and Marvin Beers, as the constable's son and an inspector of Scotland Yard.

The Drama Guild probably has never started a season so auspiciously. The cast members were admirably suited to their several roles. Denis E. Connell directed the performance.

"The Perfect Alibi" will be repeated this evening at 8:40 o'clock at the Wardman Park Theater.

Race Horse Man Killed by Hit-Skip

Struck While Exercising Steed in Bowie.

Exercising his race horse on the Laurel-Bowie road, in Bowie, Md., last night, George Simon, 67, Toronto, Canada, was killed by an alleged hit-and-run driver.

He was accompanied by his brother, Louis Simon. Neither the latter nor the horse, Surprise, were injured. The men were walking the horse along the highway.

Acting Coroner William Kreitzer said the only description given of the car was that it was a large gray sedan. Simon died of a fractured skull.

Profitable Generosity.

At times the necessity of obtaining the lead so far outweighs the value of a single trick that we must gladly sacrifice that trick in order that we may ultimately gain two or more tricks in exchange for the one lost. This situation is somewhat like the "gambit" in Chess. It relinquishes seeming strength for a positional advantage.

Notable among cases in which such a sacrifice should be made is the Vienna Coup, in the execution of which we establish an adversary's secondary card as the master-card of its suit, so that we may develop a Squeeze position. But classic plays such as this are fairly rare, whereas less beautiful but equally important opportunities for a winning sacrifice are very common.

In defending the contract of four spades on the hand given below, Mr. B. Jarmel saw an opportunity on the first trick to make the Declarer a present of a high card in order that the defense might be guided in the right course. His play was successful, and the loss of a trick resulted in a gain of two tricks in the final result.

East, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
			Pass
1♡	1♠	2◇	3♠
Pass

Mr. Jarmel sat South on this deal. His partner's Opening lead was the Queen of hearts, and Declarer played a small heart from Dummy. Mr. Jarmel rightly reasoned that West's Overcall and subsequent bid of four spades must have been based upon good distribution rather than high cards alone, in view of the fact that North had made a free bid and thus had shown some honor strength. It therefore seemed most likely that West had a single heart. In this case there was danger that a discard or discards could be established for Dummy's losing diamonds, yet if West held the Queen of diamonds, North could not safely lead that suit and thus drive out Dummy's Ace before the club suit could be established. Mr. Jarmel, therefore, overtook his partner's Queen of hearts with the Ace, thus making Dummy's King high. He returned a diamond, and West's Queen was trapped. The King of hearts afforded an immediate discard for one of West's diamonds, but there was no place to put the other, and North, after winning the Ace of trumps, cashed his King of diamonds. Mr. Jarmel's Ace of clubs was subsequently the setting trick.

The hand could not have been defeated by any other line of defense. Had South allowed the Queen of hearts to hold the first trick, West could have trumped the second lead and avoided losing a diamond trick by establishing the club suit immediately.

Lovely Washington Debutante Thinks Care Can Improve Any Type of Beauty

Bull-Fights Adorn Eating House Walls

Tortillas and Other Mexican Foods Regale the Diners.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

Tambourines and banderillas decorate the deep cream walls of a colorful little restaurant that serves good American steaks as well as pungent foreign dishes. Banderillas are fuzzy - looking darts with which the bull-fighter exasperates the bull.

Serapes, baskets of every size, and bright pottery are scattered about. A large rug, hung on the wall, has the ancient calendar stone woven in its center. Lassos, spurs, and richly ornamented bridles do their part in creating an atmosphere that seems a far cry from Washington with its silk-hatted diplomats and formal social functions. There's nothing formal about this little restaurant. But it has warmth, friendliness, and that elusive quality called "color."

The tables are shiny black and are set with highly decorated dishes. Each of the four chairs at a table differs from the others in finish and design. That is in keeping with the custom of Mexico. An American woman, upon moving to that country, commissioned a workman to make her six chairs. When he delivered them no two were alike. She explained that she wanted the chairs made over one pattern and painted the same color.

"Then I will have to charge you more," replied the workman, "because it would be so tiresome to make six chairs all alike."

An artist of similar temperament must have planned this particular restaurant.

A green stairway leads to an attractive private dining room on the second floor. The center light is covered with a huge basket shade. Exciting posters of bullfights line the walls. The tables and chairs are a bright, clear green.

Luncheon, consisting of intriguing Mexican dishes, is served for 35 cents. Dinners are 65 cents and $1. If she's in a mellow mood, the little, dark-eyed waitress will butter the tortillas for you, rolling them into neat cylinders.

The delicious flavor of the cashew nut is retained in cashew nut butter. It will revive those appetites that are weary of peanut butter. This new spread resembles that made from peanuts but has more tang and a richer, meatier flavor. Try it in school lunch-boxes or in picnic sandwiches. A pint jar may be purchased for 39 cents.

For those who remain true to their old love, peanut butter, we have found some that has been ground between stones in an old water mill. This brand is made in the heart of the Virginia peanut country and has an excellent flavor, because of the grinding between stones. In this process none of the oil is lost.

Consomme madrilene, in 13-ounce tins, is delightful whether served hot or cold. If the chicken and tomato consomme (English for consomme madrilene) is placed in the refrigerator for six or eight hours, it turns into a fine jellied consomme that is just the thing for Sunday night suppers.

The 13-ounce can costs 23 cents.

A breakfast of real Scotch oatmeal will make a reluctant early-riser feel exuberant enough to tootle a bagpipe all the way to the office or classroom. Since bagpipes are about as scarce in this country as Eskimos in evening clothes, it's safe to feed the family this imported oatmeal.

This cereal differs considerably from the American type. The Scotch kind consists of the whole kernel instead of kernels rolled into flakes. An hour's cooking is required for best results. Complete directions are on the tin container.

From England comes a sugar sirup that is thin, mild and golden in color. It's a far cry from the rich maple and heavy sorghum flavors so familiar to pancake-eaters in this country. This golden sirup from merry England is fine for bringing out the delicate taste of wheat cakes or waffles.

Price: Two-pound tin, 35 cents.

Amber lights, deep-piled carpets, low-beamed ceiling and crisp white linens make a restful setting for luncheon or tea. This tea room is high above the turmoil of busy downtown streets. Huge windows, curtained in soft green, diffuse a subdued light over diners who come to this quiet haven.

The coffee is made in glass-lined urns. Rolls are baked during the meal to insure the greatest freshness possible. Amusing little aluminum pots are used for serving stews and similar dishes.

Luncheon, consisting of soup or cocktail, entree, hot breads, dessert and beverage, is served for 65 cents.

Tea is most interesting when it is ordered a la carte. A high tea, served for $1, is really a 5 o'clock dinner, beginning with cocktail and ending with dessert.

Identification.

By Katherine Smith.

I have seen your young face twist
With sharp-sweet pain; I found
You sobbing once with bitterness
Of youth dismayed, the sound

Was much too like the crying of
My long-old heart—I knew
That you, young heart, were old as I
Or I, as old as you.

What Today Means

"Scorpio."

If November 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 to 9:10 a. m., from 4 to 5:10 p. m. and from 7:30 to 8:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:20 to 11:30 a. m. and from 1:20 to 2:50 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will be of a conflicting nature and you will probably feel buffeted back and forth without being able to right yourself. It would seem advisable to defer in so far as possible all decisions pertaining to both personal as well as business matters. The young lady to whom "the question is popped" will perhaps do well to postpone replying one way or the other.

The child born on this November 11 will have almost a hypnotic effect on animals that come its way; it will be able to do anything it wishes to and apparently without suffering any harm. Little or no fear in its make-up, and none at all where animals are concerned. Will keep much to itself without causing noticeable comment.

If November 11 is the date of your birth, you will probably go through life doing more than is expected of you. People, for some reason or other, will invariably think of you as "the boy or girl next door" or as "John Smith's boy or girl," without ever ascribing to you any particular identity of your own. Consequently, when they discover that you have really amounted to something, they will be quite surprised. You are not an average person in any way, and most likely in appearance you are quite distinctive. But you have a way of being present in a group and yet of almost completely blotting yourself out of the picture. When you do something out of the ordinary, you seem to do it with such ease and without expecting any comment, that it goes by almost unnoticed. You are not lacking in force; you speak a good deal, well to the point and wisely. When physical activity is called for, you are right there on the job too.

Born on November 11, things just seem to get done when you are around. You are the sort of person who can sway a crowd from one view to another without their realizing that they have switched. You will accomplish things wherever you are and whatever you do. You will get little recognition till it's all over, however. As it is, you look for results, not for laurels. When you come to marry, you will just naturally "pick off" the catch of the season, male or female as the case may be.

Successful people born on November 11:

J. Ogden Armour, meat packer.
Maud Adams, actress.
Anna K. (Green) Rohlfs, novelist.
Thomas B. Aldrich, poet and novelist.
Henry M. Alden, editor and author.
John G. Brown, artist.

In defining the spiritual type of beauty as that which embodies gentleness and detachment, National authorities cited these outstanding figures in Washington society as perfectly symbolizing those qualities. Left is Miss Mary Elizabeth Ball, 21-year-old daughter of Mrs. Julia Gray Ball, of Norfolk and Washington; Mme. Casardi is shown at the right, and below, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, blue-eyed daughter of Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt.

Underwood & Underwood.

Mary Elizabeth Ball, Chosen by Authorities as Example of Spiritual Type, Gives Her Own Ideas.

Beauty is woman's mightiest weapon and her strongest defense, says an old Spanish proverb; but National authorities on beauty go further, and classify beauty into twelve master types, to one of which every woman essentially belongs, and with which she may identify herself through intelligent gowning, coiffure and cosmetics.

Today, a lovely Washington debutante, cited by experts as belonging to the spiritual type of beauty, is quoted in an exclusive interview which is the sixth article in a series authoritatively defining beauty, and giving authentic information on how it may be enhanced.

By Elizabeth Young.

"You won't mind if I go on with my work?"

Mary Elizabeth Ball, 21-year-old debutante daughter of Mrs. Julia Gray Ball, of Norfolk and Washington, lifted sweet hazel eyes from the mass of jade green wool in her lap.

She was dexterously spinning a scarf to match the smart short-sleeved knitted blouse and skirt she was wearing, when interviewed for The Washington Post's woman's page on the subject of achieving and maintaining beauty.

Miss Ball is one of four Washington society girls cited by National authorities on beauty as embodying the characteristic attributes of the Spiritual beauty, whose charm lies in her gentleness and seeming detachment from the worldly.

"I don't spend a great deal of time on my appearance, nor do I adhere to any strict regime of exercise, other than to be always on the go," she explained, in a soft unhurried voice, to which a marked Southern accent lent wistful magic.

"There was a time when I played a great deal of golf and tennis, but that was almost five years ago. More recently I tried bicycling, and I expect to take up skating on my return to Norfolk. Swimming is my most consistent exercise, I suppose, although I take occasional walks."

Miss Ball has been visiting in Washington the past six weeks, and just now is the guest of Mrs. J. Morville Barker and Miss Peggy Barker, at 2827 Twenty-ninth sreet.

Observes Simple Diet.

"My weight ranges from 107 to 114 pounds. Just now it is 111, and I'm about due for another diet, as any more poundage than that has a tendency to give me an hour-glass figure, which doesn't go with my height." A smile tilted the corners of her lovely cupid's bow mouth. She is just 5 feet tall.

When she diets, as she does every few months, Miss Ball eats a light breakfast of coffee, fruit juice and thin dry toast; a salad or vegetable for luncheon, and a simple dinner of meat without sauce or gravy, with green vegetables, no potatoes or sweets and only one slice of bread. At a physician's suggestion, she supplements this limited diet with lemon juice, taken in tomato juice, and finds it possible to lose as much as 10 pounds in a fortnight, without concomitant loss of vitality and enthusiasm. Neither potatoes nor bread figure largely in her diet at any time, although she likes both.

Cares for Own Hair.

Miss Ball is a natural blonde, with golden high lights in the waves of her short-clipped locks. She cares for her hair herself, using a liquid soapless shampoo at weekly intervals, and coaxing the wide, natural wave back into place with her own hands. She has a permanent wave in the ends once a year, and avails herself of the barber's art at occasional intervals.

In one regard, Miss Ball never relaxes her vigilance, and that is in the care of her skin, which she makes a daily, if brief, ritual.

"Though I shouldn't get home until 5 in the morning, I never fail to cleanse it thoroughly, using cream as well as soap and water, and a particularly rough face cloth which Mrs. Barker brought me from Mexico, or a complexion brush," she said.

After lubricating her skin generously with a special brand of cream which experiment has proved is exactly adapted to the needs of her smooth pink-and-gold complexion, she wipes the excess cream away, and scrubs her face vigorously with soap and water before retiring. Then she applies a nourishing tissue cream for overnight.

In the morning, this is removed with a skin freshener applied with cotton, and again her face is scrubbed with soap and water. More skin freshener is used, and a creamy powder base, as a foundation for her make-up of powdered rouge and lipstick and light, creamy powder. She has lipstick and rouge in four shades, all with a slightly orange cast, which she varies according to her costume colors for either day or evening.

Uses Perfume for Evening.

As for perfumes:

"I have to feel up to it, in the mood, before I use perfume, and I use it only for evening," remarked Miss Ball. "I don't care for it in daytime. My favorite is 'N'Aimez que Moi.' It is so light and fragrant."

Neither does she care for jewelry, which she feels—as do beauty experts—is not suited to her personality. However, she has one favorite piece, a coffee-colored diamond encircled with blue-white diamonds, which she constantly wears as a ring on her right hand.

Simple tailored outfits of plain cloth materials of tweedy effect—yet not so heavy as tweed—in colors of gray, blue and black, are Miss Ball's choice for daytime wear. She does not care for furs, feeling that neither her personality nor her stature justify their place in her wardrobe.

For evening Miss Ball's preference is for smooth silken crepes and velvets in unrelieved black or white or light blue. Very occasionally she wears simple earrings or a single bracelet. She thinks many of the close-fitting evening gowns of the modern mode demand for strict good taste a snug foundation garment and, accordingly, makes this concession against her inclination toward complete forgetfulness of clothes, once donned.

Smokes, Eschews Cocktails.

Miss Ball was educated at St. George's School at Norfolk, Va., and at Columbia University. She has studied costume illustration and designing in New York, Paris and Italy, although she has never practically applied her gifts in this direction. She made her debut a year ago.

Admitting that she smoked, "perhaps excessively," Miss Ball does not feel that smoking is detrimental to either health or complexion, although her observation has led her to believe that too many cocktails result in a coarsening of the pores in even the healthiest, most naturally beautiful skin.

Read in tomorrow's Woman's Page the opinions of another of Washington's society women, who has been designated by beauty experts as belonging to a master beauty type.

Texas Beauty Deserts Plains For a Career

Mary Etta Kleberg Plans to Become Dress Designer.

"The Duchess of Texas" is in Washington "on her own" as the first step from the largest ranch in America to the biggest dress-making establishment in the world.

She is Mary Etta Kleberg, daughter of three generations of Texas cattle kings, and she has deserted the epic plains of the Lone Star State and the gleaming waters of Houston Bay with the intention of becoming a designer of beautiful gowns following the social seasons from New York to London and to Paris.

No dust of the rodeo for this lovely young society bud of the Southwest. She lost her taste for those things after they chose her the most beautiful girl in the State at the annual Texas outdoor festival. It is true she can sail a boat like a mariner and rig her own fast craft with its red canvas. She can ride a broncho as well as any cowboy. But Miss Kleberg prefers to dream of evening gowns with long trains, decolletes and elegant afternoon gowns for exclusive metropolitan tea dansants.

With the permission of her parents, Representative and Mrs. Richard Kleberg, she will keep house in her own apartment in Washington this winter, learning to budget, work on her designing and make her plans for a future career at home and abroad.

Eastern Farm Life Is More Sociable

Woman Farm Agent Finds Cordial Spirit Here.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 10 (Spl.).—Farm women in this section—particularly in the Eastern Panhandle, where she works—are more sociable and more stimulating in a number of ways than the farm women in her own State of Iowa, Mrs. Esther Brucklacher said today, as she rounded out two years as home club agent in this county.

To get a dozen women together in Iowa for an informal farm woman's club meeting at any time would have been a stroke of luck, she says. Here an attendance of 40 is nothing more than expected.

Any thought that a home club agent's job is without heavy demands upon time would seem to be answered in her records for the two years of labor here. They show that in this period she has traveled 49,000 miles within the Panhandle (Berkeley, Morgan and Jefferson Counties), on work within her field; has held, or helped to hold, 722 meetings; made 525 visits to farms and homes of the county and city; has had 1,342 calls during the period at her office for information of one kind or another.

Having studied the problems of educational administration at George Peabody College for Teachers, from which he received his Ph.D. degree, Dr. Altstetter for a number of years served as city superindendent of schools in Wauseon, Ohio, and in Orlando, Fla.

College Dean at Work On National Report

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 10 (Spl.).—Dr. M. L. Altstetter, dean of instruction at the Fredericksburg State Teachers College, has been appointed a member of the National committee on the administration of teacher training, which will report at the Cleveland convention of the Department of Superintendents of the National Education Association which meets from February 24 to March 1, 1934.

Chairmen Selected For Beaux Arts Ball

New York, Nov. 10 (AP).—One of society's most important events, the annual Beaux Arts ball, will be held January 19 at the Waldorf-Astoria. By the Society of Beaux Arts architects it has been named "Marco Polo." A pageant preceding the ball will portray Marco Polo's voyage from Venice to Kublai Khan's court in Cathay, and thence to Persia. Whitney Warren will be honorary chairman, and Kenneth Murchison active chairman. Mrs. Tuckerman Draper heads the woman's committee.

Plans Made for Charity Ball.

The famous Peacock ball will be held January 5 at the Waldorf. Stage and screen stars will cooperate with the elite. The proceeds will go to the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor. Miss Ruth Vanderbilt Twombly is arrangment's chairman.

Mona Cutler Finds Warlike Spirit Thrives in Colleges

Survey Shows Militarism Growing Under R.O.T.C., She Declares.

"The young people of America in their innermost hearts want peace. College men and women are just old enough to remember vaguely the heartbreak of war. Yet the compulsory R. O. T. C. training in many of our universities is turning their thoughts toward the so-called glories of militarism."

Mona Cutler's brown eyes snapped. She ran eager slim fingers through her brown curls as she talked of the results of her six weeks' crusade through New England colleges. She sat in her room at the National Council for the Prevention of War, 532 Seventeenth street northwest, and explained why she feels that the R. O. T. C. compulsory training should be abolished.

"I found in visiting Harvard, Radcliffe, Pembroke, Wellesley and other New England schools, that the intelligence of young people comprehends the futility of war. But when they are deliberately taught the use of war weapons, are dressed up in uniforms and taught military drills, their thoughts turn naturally to war. The women students too, even though they do not take military training, are bound to be influenced.

Miss Cutler, whose official title is Peace Counselor of the Youth Movement for World Recovery, came to Washington from her home in Yonkers, N. Y., the last week in September, to do research work on peace.

She left Washington October 5 for a tour of the New England colleges in a 5-year-old touring car which had been donated to the cause by an elderly Boston woman. After spending the current week-end in Washington as a delegate to the Washington Youth Peace Council Institute, she will fill the touring car with gasoline and be on her way again. Her next trip includes Vassar, Middlebury, Skidmore, and Bennington colleges, where she will endeavor to arouse enthusiasm in behalf of peace.

"I've been having a wonderful time," said 20-year-old Miss Cutler in describing her crusade. "I've learned how to clean my car's vacuum tank and I'm getting on familiar terms with carburetors and spark plugs.

"Where do I get the money to make these trips? Well, the various colleges have pledged so much toward my support. But some of them are slow in paying. One day last week I had just 35 cents. The next day I had $35. Mount Holyoke had sent me $10 while the other $25 had come from Wheaton College. No, I wahn't worried when my funds ran low. I knew the colleges would provide."

Socialite Imports Taxicab.

A London taxicab of ancient model was brought to New York by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hamilton when they returned recently from London. This "object of art" is the envy of their society friends. Mr. Hamilton, who is quite tall, plans to ride in it. He is tired, he says, of bumping his head on New York taxicab roofs.

Take-Off Train On New Gowns Aids Dancers

Glamorous Ball Frocks Now Have Removable Appendage.

Trains add glamour and romance to evening gowns but they are rather a nuisance on the dance floor. It is one woman in a hundred who can hold a train gracefully with one hand while she clasps her dancing partner with the other.

Mainboucher has made it possible for an evening gown to have a train one minute and none the next. These removable trains have been received with enthusiastic acclaim in Paris and are already receiving flattering attention on this side of the Atlantic. Now that Mainboucher has taken care of this matter in such delightful fashion, it seems strange that some one did not think of it before.

A new flaired treatment, achieved by fullness in the skirt front, is the most recent inspiration of Schiaparelli. This designer leaps so blithely from style to style that it is difficult to keep up with her. About the time the fashion world begins to feel acquainted with the new front fullness, Schiaparelli will be merrily off on another tangent. It will be interesting to see what her fertile imagination conceives next.

Vionnet has gone in rather heavily for color contrasts in her new daytime collection. Sometimes this contrast is set forth with bright blouse and dark skirt. Often it is used for a one-piece dress that stimulates a two-piece model. Blue, in a sweet, dusty shade, with deep brown is a favorite combination.

Southern Educator Named on Committee

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 10 (Spl.).—Dr. Morgan L. Combs, president of Fredericksburg State Teachers College, has been appointed to a national committee on the administration of teacher training, which will report at the Cleveland convention of the Department of Superintendence February 24-March 1, 1934.

The appointment was announced yesterday from the headquarters of the National Educational Association by Paul C. Stetson, superintendent of schools at Indianapolis, Ind., and president of the Department of Superintendence of the National Educational Association.

Appointment of this committee is in accordance with a fundamental reorganization of the convention plan followed by the educational leaders in their national professional organization for many years. The purpose of the change is to extend greater responsibility to individual members in the department's attempt to plan more effectively for meeting the current crisis in education.

Seven such committees appointed by President Stetson will give their attention respectively to problems of teacher training, a comprehensive program of public education, financing the schools, education for the new America, a national outlook on education, the interpretation of the schools to the public, and public education and public welfare.

West Virginia Holds One-Act Play Contest

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 10 (Spl.).—Prof. G. Harry Wright, head of the speech department of Marshall College, Huntington, announces that the annual State one-act play and oratorial contest sponsored by the West Virginia Intercollegiate Speech Association will be held February 23-24 at the college.

State honors in the one-act play contest were won last year by Marshall College. The meeting was held then at the Fairmont State Teachers College.

Evening Bags In Spotlight

Fancy Brocades and Gay Colors Go With All Frocks.

The style spotlight is focused on evening bags. They're here in bright reds, deep purples, in greens, yellows, blues, in satins, velvets and brocades. They're plain, they're fancy, large and small, they're in all shapes and all sizes.

Washington shops noted the trend of the styles and made ready. Now it is possible to buy bags to match any formal frock in your wardrobe. Or you may purchase a frame, gilt, silver, or much bejeweled, and make your bag from the same material as your dress.

Some stylists suggest matching the bag to the slippers. This is quite easy, too, as many shops are showing brocade bags in numerous colors and patterns.

You may not only select your bag to combine with your frock, but may follow the scheme of things with your jewelry. If the bag has rhinestone flowers on it, a gold clasp, or plain silver initials, you may choose your earrings or bracelets to suit.

Lee's House Reroofed.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 10 (Spl.).—Asbestos shingles will replace the old wooden shingled roof over Stratford Hall, birthplace of Robert E. Lee, it was announced by the board of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation.

The shingles will be similar to those used in the Williamsburg restoration project.

The board announces also that several gifts of stock for the Stratford plantation have been received lately.

D. C. Women in Welfare Work

Mrs. Aspinwall Gives Time to Children's Work.

Welfare work for children takes first place in the activities of Mrs. Clarence A. Aspinwall. A former president of the Juvenile Protective Association and now a member of the board, she is especially interested in the preventive work that is done by this association and her earnest endeavors on its behalf have aided materially in enlarging the work of the association to its present broad scope.

While associated with the boards of the George Washington University Hospital and the Columbia Hospital for Women, to both of which she gives the necessary time and effort, the potentially delinquent child is still her first care.

Speaking of her work, Mrs. Aspinwall says:

"I am especially interested in child welfare work and I favor the Juvenile Protective Association for I think it is quite necessary that undernourished and potentially delinquent children should have a special agency to care for them.

"Children who do not have an opportunity to develop normally in their own homes, which might be in poor surroundings, or who are in unfit home environment should be placed in foster homes so that they might become normal children.

"I feel that children, as prospective citizens, should have an agency devoted to the task of preventing their becoming bad citizens."

Mrs. John McDonald was chosen vice president; Mrs. Wyllys R. Hodges, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Orble B. Boughton, parliamentarian. Mrs. L. B. Carter is the retiring president. There was an attendance of 150.

Virginia Students Omniverous Readers

Woodstock, Va., Nov. 10 (Spl.).—Pupils at Woodstock High School take their magazine reading seriously. At least, that is the opinion observers gather on perusing a list containing a long list of periodicals to which the history classes have subscribed.

Magazines which are being used in the history classes include Asia, Current History, Foreign Policy Reports, Forum, Golden Book, Harper's Historical Outlook, Nation, New York Times, Book Review, School Life, School and Society and National Geographic.

A plan has been devised by the school authorities whereby pupils may take any of the magazines out at night. This procedure gives the parents an opportunity to read the periodicals.

No End of Books

Because no one stepped forward to act upon the hints Ludwig Lewisohn scattered through the pages of "Expression in America"—that in this writer or that such-and-such writings were the characteristic ones and should be collected—he has done the job himself. Yesterday the house of Harper published his new book, "Creative America," a master anthology of American prose and poetry. The volume holds 450 examples, by 128 authors from Cotton Mather to Elinor Wylie, of the soundest and most full-blooded work in literature that America has produced. "Expression in America" was a classic of literary history and theory. The source material in "Creative America" must also be required reading.

To taste the first fruits of his success from "The Bishop of Havana," Pendleton Hogan went to New York Thursday. That evening he was interviewed by Percy Waxman over WOR. Afterwards his publisher, Ives Washburn, gave an informal literary party in his honor. The next day a tea was given for him by Madeleine Boyd, his agent.

A new volume of political philosophy by Oswald Spengler, author of "The Decline of the West," will be brought out by Knopf in the spring under the title of "The Hour of Decision." It deals particularly with the meaning of world events since the Great War. The book was recently published in Germany where it is already in its eightieth thousand.

A Farcical Marriage.

A novel, "THE JOURNEY," by Rose Caylor. (Covici-Friede. $2.50.)

One noon after lunch, Jimmy Dyrenforth, the son of an eminent Chicago physician, marries his father's little secretary. Their marriage unconsummated, Jimmy flees the following day to New Orleans, where he has hastily taken a job on a newspaper. For this unparalleled piece of behavior, the author (who likes Jimmy) can give no more practical explanation than "the fact that Dyrenforth had got married on an impulse. But, having got married and being a strange fellow, he had a contrary impulse to run away."

This marriage is a purely marvelous asininity. His wife, pretty, young Caryl Fancher, is the normal American young girl, healthy, inexperienced and possessed of that peculiar feminine blindness which stems from selfishness, while Jimmy is a bit of a genius, a thoroughly bad fellow, and not unlike that obscene old Greek god, Pan, in character.

Before the day is over, on which Caryl meets her husband in New Orleans three months after their marriage, the reader will have judged that there is no hope for these young people. Yet Miss Caylor perversely and brilliantly takes us through 350 more pages of their woe. What is her intention?

Propaganda, a tract against marriage and women. Here are Miss Caylor's text and thesis: "And, why deny it, we have never cared much for a woman's world. For along with the good in feminine society, we have always found too much that is utterly bad—too many false ideas and a corresponding ignorance which good usage (in literature, ma'am) has established as acceptable, too much feeling of ideas, too little love of books and freedom of speech . . . and too few jokes."

The marriage does not immediately dissolve of itself. Caryl is aided and abetted by two groups of females, in exposing whom Miss Caylor delivers herself of her brilliant rage against that sex. The first group gather to drink tea afternoons. With the sincerest missionary passion, they utterly devastate Jimmy's character for Caryl, and demonstrate to her that all men are fools and drunkards, perfidious, iniquitous and unfaithful. The second group have a less crusading spirit, and simply offer Caryl the feminine society which they have come to seek through the emptiness of their marriages.

Obviously all this chat and confidence aid the hopeless marriage in no way. Caryl at least leaves Jimmy—when it becomes obvious she must, or be left herself—and goes to a sister in New York, whose experience in love has been as shattering as Caryl's, if quite dissimilar.

When Caryl comes home to her parents in Chicago after the six months since she ran away, she is a different person. Out of the wreckage, possibly a wonderful, unhappy woman will be made. The author at last kindly indicates that.

"The Journey" is essentially propaganda and valuable as such, if extremely biased. Written brilliantly and a little insanely, it has fortunately a most devastating wit shooting in and out of it. The characters are all evidently drawn from life; Miss Caylor knows her women. Her hatred of them has evidently been deeply felt. Having read "The Journey" to ourselves, we would like to read it aloud to parents, relatives, feminine acquaintances and church members, with the further aid of a blackboard, charts and a pointer.

Thanksgiving Pudding Wins Recipe Prize

Rivals Pumpkin Pie as Attractive Holiday Dessert.

The perfect Thanksgiving menu is attractive, from soup to dessert. Although many housewives think of Thanksgiving sweets in terms of pie, both pumpkin and mince, others cling to the English holiday pudding as the final touch to a really good dinner.

It takes culinary art of a high order to prepare a pudding properly. For those women who will try puddings this Thanksgiving, this week's prize-winning recipe should prove a solution of their troubles. It was sent in by Mrs. Margaret Bailey, of 1445 Park road N. W., and to her goes the $5.

All recipes entered in this weekly competition for the $5 weekly prize should be sent to "The Food Editor, Washington Post."

Mrs. Bailey's recipe is as follows:

Thanksgiving Pudding

1 cup finely chopped suet
2 cups fine bread crumbs
1 cup sugar
1 cup seeded raisins
1 cup raisins
1 cup chopped blanched almonds
½ cup citron, sliced thin
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cloves
2 teaspoons cinnamon
½ grated nutmeg
4 well-beaten eggs
1 teaspoon soda
1 pint flour
1 cup milk

Dissolve the soda in a tablespoon warm water and flour the fruit thoroughly. Put the well-beaten eggs, sugar, spices and salt in the milk, stir in the fruit, chopped nuts, crumbs and suet, one after the other until all are used, putting in the dissolved soda last, adding enough flour to make the fruit stick together, which should take the flour remaining after flouring the fruit. Boil or steam four hours; serve with wine or any well-flavored sauce.

Roanoke Boy Scouts Escape Curfew Law

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 10.—Roanoke Boy Scouts will be exempt from the recently revived curfew law when they are on their way to and from meetings, it was announced following a conference between W. A. Welcker, scout commissioner, and police authorities.

Scouts, if stopped by a policeman, will be required only to show their registration cards.

Local police authorities revived the curfew law as an aid to check the spread of a crime wave in which boys in their teens were involved. When the curfew bell rings at 8 p. m. all boys under 16 years must be off the streets in 15 minutes, unless accompanied by a guardian or parents.

'Cry of the Children,' First Lady's Plea

Hard Year and the Need Is Great, She Says.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 10 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, speaking here today, said one of the most important things before the country at present is to provide sound bodies and sound minds "for our children."

The Nation's First Lady flew here, unaccompanied, from Washington to participate in a child welfare conference sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association.

During the course of her address she said: "This is a hard year. It is a harder year than last year. Times are very difficult."

"The demand is greater than ever before," she added. "No one will pass by the cry of children. We are going to do the best we can."

Directed by Amos Parrish

Information as to where furniture of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

New York, Nov. 11.—Bedspreads have joined the ranks of the "Go Withers." Like other accessories, both for the home and the person. In other words, you now buy a bedspread to go with—colonial furniture, eighteenth century furniture, modern furniture, and so on. And, of course, this makes the bedroom a much better looking whole.

Woven spreads have blossomed out in a bigger and better variety of patterns. Old-fashioned quilts, hand-woven counterpanes and peasant embroideries have been copied to make the new designs.

Candlewick Spreads.

Candlewick spreads, that popular revival of an old fashion, are getting more elaborate. All-over thick tuftings, plaids and flower patterns may be as colorful as you like, or plain white.

Even tailored spreads have taken a dose of the period influence, turning to unusual textured fabrics as well as chintz, taffeta and mohair.

Your Early American, Colonial or peasant type bedroom can be given the finishing quaint touch with woven spreads in quilted designs with appliqued flowers of gingham or calico; patchwork quilt designs, such as is shown on the bed in the sketch; patterns of plaid squares with medallions of field flowers and many excellent copies of old hand-woven spread designs.

Candlewick spreads belong in these rooms, too, when you select the simple flower patterns, the all-over plaids in several colors or the allover fat wicks with no definite design.

Tailored Spreads.

So do tailored spreads of gingham or calico trimmed with ball fringe. And flowered chintz, homespuns, ratine and mohair serge made plain or with contrasting bandings.

"Going with" the Eighteenth Century English bedroom are the woven spreads with allover quilted designs or floral medallions; candlewicks in quite elaborate patterns covering the whole spread (and these are particularly smart in white); and tailored spreads in chintz, taffeta or the finer textured novelties.

For French Rooms.

More elaborate spreads are designed for the formal French bedroom. Woven rayons and cottons in allover florals similar to brocades; tailored spreads of chintz in classic floral patterns; taffetas with trapunto embroidery; or quilted silks or rayons.

And if you've gone modern you can use effectively the mohairs with woven bands in blending colors, the woven spreads in geometrical block and plaid designs and the allover plaid candlewicks.

Incidentally, did you know about the new fashion for that old fashion of hand-crocheted bedspreads- Many a woman, especially when her bedroom is Colonial, is using spare moments to work up a stunning spread which has the look of a real antique.

When you do your week-end chain store shopping, get a couple of cans of tuna fish, two for 25 cents. Creamed tuna with chopped hard boiled eggs and a dash of Worcestershire sauce makes an inexpensive, quickly prepared dish. If you have a few left-over peas, throw them into the mixture. They add a bit of color and solve that "left-over" problem.

Lettuce for Saturday's menu is 5 cents a head, tomatoes, 10 cents a pound, cucumbers, two for 5 cents. If you like radishes and celery in a side dish, the radishes are 5 cents a bunch, the celery, 10 cents a stalk. String beans are 2 pounds for 15 cents. Limas, good, fresh ones, are the same price.

Shoulder of veal for roasting sells at 15 cents a pound. A 6-pound roast will serve a family of four, three meals, daily meat cost being, therefore, 30 cents.

The Marketer has discovered some bread that is a little out of the ordinary. Greek bread, that looks like a huge doughnut, and tastes something like Vienna bread, is 10 cents a loaf, Sicilian bread, made from the heart of the wheat grains, is 5 cents for a half pound loaf, and Italian bread, that looks like a loaf of rye, is 10 cents.

Decorations by Doherty.

Miss Helen Eames Doherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Doherty, who is secretary of the American Legation in Copenhagen, Denmark, under U. S. Minister Ruth Bryan Owen, has other gifts besides that of diplomacy.

She is a designer of silhouettes for automobiles. Before she left America she had painted a dozen silhouettes for as many cars, most of them of sporting subjects appealing to the golfer, the horseback rider, the tennis player, the swimming and the skiing enthusiasts.

One of the possessions of former King Alfonso XIII, which he managed to get out of his native land ahead of the revolutionists, was a sport car given to him by Miss Doherty, on which she had painted a horseman and his mount. An old friend of her father's, the monarch treasured the car highly for its uniquely decorated body.

What's Good to Eat

Frostings Prove So Popular That Fashion Demands Them Double!

By Ann Barrett.

If one frosting is good, two are better! An icing-lover's dream of bliss—come true in the picture above, as an allegretti icing (shiny coating of bitter chocolate over a gorgeous soft, white icing). This particular combination is such a favorite with actress Billie Burke she has a standing order with her cake-maker to keep her supplied.

Again, this desire for a double deal in icing takes the form of wanting one kind made double-thick. Or a combination of a rich butter-frosting on top and sides of a cake, with a thick cream filling between the layers.

Take it all and all, folks set such store by icings, I do believe the cake part of the business is mostly an excuse. For this reason (and because so many of my readers have requested such an article) I'm going to forget all about cakes and tell the tricks of making icings. Grand icings. And enough of them so that even after the cake is iced up gorgeously — top, center and sides—there'll still be lickings left in the pan for wistful husbands and children. If it happens you don't agree with such open-handedness, you can cut all the following recipes down one-third or one-half, so as to suit your own needs—and no hard-feeling on my part.

Never-Fail Frosting.

First, I want to go after boiled icing, because that's the kind readers write me they have most trouble making. But for the time being I'm going to put by the old-fashioned kind—made by pouring sugar syrup onto beaten egg-whites—and tell you about a new kind (just as good) that's so absolutely simple a child couldn't fail at it.

First, put 1¾ cups granulated sugar, 6 tablespoons cold water and 2 egg whites in top of double boiler and stir them up. Then set top of double boiler over hot water in lower part. Set over a moderate fire and begin beating mixture with a strong rotary beater. Beat steadily while mixture is cooking till it will stand up in peaks. Then remove from fire, add ½ teaspoon flavoring and beat with a spoon till cooled and stiff enough to spread without running.

That's all. Simple? No, magic. Makes enough frosting to pile up on top, center and sides of two 9-inch layers. To frost two smaller layers or a square cake less lavishly, just halve this recipe.

Butter Frosting.

Butter frosting also has a wide appeal. It's easy to make—in all sorts of flavors—once you've mastered the basic recipe. This is the chief trick: Use unsalted butter, or wash ordinary butter. Because salt is likely to make the frosting curdle. Here's the method: Drop three tablespoons butter into small bowl of cold water and work with wooden spoon against side of bowl till butter is waxy. Then drain off every drop of water, and gradually work into the butter 3 cups sifted confectioner's sugar. Next work in three tablespoons hot milk—about one-half teaspoon at a time. Add one-half teaspoon vanilla (or other flavoring) and beat smooth.

Send for More Recipes.

A filling of that sort made with fresh orange juice between layers of fluffy cake topped and sided with orange butter icing—that's another slick number. So is chocolate cream filling with chocolate butter icing. And fig and raisin filling. Orange and date filling. Brown sugar-nut frosting. Caramel frosting. Fudge frosting. Marshmallow frosting. Confectioner's frosting. Boiled frosting with variations. All these recipes (and many more) I've packed into a brand-new 5-page bulletin "Knacks of Making Perfect Frostings and Fillings." M. E. Church To Quit Politics In Liquor Fight

Dr. Wilson Reveals Plan to Wage Battle From Moral Angle.

"The Methodist Church is getting out of politics," Dr. Clarence True Wilson, executive secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, said yesterday in announcing plans for future war on liquor.

"The church must change its emphasis," he said, "from political, commercial and legalistic arguments back to moral appeal.

"We are going to do what the newspapers have so long urged us to do. We are going to stress the moral side of the liquor question; we are going to teach temperance. Of course, it was necessary for us to get into politics in the first place because the liquor interests were in politics, and if we were going to fight we had to go where the fighting was going on."

Views on Prohibition.

Dr. Wilson expressed the belief that there will be no rush back to national prohibition.

"We ought never to attempt Federal prohibition until we have won securely at least 40 States and demonstrated that we can enforce and make the people want to enforce the law," he said.

One of the ways in which his committee will endeavor to carry out this plan, Dr. Wilson said, will be to place standard textbooks on alcohol, narcotics and opiates in all the colleges, "so intelligent minds may have a grasp of the alcohol problem.

"The church must reawaken the sense of responsibility for the existence of a legalized traffic which has never failed to assault the public welfare. The church must get back to its work of moral suasion to save the drinker and his family.

"Every agency should be utilized in restoring an intelligent temperance conviction to this country. We appeal to school, press, radio, movie and stage."

Purpose Explained.

To carry out the proposed educational campaign, Dr. Wilson's organization has been divided into three sections, administration, educational and educational promotion. The reorganization was accomplished at a meeting attended by 24 of the 30 members of the board of governors of the organization.

The administration department will be headed by Dr. Wilson, assisted by Edward Drake, jr., office manager; Col. Frank B. Ebbert, counselor, and C. Stanley Lowell, extension secretary. The educational production department will be headed by Deets Pickett, assisted by Miss Dorothy Fyer Akers, who will specialize in contacts with dramatics, pageants, lectures, motion pictures and radio.

The third department, educational promotion, will be headed by D Stuart Patterson, who will contact churches, Sunday schools, leagues and institutes, and supervise the distribution of literature. Lowell will work with this department in colleges and universities.

New Threat Routs Puglisi Family

Grocer Flees After Second Letter Demands $25,000.

His life threatened unless he pays $25,000 to a gang of extortionists caused Joseph Puglisi and his family yesterday to flee from the city.

Early this week he disregarded the threats, resulting in a bomb being thrown into his store Tuesday. He succeeded in stamping out the lighted fuse.

Yesterday another letter was received demanding $25,000, according to a report made by Puglisi to Detective Sergts. F. O. Brass and Floyd Truscott.

Outlawry Spreads In Siamese Revolt

50 Chinese Die in Police Battle; Bandits Pillage.

Penang, Straits Settlements, Nov. 10 (AP).—Lawlessness is spreading at an alarming rate in southern Siam as a result of the Siamese revolution, said reports reaching here today. Bandits and police have clashed in two recent battles.

Fifty Chinese were killed when they aattacked the police station at Betong with firearms and bombs. Later, Malayan bandits imprisoned the police in the Patani station and carried off the equivalent of $50,000.

"Strolling" Bars For N. Y. Hotel To Escape Law

New York, Nov. 10 (AP).—Strolling bars that will wander to tables when the guests beckon will be a New York hotel's answer to the no-bar provision of the State's new liquor regulations.

Technically, the hotel figures, it will not be a bar, but a pushcart loaded with liquor.

Ford Submits Wage Figures To Code Chiefs

Compliance With NRA Indicated; Only Strike Action Remains.

Carrying out a promise to the automobile Code authority, Henry Ford has submitted a report of hours and wages at his factories and a "cursory examination" indicates compliance with NRA requirements.

This became known late yesterday when the Recovery Administration, without mentioning the name of Ford, announced that all the major automobile manufacturers had sent in figures which came within code provisions.

"Pending further analysis," the statement said, "it has not been determined what details, if any, of the reports will be made public."

The figures were submitted to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, which transmitted them to Deputy Administrator K. J. Ammerman, who conducted the code hearings. The analysis will be under his direction, it is understood.

Ford has now fulfilled two of the three main requirements of the automobile code and all that now remains for 100 per cent compliance is satisfactory settlements of the strikes at his Edgewater, N. J., and Chester, Pa., plants. The National Labor Board, which has adopted a conciliatory attitude, has not yet taken action on an appeal from the workers to intervene.

Meanwhile an opinion was awaited from Comptroller General J. R. McCarl, who favored the George F. Driscoll company as low bidder in an NRA controversy Thursday, on the question of Ford's eligibility to receive a Government contract for 1,000 trucks. The award was held up on the grounds he had signed no certificate of compliance, but on the other hand the manufacturer apparently will comply with all code requirements.

Driscoll company attorneys yesterday withdrew injunction proceedings in the District Supreme Court to prevent letting of the $4,000,000 contract for a New York City postoffice annex to other than the low bidder.

Flower Named For First Lady At Big Exhibit

Half Million Blooms Shown at Chrysanthemum Annual Meeting.

Two entirely new species of chrysanthemums, of a bright yellow never exhibited before, yesterday was christened the "Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt" and the "Mrs. Helen K. Johnson" in the presence of the First Lady and the wife of the NRA administrator, as the thirty-second annual meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America at the Hotel Willard opened.

The flower named in honor of Mrs. Roosevelt is a seedling developed by V. R. De Petris, of Gross Pointe, Mich. His little 8-year-old niece, Miss Justine Miller, presented the flowers to the First Lady in honor "of one we all love so much." The Helen K. Johnson flower was developed by Elmer D. Smith, dean of American horticulturists.

Fifteen new species never shown before, including an albino rose bush and a vase of Better Times roses worth more than $15,000 for propagating purposes, are among the 500,000 individual blooms exhibited all day today and tomorrow from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

More than 2,000 species, ranging from the smallest button type to blossoms measuring a spread of more than 12 inches are on display.

More than 500 delegates will attend the convention banquet tonight.

The marriage took place July 30 in St. Ignatius' Church, Hicksville, Long Island.

Survivors Tell Of Plane Fall; 4 Bodies Found

Wing Hit Tree When Craft Circled in Dense Fog; Pilot One Victim.

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 10 (AP).—The bodies of four men, one of them an internationally famous surgeon, were removed today from the twisted flame-swept wreckage of a transport plane which crashed on a hillside in a heavy fog near here last night.

Dr. Robert C. Coffey, 64, noted for his original contributions to surgery; Herman Cohn, of Portland, and Arthur S. Trostler, of Chicago, passengers, and Pilot A. W. Davis, were killed. Their bodies were burned beyond recognition.

Four were injured and two slightly hurt.

Girl's Coolness Lauded.

Miss Libby Wurgaft, 22, of San Diego, stewardess, was praised today as a heroine. The tiny girl several times pushed her way into the burning ship to assist in rescuing others from the cabin.

She suffered only from shock. Robert E. Pelouze, Portland investment broker, received a fractured kneecap; Dr. John Straumfjord, of Portland, assistant to Dr. Coffey, suffered bruises and shock; Floyd Hart, of Medford, Oreg., escaped with a burned hand; E. J. Powers, of Glendale, Calif., an electrical contractor, received bruises, and J. B. Woodworth, of Oakland, copilot, suffered burns and a rib injury.

Were Circling in Fog.

The crash occurred as the pilot circled through the unusually dense fog to gain altitude.

Dr. Coffey and Dr. Straumfjord were flying to Medford to perform an emergency operation upon Dr. L. A. Salade, of Medford, former Philadelphia surgeon of note.

Hart, an American flier in the World War, and Woodworth, copilot, made their way two miles through tangled underbrush to a telephone to call physicians and police.

Court Awards $250,000 Fee

Justice Jennings Bailey, District Supreme Court, yesterday issued an order allowing four attorneys who represented a one-time German-owned radio station at Sayville, Long Island, a fee of $250,000, with five years' interest, for their professional services in obtaining a settlement when the Navy took over the station.

The station was taken by the Navy in February, 1917, because of complaint that it was assisting Germany's submarine warfare from what was then a neutral base. In 1928 an award of $6,875,342.19 was made to compensate owners of the station, Gesellschaft Fur Drahtlose Telegraphie, M. H. B.

When this award was made, the German company discharged the four lawyers and employed other counsel. The four in whose favor the decree was made are Alfred Frankenthaler, now a New York Supreme Court justice; John Wilson Brown 3d, Washington; Alfred K. Nippert, Cincinnati, and George Frankenthaler. Paul E. Lesh represented the attorneys in their fight for a fee.

Governor's Refusal To Extradite Is Hit

New Yorker Calls Seattle Action "Raw Deal."

Seattle, Nov. 10 (AP).—Terming the refusal of Gov. Clarence D. Martin to permit John C. Stevenson, King County commissioner, to be extradited to New York as a "very raw deal," Walter Parker, assistant district attorney from Binghamton, N. Y., today asserted extradition attempts are "not over with yet."

"We will stay right here a few days," Parker said. "We are awaiting word from Binghamton."

Gov. Martin yesterday declined to honor papers which would have forced Stevenson to return to Binghamton to answer larceny charges filed there against John C. Stockman for stock transactions 11 years ago.

Touhy Victim Describes Ride, Picks Kidnaper

Machine Guns, Gas Guard Trial as Keenan Questions Brewer.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 10 (U.P.). The trial of four Touhy gangsters on charges of kidnaping William Hamm, jr., opened in a heavily guarded courtroom today with Hamm, a wealthy brewer, as the first witness.

It was the second major attempt of the Government to convict a gang under the so-called "Lindbergh" kidnaping law.

Hamm told his story of how he was kidnaped last summer and held for $100,000 ransom.

Hamm positively identified one of the defendants, Eddie McFadden, as one of two men who abducted him. When asked to do so, Hamm stepped from the witness box and pointed at McFadden.

Prosecutors had made it clear that they planned to prove that Roger Touhy and his gang were as active in the kidnaping racket as the Kelly-Bailey gang.

Joseph B. Keenan, assistant United States Attorney General, who successfully prosecuted the Kelly-Bailey gang, listened intently as District Attorney George F. Sullivan made the Government's opening statement to the jury of ten men and two women, then questioned Hamm.

Touhy, son of a Chicago policeman, who died of grief because his sons became gangsters, conferred frequently and nervously with his attorneys. On trial with him are Willie Sharkey, Gus Schaeffer and Eddie McFadden, who tried to appear indifferent.

Machine Guns and Gas Ready.

A Federal agent sat at the doorway of the courtroom with a submachine gun across his knees. In Judge M. M. Joyce's chambers another guard had a machine gun. One guard in the courtroom was armed with tear gas bombs.

Prosecutors revealed two important pieces of evidence would be a battered signpost and a white cloth sack. It will be claimed the sack was used as a hood to blind the young brewer when he was taken from Minnesota to Wisconsin. The signpost will be identified by Hamm as one he saw during a moment his hood was off.

Girls Friendly Society Of Vienna Picks Officers

Mrs. T. R. Moreland, of Vienna, Va., was appointed branch president of the Girls Friendly Society of the Holy Comforter Episcopal Church at Vienna, at a meeting of the society this week. Miss Elsie Brown, National field secretary, organized the new club.

Mrs. Mooreland appointed as the executive committee Miss Frances King, chairman; Miss Mary Burke, secretary, and Miss Beppie Hunter, treasurer.

Bad Weather Detains Lindberghs in Geneva

Geneva, Nov. 10 (AP).—Bad weather kept Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife in Geneva today. They had planned to take off on the next flight of their European tour, but it is understood they will leave tomorrow or Sunday.

Zook Reveals Teachers' Pay Far Under Code

Thousands of American school teachers are receiving much less for their services than the minimum blanket code wage provided for factory workers, George F. Zook, United States Commissioner of Education, revealed in a report on school conditions yesterday.

One half the rural school teachers of the country this year will receive less than $750 for their services, he said. More than 40,000 teachers will receive less than $450.

At the same time, Zook pointed out, 2,280,000 children of school age, who, according to most compulsory school laws should be in classrooms, are not attending school. Of these, he said, 100,000 are deprived of education opportunity because of the closing of schools due to lack of funds. The others, he said, are not in school even in normal years.

Many Schools Shut.

Zook's report shows that 2,000 rural schools in 24 States have closed and that many private and parochial schools did not open this fall. No city schools were reported closed, but one in every four cities has shortened its school term. Sixteen institutions of higher education have been closed. In some communities, tuition is being charged for grade and high school children and only children whose parents can afford to pay this tuition are in school.

In addition, the report shows, many schools are paring down their courses of study. He reports these changes: Sixty-seven cities reduced art instruction, 36 eliminated it; 110 reduced the music program, 29 eliminated it; 81 reduced physical education work, 28 eliminated it; 65 reduced home economics work, 19 eliminated it; 58 reduced industrial art instruction, 24 eliminated it; 89 reduced health service, 22 eliminated it. One-half the cities of the country, the report said, have reduced one or more of these services.

200,000 Teachers Idle.

Approximately 200,000 teachers are unemployed, the report says. It estimated that in city schools 18,600 fewer teachers are employed than in 1931.

"If we decided to operate city schools today with the same number of pupils to a teacher that we had in 1930 it would be necessary to hire more than 26,000 additional teachers," Zook said. "If we decided to provide education for the 2,280,000 children 6 to 15 years of age not now in school, it would be necessary to add 76,000 teachers.

"School enrollment has increased more than a million since 1930—but the number of teachers, city and rural, decreased more than 30,000. Teachers are unemployed, but classes grow large. Teachers are unemployed despite the fact that more than 1,500,000 children will this year be taught six months or less."

Oregon Governor Asks Butter Raise

Producers Hold Off for Chicago Prices.

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 10 (AP).—Gov. Julius L. Meier today requested the Agricultural Adjustment Administration at Washington to offer butter producers in the Portland area the same price as that offered at Chicago.

The price quoted the Portland trade at the start of Government operations yesterday was 21½ cents, compared with the 23 cents at Chicago.

Any Felony to Jail Sammons for Life

Indiana Accuses Desperado as "Habitual" Criminal.

Crown Point, Ind., Nov. 10 (AP).—James Sammons, Chicago hoodlum, was charged today with being an habitual criminal. That makes him liable to a life term in the Indiana Penitentiary.

Prosecutor Robert G. Estill cited in court that Sammons, killer and robber now past 50, has been convicted in Chicago of murder, robbery and rape.

Stratosphere Trip Faces New Delay

Chicago, Nov. 10 (AP).—After studying weather charts today, Lieut. Comdr. T. G. W. Settle, U. S. C., to take off early tomorrow on their oft-delayed flight to the stratosphere.

Settle's balloon was partially inflated early today, but wind velocity increased and made deflation of the bag necessary.

Pieces of Eight — Fruits of Victory — By Charles B. Driscoll

After loot of the Boston ship was hidden in Bassetts Cave, Capt. Teach proclaimed holiday. Most of the crew were sent to the edge of the woods somewhat inland, to find amusement among some casks of wine from the cargo.

The squad that had buried the treasure was taken aboard the beached prize. "I want you rascals to have a good time," said Blackbeard. "Be jolly, and don't spare the rum." There were rousing cheers for the chief.

That night, while the treasure-burying squad was sleeping off its debauch aboard the Protestant Caesar, Blackbeard himself set a fire in the hold, where the blaze would catch the rum barrels. Soon the ship was a roaring furnace.

Blackbeard returned to the Queen Anne's Revenge, singing. He entered the cabin, where his little bride had been locked up since her wedding day, and shouted, "Look through the porthole, Lady Prudence, and see how your master uses stubborn people."

Roosevelt High Rites Celebrate Its Completion

Adult Education Urged by Zook at Dedication of Year-Old School.

"Education does not cost anything, but the lack of education costs everything," declared George F. Zook, United States Commissioner of Education, last night at the dedication of the Roosevelt High School in urging a continued fight for the development of the American school system. He was the principal speaker in the ceremonies at the school which was completed and put into use more than a year ago.

Contrasting the American system with that in most foreign nations where "education is largely reserved for the well born and the well to do," Zook said our system was by no means perfect, but that it represented long strides in the right direction. One of the major deficiencies of today, he said, is the lack of adult education. With the great increase in leisure time, the schools must be prepared to do their share in developing the adult.

Both Harold Baker, superintendent of construction of the District schools, and Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, praised the work of the late Albert Harris, architect for the Roosevelt and many other city schools.

Albert Davis, principal, expressed gratitude to those responsible for the buildings.

Dr. Hayden Johnson, president of the Board of Education, presided. The Rev. H. J. Smith, of the Petworth Baptist Church, offered the invocation. The school glee club and the school orchestra furnished music. The building was opened to the public for inspection.

Drive Opened By Red Cross

Alexandria Chapter of the American Red Cross staged a big parade last night to mark the opening of the annual roll call of the organization. The parade was followed by a rally in the Westminster Building, with an address by Dr. Thomas E. Green. Robert G. Carter was grand marshal of the parade and Charles W. King chief of staff.

The parade consisted of three divisions, the first, or military division, led by Lieut. Col. Louis A. Kunzig, consisted of the Thirteenth Engineers Band, a battalion of the Twelfth U. S. Infantry, Company I, First Virginia Infantry, and cadets of Alexandria High School.

Plumbers Support Arlington Bonds

Sewer System Cost Put at 3 Cents Daily Per Owner.

The proposed $2,500,000 sewer bond issue, which will be voted on November 21, will cost the average Arlington County property holder 3 cents a day, Roy S. Braden, county manager, stated last night in a talk before the Arlington County Plumbers Association at Clarendon.

He warned the present community sewer systems are polluting Arlington streams and that untreated sewage disposal will soon be barred from the Potomac River by the Federal Government.

Alan B. McDaniel, sanitary engineer, stated that there would be no additional assessments for the proposed sewage system where community systems now exist. The association adopted a resolution indorsing the bond issue.

Stocks Sink 1.2 Points as Buying Wanes

Gold Mining Issues Firm as Sales Drop to 1,378,110 Shares.

New York, Nov. 10 (AP).—Foreign exchanges continued to attract the major share of attention in financial markets today. With the dollar steadying—rallying at times, in fact—speculative interest on the buying side of stocks and commodities waned, and quotations dipped.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation posted a gold-buying price of $33.20, up 5 cents, which was under the world market level on the basis of sterling's London opening.

Most observers felt that Washington's willingness to let its quotation go under London for the first time indicated an attempt to break the dollar's fall after the swift depreciation which had already occurred this week.

Gold Shares Firm.

On the stock exchange, some of the gold mining shares firmed a bit toward the close. Other groups were almost uniformly lower, though moderately so, and losses averaged into a net decline of around a point.

Rails sagged and utilities drooped. Industrials, including the alcohol section, were mildly depressed. Homestake Mining sprinted up 16 points and Dome and McIntyre about a point each.

In U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, Du Pont, Westinghouse, National Distillers (old stock), Harvester, Case, American Commercial Alcohol, General Electric, Consolidated Gas, Pacific Gas, Goodyear and United Aircraft losses were a point or thereabouts. American Telephone, International Telephone, American Can, General Motors, New York Central and Standard Oil of New Jersey eased, mostly to the extent of small fractions. Volume fell of to 1,378,110 shares.

Dollar and Pound.

Dollar exchange began the day at a new low in relation to sterling, being quoted at $5.16¼, up 4¼ cents, but the European gold units failed to follow and the pound soon yielded its gain. Some thought commercial demand was partly instrumental in checking dollar decline.

Automobile production last month was just under 100,000 units, a drop of 33 per cent from September, but a gain of 415 per cent over October, 1932. Output was smaller than had been anticipated when the month began, and November is expected to be still lower since this is normally a slow period. Freight loadings for last week, totaling 607,785 cars, were 4.5 per cent under the preceding week, but maintained an advantage of 3.2 per cent over a year ago.

Mercantile reviews noted a pick-up in retail buying as a result of cooler weather and looked for continued gains, especially after Thanksgiving.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Cotton goods—New orders for colored fabrics are appearing in smaller volume, according to mill circles. The reduced interest is attributed to sizeable inventories in the hands of jobbers and retailers.

Copper—The past week's domestic sales are estimated at about 1,000 tons, a considerable drop from the average of recent weeks, which saw volume as high as 5,000 tons.

Holiday merchandise—Early buying is reported to be in good volume and merchants is various parts of the country are represented as confident that the aggregate trade will run well in excess of last year's.

Employment or Poor-Relief?

Civil Works Administration Will Not Reduce Number of Unemployed

By Ralph West Robey.

President Roosevelt's new $400,000,000 Civil Works Administration has been, it seems to me, grossly misinterpreted. It has been presented as a plan for taking 4,000,000 men off relief rolls and putting them to work—as a means for reducing the number of unemployed in this country. With this, of course, has gone the implication that in consequence business will be helped.

Actually, the plan will not reduce the number of unemployed in this country by so much as a single individual, except indirectly. At least this will be true if we continue to give the terms "relief" and "employment" the same meaning they have had heretofore. In other words, the Civic Works Administration is a relief organization, not a "recovery" or "employment" organization.

The cause for this misunderstanding rests directly on the White House statement announcing the plan. This started with the sentence: "Four million men now out of employment will be put to work under a plan announced today by the President." It ended with the sentence: "By this one stroke at least two-thirds of the families in the country now receiving relief will be placed on a self-sustaining basis." With such direct official interpretations of a plan as a means for increasing employment, it is small wonder that news dispatches gave the impression that the Administration has found a way by which in only a few weeks it is going to reduce the number of unemployed by the astonishing number of 4,000,000.

Means Merely That More Money Will Be Available.

All that the plan really amounts to, however, is to make more money available for relief. This is done by the simple expedient of assigning $400,000,000 from the Public Works Administration to this purpose. Henceforth, therefore, there will be three sources that may be drawn upon for the purpose of relief work. First, and presumably the controling unit, will be States, municipalities or counties. Second, will be the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, which was organized some time ago as a means for enlarging the amount which may be dispensed to the unemployed through relief work. Third, will be this new organization, the Civil Works Administration. Both of the latter are under Harry L. Hopkins.

A further modification that may take place as a result of this latest move is in the kind of work that may be used for relief. Until the present these projects have been such things as "park and playground construction; sanitation, including drainage, clearing of creek beds and cleaning up rural areas; reclamation of public land for roads and the construction of feeder roads; the building of utilities and public structures not classified in the public works program, and pest control." Hereafter not only will this type of project be available but as well, according to the official announcement, employment will be given in "activities bordering on but not covered in the province of the Public Works Administration."

The Projects Still Will Be Simply "Work-Relief."

In spite of this broader scope, nevertheless, all of the projects still will be "work-relief." The fact that some of them are "activities bordering on" the province of the Public Works Administration will not alter this situation. Granting we are not going into straight pork-barrel expenditures, every project will be one that is undertaken in order to take care of the unemployed. If it did not fall within this category, the funds would be obtained from some other source.

If working on such projects constituted being on a public relief roll, accordingly, he still will be on the roll, at least in fact if not in name. This will be true, too, even though he is given three or four days of work each week instead of only one or two at present. Of course, with additional work, he may not have to get so much, or even any, outside aid, but the fact will still remain that for all practical purposes he will be receiving a dole. In any proper sense of the term, the man still will be unemployed.

It is regrettable to have the Administration in its official announcements mislead the public as to their purpose and results in this manner. In the long run, of course, it does far more harm than good, for in time the plan has to stand on the facts of accomplishments, not upon ballyhoo.

Goods Market.

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Cotton goods are selling a little more freely and prices are much steadier. Rayon yarns were less active today and rayon fabrics were quiet. Silk goods also were quiet. Burlaps worked higher, but were quiet, influenced by exchange. Wool goods were firm and sales moderate.

Bond Market Drops Again on Liquidation

Federal Issues Decline as Turnover Sinks to $19,562,000.

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—Inflationary influences again depressed the bond market today and active liquidation appeared in speculative as well as prime investment groups.

A number of listed United States Government securities were off around a point in early transactions, but most of these loans rallied moderately when the dollar steadied in foreign exchange dealings and stocks and grains sagged.

Transfers of Federal issues aggregated nearly $8,000,000, somewhat more than yesterday. One block of $1,000,000 of the Treasury 4¼-3¼s was sold at a loss of 5-32nds of a point.

Treasury 3s Decline.

Treasury 3s declined a full point and other recessions ranged from 4-32nds to 26-32nds; considerable selling of governments by foreign holders was reported.

In the corporation section the rails were the heaviest. Losses of 1 to around 3 points were suffered by some loans of Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Central Pacific, Central of New Jersey, Chesapeake & Ohio, Burlington, Chicago & North Western, Erie, Great Northern, Hudson & Manhattan, N. Y. Central, Nickel Plate, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Southern and Union Pacific.

On Losing List.

Utility and industrial casualties of fractions to a point or more included bonds of American & Foreign Power, American Telephone, Columbia Gas, International Telephone, Dodge Bros., Pacific Gas, Philadelphia Electric, Philadelphia Reading Coal & Iron, Standard Oil of N. Y., Utilities Power & Light and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

Loans of Goodrich, Childs Co., and United Drug were firm.

Foreign obligations showed a tendency to reverse their recent trend. Losers in this department of 1 to 2 or more included bonds of France, Dutch East Indies, Canada, Denmark, Belgium and Norway. Bonds of Poland, Switzerland and the United Kingdom improved.

Sales totaled $19,562,000, par value, and the average for 60 domestic corporate maturities was down four-tenths of a point at 73.1.

Wool Markets.

Boston, Nov. 10 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. of Agri.).—Buying in the wool market continues very limited. Bids, however, are being made a little more freely, but they are mostly below the prices at which holders are willing to sell. Some offers within the recent quotation range of 32 to 34 cents in the grease on strictly combing 64s and finer fleeces have been rejected. The attitude of holders toward prices of domestic wool shows a firmer tendency as a result of rising prices in foreign markets.

Steel Shipments Decline 2,264 Tons

New York, Nov. 10 (AP).—Shipments of the United States Steel Corporation in October totaled 572,897 tons, compared with 575,161 tons in September, a decrease of 2,264 tons.

The figures, published at noon today, replaced the monthly statistics on unfilled tonnage, which had constituted one of the oldest industrial barometers in the country. The change to announcement of monthly shipments of finished products was made, Chairman Myron C. Taylor explained, in order to conform with steel code practices, under which orders for steel can not be accepted for delivery beyond calendar quarters.

United States Steel's shipments in August totaled 668,155 tons, and 701,322 tons in July, the year's peak month. March was the low month, with 256,793 tons.

Tin Can Output Expected to Set Record

New York, Nov. 10.—Production of metal containers this year is expected to exceed the totals for 1932 and 1931 and may possibly surpass that for 1930 as well, says the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, adding:

"A guide to volume of tin can production is found in the fact that tin plate output was 30,650,000 base boxes in the first nine months, as compared with little more than 25,000,000 base boxes for the full year 1932. Indicated stimulation of principal canning packs is suggested in the following tabulation of statistical positions:

	Canning Packs Thousands of cases 1932	1933 (Est.)
Corn	9,358	10,000
Peas	10,367	12,893*
Tomatoes	12,556	11,000
Peaches	6,438	10,000
Pineapples	4,980	8,000
Totals	43,699	51,893

*Actual.

"Additionally, new industrial uses have been found for metal containers. Profit margins of the leading manufacturers have been well maintained, and earnings this year should show substantial improvement over last year. Further gains are foreshadowed for 1934, depending upon the extent of additional general business improvement."

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Nov. 10 (AP).—All American grain markets will be closed tomorrow in observance of Armistice Day. The Winnipeg grain and London stock exchanges and the Paris bourse also will take a holiday, but the New York markets, including the stock and cotton exchanges, will function as usual, halting at 11 o'clock for two minutes of silence. Saturday dealings will be resumed in coffee and sugar futures here.

The State and municipal financing scheduled for next week totals $12,617,896, reports the Daily Bond Buyer. The largest offering is a $4,100,000 block of Long Beach School Districts of California 5 per cent bonds, tenders on which will be received Monday.

Corn Industries Research Foundation reports a heavy buying movement in starches, sirups, sugars, dextrins and other products of corn in anticipation that the 20 cents a bushel processing tax, effective December 1, will bring increased selling prices for all corn derivatives. The corn grind for domestic consumption in October totaled 5,761,000 bushels, a rise of 29 per cent over September.

Early Cotton Advances Cut In Late Sales

December Closes at 9.83 as Market Nets 1 Point Up to 2 Down.

New York, November 10 (AP).—Cotton prices ruled moderately higher for a time today, but the late trading saw the gains disappear.

December contracts after selling up to 9.95 on the early demand, declined to 9.83 and closed at that figure, with the general market ending barely steady net 1 point higher to 2 points lower.

Initial prices were 8 to 12 points higher on relatively steady Liverpool cables and the early strength of sterling. Demand was less aggressive than yesterday, and the advance to 10.31 for May attracted considerable realizing.

Southern Offerings Taken.

Southern offerings were not heavy and were absorbed on slight setbacks by buying which seemed to come largely from Liverpool and Continental connections. Prices yielded during the late trading when the disposition to accept profits on long cotton was increased by the reactions in foreign exchange. Closing quotations were the lowest of the day.

The New York Cotton Exchange Service reported that domestic consumption during October amounted to 515,000 bales, compared with 499,000 in September and 502,000 in October a year ago.

Exports today, 57,436 bales, making 2,762,657 so far this season. Port receipts, 47,390. U. S. port stocks, 3,935,630.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was steady early on covering and local buying on the early firmness of the cotton market, but eased later under liquidation influenced by the easiness of grains.

Final prices were 2 to 4 points net lower with sales of 24 contracts. The Census Bureau report on cottonseed oil consumption in October, will be issued on Monday and will compare with 236,002 barrels consumed in September and 218,804 barrels in October last year. Drug Products In Peru Loom In Competition

United States pharmaceutical products are encountering increased competition in Peru from domestic products, according to a report from Vice Consul J. Kenly Bacon, Callao-Lima, made public by the Commerce Department.

Many Peruvian chemists, it is pointed out, have studied in the United States or have been employed by American chemical manufacturers. They have analyzed and broken down the contents of numerous imported drugs, soaps and other chemical products and are now manufacturing these items, using less expensive substitute ingredients whenever possible.

The prices at which the locally manufactured pharmaceuticals are offered are far below those of similar imported commodities. As price is the dominant and controlling factor in the Peruvian market at the present time, the national products enjoy a decided advantage. Furthermore, it is oftentimes the practice to use containers and wrappings for locally made articles which closely approach the packaging of well-known American drug products.

The growth of Peru's pharmaceutical industry is reflected in the import statistics for the last two years. In 1931, total receipts of pharmaceutical products were valued at $302,338, of which the United States accounted for $155,690. In 1932, Peruvian imports of these items had fallen to $198,318, with American products representing only $79,600.

Mexico Trade With Latins Is Expanding

Mexico has recently made marked progress in its export trade with other Latin-American countries, a report to the Commerce Department from Commercial Attache Thomas H. Lockett reveals.

During the first half of the current year total Mexican shipments to these areas had a value of 7,842,000 pesos, as compared with 12,095,0000 pesos for the entire year 1932.

Argentina, with purchases of 2,833,000 pesos was Mexico's best customer in the 1933 period, principal exports to that country being gasoline and coffee. Brazil ranked next, taking Mexican products valued at 2,632,000 pesos, the chief items in this trade consisting of petroleum products and chick peas.

Cuba bought 1,104,000 pesos worth of Mexican goods in the first half of 1933, principally petroleum products and chick peas. Exports to Chile, made up largely of zinc, gasoline and other petroleum products, amounted to 530,000 pesos.

The values of Mexican exports during the first half of 1933 to Guatemala, Peurto Rico, Urugay, Colombia, Costa Rica, Haiti and Panama have not yet been announced, but it is known that they consisted largely of chick peas, petroleum and its biproducts, sugar, beans, straw hats, henequen articles, coffee, canned fish and other sea foods.

NRA Is Ahead Of Schedule, Says Johnson

Home State Audience Told Means Found to Avert Depressions.

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 10 (AP).—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson tonight hailed the NRA as successor of "the great American frontier" in acting as a safety value against depressions.

"It is far ahead of its time schedule on accomplishment," the administrator told an audience in the State of his boyhood, itself born of a depression.

"The people who first came here to name a State were derelicts of the great depression of the early 90s," the former Alva, Okla., high school student recalled.

Old System at 'End.

"That day is gone forever," he said. "There are no more Oklahomas—there is no more frontier. And even if there were the old plan wouldn't work any more. If you took a few million of our unemployed and dumped them into a virgin short-grass country in the tangy air of mid-September, they would starve to death before April.

"It is for this reason that we will have to take another look at the whole system.

"With the frontier and the rounded individualistic American gone with the painted Indian and the buffalo and replaced by a machine age and a Nation of industrial specialists, we must find a way to insure that all these specialists can be kept employed—to put a governor on this racing engine and to prevent these human tragedies.

"Something like that is at the bottom of NRA. It will take a long time to work it out and there will be many mistakes. At least, we have a long start in the new direction.

4 Millions Back to Work.

"NRA has succeeded," he said. "It is far ahead of its time schedule on accomplishment and the Federation of Labor shows a reemployment of 4,000,000 people, which exceeds by 1,000,000 our estimates at the outset. It has put the textile industry back on its feet, rescued the tottering bituminous coal industry, saved from the hands of the chiseler and the racketeer scores of smaller industries and abolished small, sharp, sly and cheating practices by the thousands. You, here, can judge better than I what it is doing and will do for the petroleum industry."

Strike Spread In Coal Fields Awaits Parley

Chief Rescinds Order After Labor Board Promises Further Inquiry.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 10 (AP). Tom Maloney, leader of the striking "hard coal" workers, said tonight the newly formed United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania will be made a permanent organization.

Maloney insists the organization represents 98 per cent of the miners in the Luzerne-Lackawanna fields.

The strike region was quiet today, except for minor disturbances in the Scranton territory. State police routed pickets who stoned a street car, and a miner's home was dynamited.

With most of the major collieries idle, strikers awaited word from Washington, where their grievances are being studied by the National Labor Board.

They have broken with the United Mine Workers over policies and find fault chiefly with contract clauses which provide they shall clear cave-ins without pay.

Maloney said organizers are ready to go into the big Hazleton, Pottsville and Shamokin districts if their difficulties with the operators are not adjusted.

A planned extension of the strike today was rescinded when the National Labor Board said a fact-finding committee will be sent to the coal fields if pickets refrain from molesting workers who want to work.

Maloney said strikers who have been discharged must be assured they can regain their jobs after the walkout is settled.

Chicago Grain Men Escape U. S. Charges

Board Abandons Action Against Three on Futures Act.

Charges against three Chicago wheat traders, accused of violation of the grain futures act, were dismissed yesterday by the grain futures commission, which is composed of Secretary Roper, Attorney General Cummings and Secretary Wallace. The case has been pending since 1929.

The three defendants were William B. Massey, John S. Reddy and Philip J. Reddy. The commission described the practices objected to as follows:

"That two of the respondents, while acting as pit brokers on the Chicago Board of Trades, were entrusted with orders for the purchase and sale of wheat for future delivery on the Chicago Board of Trade for the account of customers of the commission firms employing them as brokers; that instead of executing these orders by bona fide purchase and sale transaction with other members of the Chicago Board of Trade, as they were required to do under the rules, they took these orders into their own personal accounts on the books of the third respondent at prices determined and fixed by themselves, but within the range of prices in effect some time while the orders were out for execution."

The commission ruled that this did not come under the head of price manipulation.

At the same time, Dr. J. W. T. Duval, chief of the grain futures administration, described such practices as "vicious" and expressed the hope that the board of trade would stop them.

1,029 Farmers Cut Wheat in Augusta

Waynesboro, Va., Nov. 10 (Spl.). Records of the allotment committee of Augusta County show 1,029 farmers have signed contracts to reduce wheat acreage.

The crop in the county next year, it is figured, will be reduced 604,306 bushels, and 36,567 acres of land previously planted in wheat will either lie idle or be used for other crops.

Checks to reimburse farmers will be received here between November 15 and Dcember 1, according to J. C. Coiner, county agent.

Discord Splits Farm Strikers; Produce Moves

(Associated Press.)

Dissatisfaction spread in the ranks of farm strikers yesterday, and the movement to withhold produce from market apparently was declining in its strongholds—two western Iowa counties and Wisconsin.

The Sioux City, Iowa, Milk Producers Association wired President Roosevelt "our members are back of you in your program to aid agriculture," and assured him that "there will be no milk strike in this area."

A few heads were bruised, windows in the sheriff's car and the windshield of a fire truck were smashed.

The strikers achieved their objective in compelling creameries and poultry receiving stations to close, held a parade and then dispersed.

A wire to President Roosevelt also was dispatched by H. W. Brosamle, president of a law and order league. His telegram read: "The Plymouth County, Iowa, law and order league stands back of you in your valiant attempt to restore agricultural prices. We realize you have a big job."

U. S. Legal Action Starts.

Wisconsin strike leaders recommended abandonment of the movement on condition that sufficient farmers, cooperating with labor, inaugurate a campaign to recall officials who opposed the strike. Farmers will vote Monday on whether the Wisconsin strike will continue.

The Farm Administration hauled its legal artillery into position for the first offensive against farmers resisting the relief program. It called a hearing for November 15, in Chicago, on 77 alleged violations of the milk marketing agreement.

Pickets were blamed for dynamite blasts which rocked two bridges near Missouri Valley, Iowa.

Gov. Herring of Iowa refused to join the embargo movement.

Reno Calls on Governors.

Still militant, Milo Reno, strike general, wrote Midwestern governors urging them to organize and protect the farmers.

Wisconsin activities were confined to 20 of the State's 81 counties. Picketing lines swelled and shrank as the weather changed from warm or cold.

Reno declared the strike would gain momentum and become a "national movement" when he summoned the entire agricultural population to join on November 21.

Sporadic attempts to enforce the nonbuying, nonselling movement appeared in Nebraska, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Oklahoma and Illinois.

Reno lists 21 States as having membership in his association, but only seven or eight leaders announced formally they favored the strike. Two, Michigan and Colorado, expressed definite disapproval.

U. S. Will Rent Tobacco Land To Cut Crops

Plans to Pay $17.50 an Acre, Plus Eighth of Output's Value.

The Farm Administration has decided to pay $17.50 an acre rental, plus 12½ per cent of the net amount received by the grower for his reduced crop, in an effort to cut next year's flue-cured tobacco acreage 30 per cent.

Formal announcement of the plan will be made within the next two days.

The Administration hopes to cut production of flue-cured to about 500,000,000 pounds. This year's crop is more than 700,000,000 pounds.

The rental of $17.50 an acre, in all probability, will be paid by February 15.

More Next Fall.

Next fall, when evidence is produced by the grower that he has complied with the acreage reduction program, the Government will make to the grower an additional payment amounting to 12½ per cent of the net amount which he has received for his tobacco.

This proportion of the contract will be based on an average price of not more than 21 cents a pound.

All money for these payments will be derived from the 4.2 cents a pound processing tax levied on flue-cured tobacco domestically manufactured.

The first requirement for benefiting from this plan is that the grower must agree to reduce his base acreage 30 per cent for 1934 and not more than 30 per cent for 1935.

How Plan Works.

In determining the base acreage, a farmer will be allowed to choose his acreage average for the last three years, acreage at 80 per cent of his average during any two of the last three years, or 70 per cent of this year's planting.

As an example, a Government official cited a farmer whose base flue-cured acreage is 10 acres. He cuts out three acres and plants seven. For retiring these three acres, the Government will pay him $52.50.

Should the tobacco from the remaining seven acres bring $200 an acre, or $1,400, the Government, next fall, will pay this grower 12½ per cent, or $175.

Former Paris Prefect Dies.

U. S. Will Pay Tobacco Men Part of Loss

Growers Who Sold Cheap Receive Cash if They Cut 1934 Crop.

Growers of flue-cured tobacco who sold all or part of their crop before October 7 will be given a "prize equalization payment" based upon price advances since that date, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced yesterday, on condition the growers agree to reduce production next year.

Current prices range 40 to 50 per cent higher than prices before September 1, the Farm Administration said. The payment, the announcement said, "will tend to equalize the difference in the returns of growers who sold before October 7 and the returns received by growers who profited by the price improvement after the marketing holiday."

The marketing holiday obtained from September 1 to September 25, when flue-cured tobacco warehouses in North Carolina and South Carolina were closed because of rapidly falling prices.

The growers will be paid 20 per cent of net receipts from tobacco sold from August 1 to September 1 and 10 per cent of net receipts from September 25 to October 7, inclusive.

It is estimated payments will total about $4,000,000. J. B. Hutson, chief of the administration's tobacco section, estimated $2,000,000 would be paid to Georgia farmers, $1,250,000 to South Carolina farmers and $750,000 to eastern North Carolina farmers.

Before the holiday the price was 12 to 13 cents a pound. The payments are designed to give growers a parity price of about 17 cents a pound.

Letter From Aged Mother Tells News of 15,000 Barrel Gusher.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 10 (AP).—S. T. Coverstone repairs shoes here. He doesn't receive a great deal of mail and he doesn't have faith in fairy stories—at least he didn't in the past.

Things have changed since he received a letter a few days ago from his mother in Mount Pleasant, Mich. It read like a fairy story—the kind Mr. Coverstone always had greeted with a pooh-pooh. This, however, was written by his mother and she didn't write fairy stories.

The letter told of a 15,000-barrel gusher which came in on the old farm—and with oil bringing around $1 a barrel. Much more profitable than repairing shoes.

Mr. Coverstone is elated over the prospects. He hopes to quit "plugging along" now.

"You never can tell what may happen," he says. "I want to be sure of everything before I close up here and go back to the old farm."

The letter to Mr. Coverstone, who is in his middle fifties, told an interesting story. His 80-year-old mother wrote that the family's share would be one barrel out of every eight. Mr. Coverstone figured that would be $1,800 a day. Quite a bit better than the $70 his mother receives as a Civil War pension and much better than mending shoes.

Mr. Coverstone and his mother are the only surviving members of the family.

"It surely was time I was getting a break," he said. He lives with his wife, a married daughter and a son-in-law in a modest house, and he doesn't expect to keep on in the shoe business just to show the folks he is "just the same old Sam." Mr. Coverstone admits that luxuries and comforts hold a great attraction for him.

Will He "Keep Plugging; Just the Same Old Sam?" Not on Your Life!

WHAT'S

The DIFFERENCE Between These

TWO SUITS

Down in the Carolinas there's a fabric called Carolina Homespun which, for generations, has been loomed by hand. When custom tailored into a suit, it runs into the kind of money that few men can afford. One of our clothing manufacturers got the bright idea to reproduce this famous fabric on a power loom. The result, Sawyer Spun—and it's so well copied that you can hardly tell one from the other. It's rough, rugged, and can take a beating without a murmur. The distinctive patterns and colors are the same, too. And going even further, Sawyer Spun suits are "soft tailored" in the exact manner of New Haven's custom tailors. So what's the difference? . . . there's a difference of many, many dollars in price.

PICKING up the tattered threads of its winning streak where it left off last week when so rudely interrupted by Tennessee and technicality, George Washington's remodeled, but none the less potent, football team scored a 13-6 victory over the visiting journeymen from Washington and Jefferson last night at Griffith Stadium before a chilled throng of 8,000 fans.

It was a thrill-packed fray that saw the Presidents beaten by one of their own passes which was intercepted by Bill Parrish, who breezed 72 yards down a vacant field for what proved to be the winning touchdown. Before W. and J. recovered from the shock of this experience, the downtown school paraded 79 yards to implant the ball beyond the Pennsylvanians' goal line for their second touchdown.

Plotnicki Is Hero.

Making his first start in the role of field general, little Ben Plotnicki, the frightened kid who passed up an opportunity to go to Notre Dame for George Washington, literally covered himself with glory. He directed the team's offensive flawlessly and ran the ball for gains totaling 72 yards, or more than twice as much as any other player in the game.

Al Ercius, W. and J.'s big end, was the co-star of the evening, ripping through the G. W. line for consistent gains on reverse plays, and heaving several passes, one of which—to Reed—almost went for the tying touchdown. Ercius scintillated on the defense, and it is significant that Plotnicki directed the G. W. backs away from his side of the line most of the game.

George Washington presented its guests with their first scoring opportunity early in the first quarter when Don Bomba committed one of his frequent fumbles on the 18-yard line, King recovering for W. and J. G. W.'s forward wall repulsed one rush before Bill Wilson dropped back to pass. "Red" Rathjen deflected the heave into the arms of Bill Parrish just arriving on the scene, and the amble to the goal line began.

Gallop by Plotnicki.

Plotnicki it was who arranged the setting for George Washington's second touchdown with a neat 34-yard gallop to the 2-yard line, from which point Bomba ploughed through a tangled mass of arms and legs for the score. Plotnicki took his cue from Johnny Baker, one of the trio of men the team was supposed to miss but evidently didn't, on his run, a cut back through right tackle.

Washington and Jefferson got back in the fight with a second-period touchdown that resulted from another of Bomba's fumbles, this time on his own 45-yard line. Malcolm and King made a first down on the 36-yard line before Ercius passed to Fife to place the ball on the 14-yard line. Following line bucks by King and Malcolm, which brought the pigskin up to the 5-yard line, Myers faded back and pegged one to Headley, who caught the ball as he stepped over the goal line.

The second half was replete with thrills as first one and then the other team threatened to score. W. and J. reached George Washington's 12-yard line late in the fourth period, but the Colonials' forward wall braced and held for three downs, and Ercius passed into the end zone on the fourth to end the threat.

W. goal.

Comparative Records.

GAUGHT in the throes of a disastrous losing streak, Maryland is prepared to make a do-or-die stand against the invading Blue Devils of Duke University this afternoon at College Park. The game will start at 2 o'clock.

Leading the race for Southern Conference honors with six consecutive victories, including decisions over Tennessee, Kentucky and Auburn, the Wade-coached eleven is an odds-on choice over the faltering Terrapins.

Star Back Field.

Duke will present a hard-running set of backs in "Corky" Cornelius, Harry Rossiter, Earle Wentz and Walter Belue, and a stiff, well-nigh impenetrable line. Fred Crawford, giant left tackle, is being hailed by Southern sports writers as all-American timber. He was named on the all-Southern eleven last season.

The Blue Devils are confident of crushing their hosts in a lop-sided battle, so confident in fact that there is ample room for an upset. A Maryland victory would dispel the gloom hovering over Byrd Stadium, and also would abruptly end Duke's championship hopes.

Five District Boys.

Nine sophomores will be in the starting line-up for the Terps, five of them Washington youths. The line will be Ennis and Bernie Buscher, ends; Minion and Callahan, tackles; Bradley and Garrott, guards; Gretz, center; Nelson, quarter back; Yaeger and Widmyer, half baks, and Bucky Busher, full back.

Nelson and Widmyer represent the team's chief hopes for victory

Army and Nebraska May Play in Benefit

Omaha, Nebr., Nov. 10 (U.P.).—A charity benefit football game between the University of Nebraska and the Army may be played December 9, at the orders of Secretary of War Dern, it was said today at the office of Congressman Ed R. Burke.

Athletic Director Worsham, of the Military Academy, has definitely refused to sanction a game on that date, it was said, but Burke's office said Secretary Dern might order it, anyhow.

Dern is a former member of a Nebraska football team and is in favor of the benefit game, it was said.

177 Tee Off In Kenwood Tourney

To Begin Play Today for $2,000 Open Prizes; Final Tomorrow.

THE stage is set at Kenwood for the $2,000 National Capital Open Golf Championship, which will open with an 18-hole round today, followed by 36 additional holes tomorrow.

A record-smashing field of 177 golfers, the most pretentious assemblage of professionals in District history, will converge on the Kenwood course this morning to battle for cash prizes ranging from $600 to $25.

On the eve of the tournament, which will officially inaugurate the winter golfing gold rush, America's premier pros applied the finishing touches to their practice campaign, and all appeared to be well satisfied with their games. Of the nationally known stars who had a final drill over the sporty layout only six were able to come within two shots of equaling par. Denny Shute, heavy favorite and British Open ruler, scored a 72 over the wind-swept course, with near freezing weather prevailing. Others who shot 72s were Paul Runyan, golfdom's "Little Poison"; Johnny Revolta, Menominee, Mich.; Tom Creavy, of Albany, former P. G. A. champion; Jimmy Hines, of Timber Point, N. Y., Glens Falls champion, and the long-driving Clarence Clark, of Bloomfield, N. J.

Several Shoot 73s.

Ralph Guldahl, the Texas man mountain, who missed tying Johnny Goodman for the National Open crown by one shot—a most dangerous shotmaker in any tournament—reported a 73, as did Tommy Armour, Roland Mackenzie, Cyril Walker and Johnny Golden. Bill Mehlhorn, Al Watrous, Billy Burke and Al Espinosa scored 74s, and Frank Walsh, the crack Chicago pro, had a 75.

After being even par for 12 holes,

Games With Definite Bearing On Title Races Dot Grid Card

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP).—The civil war stage of the college football conflict, with its full accompaniment of tumult and shouting, dominates the embattled gridiron scene tomorrow from coast to coast.

Although there are several notable intersectional skirmishes, such as the drive of the Georgia Bulldogs to make it four straight over Yale and Ohio State's attack on Pennsylvania's defenses at Philadelphia, the chief interest and biggest crowds of the day will be concentrated on the sectional struggles. They feature some of the briskest rivalries of this and other seasons, in addition to numerous engagements having a decisive bearing on championship aspirations.

Headed by Stanford's invasion of Southern California's massive ballwick, the Los Angeles Coliseum, where upward of 85,000 are expected to turn out, 10 of the country's outstanding games in the East, Midwest and Far West appear certain to draw an aggregate of 500,000 spectators. This would represent a new high mark for the season.

Georgia, alone among the seven major teams unbeaten and untied, moves out of its home sector. Unless their line is greatly weakened by the loss of a star center and injury

Fumble Aids McKinley To Score

6,500 Watch Futile Lincoln Park Air Attack at End.

EASTERN HIGH SCHOOL'S football team fumbled and then literally booted itself out of a portion of the 1933 scholastic championship yesterday at Central Stadium before 6,500 fans who saw Tech presented with a 6-0 victory.

On the sidelines, watching the game, Central High School's team and coaches, virtually inherited the championship as the bungling Eastern team muffed an opportunity to win the game and share the title with Central, which now must beat only Western for a clear-cut claim to the crown.

Tech's winning touchdown and Eastern's embarrassing boot occurred on the same play early in the second period when Eastern was deep in its own territory. Center Lewis, of Eastern, snapped the ball back beyond the reach of Quarter Back Joe Keegin and it was a loose ball. Keegin, attempting to scoop the ball up on the 5-yard line while on the dead run, booted it inadvertently and sent it into the end zone.

McLean Falls on Ball.

The man who pounced on the ball over the goal line was Johnny McLean, substitute Tech left end, and Tech had the touchdown that won the game. Hess failed to kick the extra point, but it was not needed.

And so it was that Eastern again fumbled its chance to gain an interhigh championship, something it has been trying to do since handlebar mustaches were a sign of a good running half back and three downs were used to gain ten yards.

Both teams started off in rather dull fashion yesterday afternoon, with the play zig-zagging back and forth between the 35-yard lines. It was not until the second stanza that Tech got the "break" that brought the ball to the Eastern 30-yard line. Cooper, Tech quarter back, then uncorked a long pass over the Eastern goal line and Eastern scrimmaged the ball on its 20-yard line. It was this opening play that went haywire back of the goal line for the score.

Match Fumbles.

At the start of the third period Eastern and Manual Training returned fumble for fumble. Late in the third Shaw recovered a Tech fumble on the McKinley 42-yard line. The same Shaw hit left tackle, reversed his field and sped to the Tech 19-yard line. Shaw smacked left tackle again and made five yards which brought the leather to the Tech 12.

The Manual Trainers started on a sustained march down the field early in the fourth quarter with Alley, Tech full back, carrying the ball continually from his own 33 to the Eastern 39. The Eastern line held for three downs and Joe Mills returned the fourth down boot to the Lincoln Parkers' 23. McCarthy fumbled on the first play of the series and Alley recovered for Tech on the 18-yard line.

Field Goal Fails.

It was at this point, that the blond-haired Alley, attempted a field goal which was blocked by a swarm of Eastern gridsters with Wahl, Tech half, recovering for his side. However, Tech fumbled on the first play and Mills recovered on the 40-yard line.

With but two minutes left to play, Eastern took to the air. Mills sent a long floating pass to Joe Richardson, which, if caught would have been good for 30 yards. However the act was repeated with the same personnel and clicked this time, netting 23 yards and bringing the ball to midfield. Mills shot another long heave to Wood who was grounded with the ball in his mitts on the Tech 30, when the game ended.

THE titanic Titans of Detroit are 8-5 favorites to spoil Catholic University's homecoming party this afternoon at Griffith Stadium, where the teams collide head-on in what promises to be the most savagely fought battle of the local gridiron campaign. The kick-off will be at 2 o'clock.

A promise of fair weather, with a young nor'easter adding a tang of real football atmosphere to the trappings, is expected to lure through the turnstiles the largest crowd ever to witness a Catholic U. team in action. Throughout yesterday old grads of the Brookland school were marching on Washington for the annual homecoming game, the most important on C. U.'s schedule.

To Be at Full Strength.

The game presents Catholic with a golden opportunity of establishing itself on a firm foundation in the Eastern grid world. Only last week Detroit defeated the previously undefeated Holy Cross eleven, conquerer of Brown and Harvard, by a decisive 24-0 score. Earlier in the year Holy Cross walloped the Brooklanders to the tune of 20-7, presenting them with the only defeat of the season thus far.

Catholic will be at full strength for the fray. Bob McVean, reserve quarter back, who earlier in the week was hobbling around on crutches, reported in good physical trim yesterday and will be able to get into the trenches should his services be needed. The rest of the squad are in fighting trim and chaffing at the bit.

Boast Powerful Line.

The Brooklanders must stop a forward wall that will average in excess of 200 pounds and halt the movements of one Doug Nott, acclaimed Harry Newman's equal as a passer, and his lightning-like running mate, Dick Lutz. The Cards were drilled throughout the past week to stop this pair, something akin to corralling wild horses. Nott completed 12 passes against Holy Cross for gains approximating

Tennessee Is Best-Coached Team in Nation, Says Wade

WALLACE WADE, Duke University coach, who is eyeing a trip to the Rose Bowl, where he sent three of his champion Alabama teams in former years.

Too Much Emphasis Is Put on Gridiron "Systems," Duke Mentor Avers.

WADE down South in Dixie. And as long as Wallace Wade is in the Southland, Dixie need not doff its collective chapeau to the East, the Midwest or the Coast when the conversation runs to football teams.

The transplanted New Englander, who is quartered at the Harrington Hotel with his unbeaten Duke University Football Team awaiting the game with Maryland today, now speaks with a soft, Southern drawl; at least, there was nothing blatant about his tone as he went out on the limb and declared that Tennessee is the best-coached team in the country; that Southern football excels all other sections in punting, and that there is too much emphasis on "systems" in football.

Wade should know whereof he speaks, for the former Brown tackle, now turning 45 years of age, sad-eyed and unobtrusive, has projected himself to the forefront of football coaches quite obtrusively by his sheer ability to produce unbeaten teams and sectional and National champions.

Visited Bowl Thrice.

Currently he is engaged in directing his Duke team toward the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, which would be no novel experiment, inasmuch as three Duke-coached Alabama teams have made the trip to Pasadena and come away with nothing worse than a tie—the only Eastern team to boast as fine a record.

And now, Mr. Wade, what kind of a system did you use at Alabama?

"Well, when you talk of systems, you ordinarily think of Rockne and Warner systems. But they are public property now. Ever since they started holding coaching schools, there's nothing secret any more about systems. My system is essentially the Southern football system. The system practiced by McGuigan, at Vanderbilt, and Alexander, at Georgia Tech. I see no reason to change. In the final analysis, there's very little new in football."

You said the South's punting was the best

Best Kicking Game.

"Yes, I don't mean they have the best punters. Some years they do. Feathers, of Tennessee, for example, but I think they do play the best kicking game, and concentrate more on punting strategy, protecting the kickers, placing their punts and kicking on early downs.

"When I speak of Tennessee, I mean I think Maj. Neyland is the best coach in the country. You can't overlook his great record down there. Tennenssee's precision on the attack and defense is beautiful to watch. Their fundamentals are the best I have ever seen.

"Of course, there was Rockne. It's like gilding the lily when you speak of him. I dare say there are coaches who are as good strategists, who know as much football, but Rockne's success lay in his ability to get the most out of his teams. Football players would do more for Rockne than for any other coach. That means a heluva lot."

Thil, European Champ, Matched With Tunero

Paris, Nov. 10 (U.P.).—Marcel Thil, recognized as the European middleweight champion, today was matched to fight Kid Tunero, of Cuba, in a 10-round nontitle bout December 18.

Each has won a close verdict in two previous meetings.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

Here goes with the regular Saturday morning quarter-backing:

Maryland-Duke—Maryland will have the advantage of playing on its own grounds. Every other advantage belongs to Duke. Without even a tremor, as certain as nightfalls, it is Duke by several touchdowns and extra points.

Catholic U.-Detroit—Those are nice lads out Brookland way, but they are going slightly out of their class. Detroit's defeat of Holy Cross was no myth. I am constrained to favor Detroit.

Yale-Georgia—The Bulldogs will win this one, barring a tie. The Yale team isn't much to look at this season and nobody has yet been able to take a fall out of Georgia. Alas, Elis, Georgia appears to have what it takes.

Princeton-Dartmouth — When somebody stops the Tigers, it won't be Dartmouth. Those Princeton Sophomores are very learned in the ways of the gridiron. The Tigers will be playing with one eye on the Big Green and the other eye on the Rose Bowl. So, very firmly, Princeton.

Harvard-Army — Army may have its troubles, but not with Harvard. The Cambridge team that was licked by Holy Cross has no right in the same arena with the Cadets. The old Army game looks to be too much for the Crimson.

Purdue-Notre Dame—The Irish have been crying "wolf!" all season and failing to make good. This is a good time to admit there is something wrong about Notre Dame this season. Thus, one confirmed vote for Purdue.

Pitt-Duquesne — Pittsburgh's own squabble. Duquesne is coming and Pitt is going. But the Panthers figure to go places this afternoon. Duquesne's winning

Porter Pilots 3 Winners On Card

Benedictine Triumphs Over Jumps; Steelhead Takes Opener.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 10.—The Porters did very well here today, thank you. Young Earl Porter, who rides race horses for a living, piloted three winners, and Star Porter, which runs on race tracks for a living, won the Paca, a claiming handicap and the outstanding event on the program.

Porter did not ride Star Porter, and it is doubtful if he could have improved on the performance of Lou Humphries, who had the mount. The gelded son of The Porter, running in the interests of Ral Parr, popular Maryland owner, was coupled with Acautaw in the betting and the latter ran third with Glorify splitting the pair. The race was run over a dull track in 1:13 1-5.

Bobby Jones broke Glorify on top as the field left the starting boxes, but Humphries soon had Star Porter on the trail of the Middleburg Stable representative. Glorify clung to her advantage until the stretch turn, where she went a trifle wide. Humphries swung to the inside, came through and took command to hand-ride to the finish. The winning margin was recorded at a length and a half. Acautaw was another length away.

The entry was a warm favorite on a cold day and rewarded with a $5 mutuel.

Polo Bar Pays $101.60.

The eighth race provided a shock to the form players and joy to the hearts of a chosen few. Polo Bar, ridden to victory by Johnny Gilbert, supplied the medium for a $101.60 mutuel. It was the longest price of the present meeting and one of several "century" pay-offs made in Maryland this fall. Little Stokes was second and Union third.

The Labrot Stable's Steelhead scored an easy victory in the opening race to leave the maiden ranks. Jockey Balaski came bouncing home six lengths in front of Accent, which nosed out Jolie Fille for the place. The race, contested at 1 1-16 miles, provided a $4.80 mutuel on the winner.

Pretentious, George D. Widener's gelded son of St. James, ran Bramble Broom into submission in the second race and then went on to win the 6-furlong sprint. Dead Reckoning gave a determined battle in the stretch, but Meade, on the winner, had a length advantage at the finish. Lauretta Nash closed well to take the show money.

Benedictine Scores.

The Consolation Steeplechase, at 2¼ miles, was won by Benedictine, the property of the Sanford Stud Farm, ridden by A. Pikor. Louis D'Or, of the Clark entry, was second and Dock Light third. The race was a thriller, free from mishap. Zermatt set the first pace, but the front running was soon taken over by Louis D'Or, Speckled Beauty II and Benedictine.

At one stage on the last swing of the field the trio went over the jumps together. In fact, it was anybody's race at the last jump, with Dock Light moving up to take part in the dash for the wire. Benedictine had just enough speed left to take the decision by a head.

Fort Dearborn, confidently ridden by Porter, won the fourth over a mile and an eighth route. Maeantic and Risneur did most of the early running, but Porter let go of the wraps at the stretch turn and moved out in front to win by two lengths. Risneur held on for the place, with Barry third. Fort Dearborn was the favorite at a $3.20 mutuel.

G. H. Strate took Agrarian out of a claiming race Saturday and today won the Caswell, a 6-furlong dash which drew some better than average juveniles. Capt. Argo appeared to have the purse cinched, but Agrarian came with a rush in the last sixteenth. High Torque was third. The winner paid $23.

Strange as It Seems

The Camel Corps of Bikanir was perhaps the most colorful military unit that took part in the World War. Especially fitted for work on the desert of Egypt, where the Camel Corps was first organized, it has nevertheless served beyond its own habitat on occasion, and with distinction.

The corps was organized in 1884 for the Gordon Relief Expedition, after which it was disbanded. Later a new camel corps was recruited from Sudanese and Egyptian sources as a permanent unit in the Egyptian army. The Bikanir Camel Corps, which is maintained by the Maharajah of Bikanir, fought on foreign soil in China in 1900 when, without its camels, it took part in the expedition there.

Illustrated above is one unit of the camel battery consisting of two camels, one of which carries the gun, and the other the two men who operate it.

The old adage that practice makes perfect was demonstrated aptly in America's first engagement in the World War. The place was Baccarrat, in the Lorraine sector; the time, March 9, 1918; the object, to take over a section occupied by the Central Powers. The Americans, preparing for this attack, duplicated in detail behind their own lines the section they were to capture. On this "practice field" each day for two weeks they rehearsed capturing this territory until they became so familiar with the layout that when they did go over they were able to win the skirmish without a hitch.

Baer Court Fight Is Begun on Coast

Lorimer Testifies How He Became Manager.

Sacramento, Calif., Nov. 10 (AP).—Max Baer, contender for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world, began one of the important battles of his career here today. It is a legal fight involving Baer's tangled financial and managerial affairs.

The action is the culmination of a series of suits and countersuits filed by Baer, J. Hamilton Lorimer, Baer's former manager, and Ancil Hoffman, his manager during the last three years, and is being heard by Superior Judge Malcolm C. Glenn. Wilbur S. Pierce, Oakland attorney to whom Lorimer assigned his contract interest, also is involved in the litigation.

Lorimer, the first witness testified regarding the manner in which he became Baer's manager in 1930 and of the varied contracts drawn up.

Confident Navy Eleven to Battle Columbia U. Gridmen at New York Today

Navy Takes Squad of 44 Players

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 10 (Spl.).—Following a final practice session covering nearly an hour, the Navy football squad of 44 players boarded a special train at 4:45 this afternoon for New York, where tomorrow they clash with Columbia University on Baker Field.

Navy headquarters will be at the Hotel Commodore and the players, during the trip, are under the direct charge of Capt. John W. Wilcox, athletic director, and Lieut. Comdr. Harvey E. Overesch, graduate manager of athletics and director of football.

The gridders were given a rousing send-off by their comrades of the regiment, as they departed from the reservation. The student body is not making the trip for this game nor will its members go to Princeton next Saturday, so their pent-up enthusiasm must await the Army battle in Philadelphia two weeks hence.

All of the players were pronounced in fine shape physically.

Overconfidence Warning.

Constantly warned during the week against overconfidence or a let-down in their work, all hands seemed imbued with the same fighting spirit that marked the eve of the Notre Dame tussle. Though by no means taking Columbia lightly, the Navy contingent feels the Tars should subdue the Lions with one or two exceptions. Both teams will have veteran players on the field, men who stacked against each other last year when Columbia won, 7 to 6, and that a lively contest is in prospect goes without saying. While the Lions have an ace in Cliff Montgomery, quarter back, and another fine ball carrier in Brominski, Buzz Borries is a scintillating star in the Navy line-up, and he will be ably abetted by Gordon Chung-Hoon, Reds Baumberger and Bill Clark. The Navy Plebes will have their annual game with Cook Academy, of Montour Falls, N. Y., tomorrow, starting at 2 o'clock, and in course of play returns from the Columbia battle will be announced over a loud speaker.

G. U. Cubs Battle Upper Darby Here

Hilltop Frosh Play Second Contest Today.

The Georgetown Freshmen will meet the postgraduate team of Upper Darby, Pa., at 10 o'clock this morning at the Western High Stadium. This game will mark the second engagement of the year for the freshmen, who defeated Xavier High, of New York, 37-0, in their initial contest.

The only change in the line-up for Coach Dick Danner's Frosh is in the back field, where Ed Bodine, former Xavier back, will replace Don Gibeau, star of the first freshman game. Gibeau is suffering from a shoulder injury, but may play if necessary. There will be no admission charged to the game, to which the public is invited.

The probable starting line-up:

Merkle (155)	L. E.	(165) Patton
Vaccaro (180)	L. T.	(185) Toy

Catholic U. Host To Detroit Today

300 yards, and he will be out this afternoon to surpass that record.

Detroit's line rates with the most powerful in the Midwest. Holy Cross was unable to locate a weak spot in it, gaining only 67 yards by rushing, and circling the ends for the best part of its advances. C. U. backs have enjoyed marked success in line-plunging this year, but whether they can penetrate the Titan wall is problematical.

Both teams have won five games and lost one this season. The undefeated Dukes of Duquesne continued their triumphant march to national honors by storming over Detroit, 14 to 0. Catholic has rolled up 186 points on its opponents, while Detroit has scored 117 against slightly tougher opposition. C. U. has yielded 26 points to its rivals and Detroit only 20.

Detroit's most potent weapon is its passing attack, which has played a prominent part in its success this year. C. U. will meet the test with a wide-open attack, featuring passes and plenty of them, but not overlooking any opportunities to utilize the speed of Tom Oliver, Johnny Jankowsky and Tom Gearty, its trio of fleet backs.

Play Soccer Tomorrow.

The Rosedale Soccer Club will play the Spanish Embassy on the Monument Grounds tomorrow at 2:30 o'clock. All former members of the Rosedale Club and any one desiring a tryout should see the manager on the field.

Important Games On Gridiron Menu

to the team's best guard, the Bulldogs of the South seem likely to gallop off with another victory over Yale before about 55,000 bargain-day customers at New Haven's big bowl.

Can't Afford Mistakes.

Michigan, Oregon, Nebraska, Army, Princeton and Duke, the other six stand-out teams with spotless records, do not face serious opposition, on the whole, but they have reached the stage of the season where they can not afford to make any big mistakes. Of the six, Oregon has perhaps the toughest prospect in the battle with Oregon State, at Portland. Both are undefeated, both are hot rivals of Southern California for the Pacific Coast title and anything can happen. Oregon had a touchdown margin last year.

Michigan's close call against Illinois may inspire the Wolverines to stage another big onslaught against Iowa. Nebraska figures to clinch the Big Six lead at the expense of Kansas, and Duke's powerful team should not be extended to down the "cellar club" of the Southern Conference—Maryland. In the East, Army and Princeton look to have too many big guns for either Harvard or Dartmouth, respectively. The Cadets, however, are not likely to enjoy anything like the 46-to-0 romp they had at the Crimson's expense a year ago.

Purdue Faces Notre Dame.

No game holds forth the prospect of more drama than the attack of unbeaten Purdue upon the shell-shocked football citadel of Notre Dame, beaten and not even able to score in its last three games. Until the Boilermakers lost Purvis, considered the Big Ten's best all-round back, the only question seemed to be how big a score they would run up against Notre Dame. Purdue is still the favorite, but the feeling persists that the Fighting Irish are overdue to break loose in a big way and that circumstances may make Noble Kizer's Boilmakers the victim. There is no less interest in this game because Kizer's name has been so conspicuously mentioned as a possible successor to Hunk Anderson as Notre Dame's head coach in 1934.

The Pittsburgh sector, always one of the hottest in the East, will feature the attempt of the burly Pitt Panthers to stop "little" Duquesne, the team coached by Elmer Layden that has rolled up eight consecutive victories. Ordinarily Pitt is one or two notches above its neighbor in the gridiron world, but the record of the "Dukes" this season is such as to warrant the chance of a big upset.

On the West Coast, Stanford and Southern California may wind up in a scoreless tie unless one or the other regains offensive power so far conspicuously missing in their major contests. California appears a slight favorite over Washington. Amos Alonzo Stagg probably already regrets that his college of the Pacific team is obliged to face the giant Gaels of St. Mary's.

St. Alban's Wins Over Friends, 19-7

St. Alban's defeated Friends School, of Baltimore, yesterday on the Cathedral Grounds, 19 to 7. McGee, the Saints' quarter back, was the individual star of the game, scoring two touchdowns, one in the first period and the other in the third, after sustained marches. He also booted the extra point after his first score.

Al Carver, substitute half back, accounted for the other St. Alban score in the second period.

Woodward High Beats Franklin Day, 14-13

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 10 (Spl.).—A single point gave the Woodward High eleven of Washington a 14-13 victory over the Franklin Day School at Hanlon Park this afternoon. It was the first time this season that the Capital squad has been scored upon.

60,000 to Watch Yale and Georgia

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 10 (U.P.).—The men of Georgia, who not so many years ago could not draw haircut money in the bowl, arrived from the South today to learn that their game with Yale tomorrow will draw upward of 60,000 customers—the largest Eastern football crowd of the season.

Not even the Army and Dartmouth games aroused the interest that tomorrow's Armistice Day battle between the two bulldogs has kicked up. There are several explanations for this. One is that the top ticket price is but $2.20. Another is that Georgia has beaten Yale three times in a row—a feat that only one other rival, Harvard, has accomplished. And still another is that Georgia always brings a football team North that, win, lose or draw, plays the sort of football that has customer appeal.

Gettysburg Trounces Emerson Eleven, 26-6

Gettysburg, Pa., Nov. 10 (Spl.). An aroused Gettysburg Academy football team pounced upon Emerson Institute on the Academy field this afternoon and sent the boys from Washington down to a 26-to-6 defeat.

Playing superior ball, the Little Bullets ran up a lead of 26 points in the first half, and then coasted through the second half.

Emerson profited by the failure of the local team to play heads-up ball when in the third quarter they got their only score on a "sleeper pass."

streak doesn't figure to survive this one.

Columbia - Navy — Lou Little can't scare us with predictions of victory. His Columbia Lions are a toothless crew this season. And Navy is doing better as the season progresses. Barring a Columbia victory, it looks like Navy.

Penn-Ohio State—The Quakers should be quaking at the thought of this. Ohio State is still wondering how it lost to Michigan. If there's any glory in a victory over Penn this season, the Buckeyes will cut themselves a slice by several touchdowns.

Michigan-Iowa—The big, bad Wolverines are still big and bad. That scare against Illinois last week does not make it look any better for Iowa. [illegible] no sense in deserting a winner. So, Michigan.

Mississippi-Tennessee — After that eyeful of Tennessee here last week, I'm following natural conclusions. Ole Miss is packed with power this season, but so are the Volunteers. One timid vote, then, for Tennessee.

Alabama-Virginia Poly — The Crimson Tide is again kicking up a fuss in the South and V. P. I. has retrogressed from last season. In 1932, this would have been close, but things being what they are—Alabama.

Northwestern-Illinois—An Illinois team that can do what it did to Michigan can beat the Wildcats. Northwestern's scoreless tie with Stanford is wearing off and the Illini are coming along. So, Illinois.

Fordham-New York U. — This used to be a battle up in New York, but the de-emphasis lads at N. Y. U. are boring from within. The Violets are not to be mentioned in the same inhalation with the Rambuctious Rams this season.

Kentucky-Virginia Military—The Cadets might be able to whip their weight in Wildcats, but they'll be outweighed today. Along this line of reasoning, it appears very much like Kentucky.

Washington and Lee—Virginia—Strictly on form, it looks like Washington and Lee, but anything can happen in one of these games. On the theory that it won't, one solid vote for W. and L.

Kenwood Is Host At Golf Tourney

Johnny Farrell, 1928 National Open champion, ceased firing. Farrell appeared well on his way to equaling par. Horton Smith, the Joplin Ghost, and defending champion, playing with Al Houghton, kept no score, although he shot better golf on the second nine than he did on the first.

Weather Too Cold.

All of the pros said the weather was too cold, and at least 50 of them quit before playing the full round. Willie MacFarlane, 1931 National Capital open titleholder, had a morning round, but abstained from play in the afternoon. Joe Kirkwood, trick shot artist, who shot a 67 in an exhibition last May, had a 36 for nine holes.

It was announced that Walter Hagan and Gene Sarazen would not be present, although The Haig, golf-dom's great showman, is apt to pull one of his old tricks and show up five minutes before teeing off time. This he did last year after his entry was doubtful.

Twenty-three additional entries came in yesterday. Prominent among these were Tom Creavy, Willie Klein, Herman Barron, Frank Walsh and Phil Turnesa.

With good weather prevailing, several thousand spectators are expected today. An outstanding three-some, scheduled to leave the tee at 12:45, includes Denny Shute, Paul Runyan and Johnny Farrell. At 1 p. m. Defending Champion Smith, Billy Burke, 1931 open king, and Craig Wood, leading money winner, will tee off. Mehlhorn, Joe Kirkwood and Guldahl also will have a large gallery following them at 1:15.

To Begin at 8 A. M.

Play will commence at 8 a. m., with Russ Stillings, Carroll Spencer and Claude Orndorff going off first. Russ Hollebaugh, well-known golfer, will be the starter, and Jim Preston, former U. S. G. A. official scorer, will handle those duties on the scoreboard. A detachment of Marines will be on hand.

It follows:

Out ....4 4 4 4 4 3 4 3 4—34
In .... 3 4 5 5 4 4 4 3 4—36 70

8:30—Arthur Porash, Summit, N. J.; Norman Brendlinger, Philadelphia, and Dick Renaghan, Philadelphia.

1:30—C. R. Scott, Greenfield, Mass., and Gene Kunes, Hartford, Mass.

Nelson will do the kicking and passing, and Widmyer in all probability will bear the brunt of the ball carrying. A 10-second man, Widmyer is one of the speediest footballers in the Southern Conference. Against Tulane he was at his best, and showed to advantage against V. M. I. and Virginia.

Alexandrians Victors Over Wash.-Lee

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Nov. 10 (Spl.).—Alexandria High School played its final home game of the season this afternoon, scoring a 20-0 win over Washington-Lee, before a crowd of 700 shivering fans.

Alexandria scored in the second quarter, Varney plunging over from the 8-yard line. This youngster scored again in the third quarter on a pass from "Reds" Chilcotte.

Fones scored on a line plunge from the 6-yard line in the third quarter after the ball had been placed in this position by Ewald and Chilcotte, who baffled the Generals completely by their fine handling of the ball in the reverse plays. Capt. Sam Mendelson added two extra points with placement kicks.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

THE Book of Washington team took the spotlight in the National Capital League last night, taking two games of its match with the Silver Spring Skating Rink team, which is setting a hot pace at the top of the league. It was a night for underdogs. All teams winning matches were below their rivals in standings. Charlie Phillips and his teammate, "Whip" Litchfield, were the spearheads of the Book of Washington team, the former's 398 set taking high for the night, being closely followed by Litchfield's 391 set. The Skaters pounded out a 652 game, the best team effort for the league.

King Pin, aided by Mike Shugrue's 392 set, took the odd game from Fountain Hams; Lucky Strike Barbers won two from Judd & Detweiler, Joe Pricci leading the Barbers with a 368 set, which was tied by Jack Gooding, of the printers; Peoples Life Insurance took the odd game of its match with Temple Hand Laundry, Kenny Thorp rolling a 141 game and a 365 set for the victors. Lucky Strike beat the Star Auto Service team one up, Capt. Eddie Hurd starring for the losers with a 370 set, while Howard Campbell's 353 set topped the scoring for Lucky Strike.

Beaver Dam, aided by Tom Bradford's pin busting, carried away the honors in the Golf League at the Lucky Strike alleys, piling up a high team game of 613 and total pinfall of 1,798. Bradford rolled an even 400 set for the best individual effort.

The scheduled match between the N. E. Temple team and Annapolis Brewery, of Baltimore, which was to have been rolled at the Temple alleys tonight, has been postponed. Instead, a five-game doubles match will be held, Ollie Pacini and Gene Hargett opposing Astor Clark and Joe Harrison. All the participants have won entries in the Dixie Sweepstakes to be held here on November 18.

D. C. Butchers continued its heavy pin mauling to retain its position at the top of the Building Contractor's League at the Arcade Alleys last night, annexing both team game and team set honors with 609 and 1,748, respectively. Mike Vitale shared the individual laurels with Joe Freschi, the former pounding out a high game of 151 while Freschi toppled the maples for a 389 set.

James Dulin (Administrative) led the list of individual feats in the Quartermaster Corps League at Columbia, capturing high game with 138 and winning set honors with 379. Construction with a 549 game and 1,563 set were the best team efforts.

Ollie Pacini and Joe Harrison won entries in the Dixie Sweepstakes in the Convention Hall Sweepstakes yesterday afternoon. Pacini, rolling a 410, set led the list of 20 participants, while Harrison's 399 was high out of nine entries.

The Falcons with the aid of a 522 team game and 1,585 team set, maintained its lead at the top of the Federal Trade Commission League at the Arcadia drives. Weiss, of the Hawks, carried away individual honors with a 142 game and 342 set.

Clagett (Repair No. 2) was the individual star in the District Government League at Arcadia, piling up a 143 game and a set of 366. Water Department's team game of 605 and 1,637 set took team laurels for the night.

All Woods, King Pin star, added his name to that selected group of bowlers who have won entries in the Dixie Sweepstakes, piling up a 392 set to lead twenty-five entries at the Lucky Strike alleys. Charlie Bernhardt ran second with 382 and Joe Pricci was third with 376. Elmer Meade, who bides his time bowling in the northeast part of Washington, made his fourth try for an entry but could not do better than finish fourth. He led the list at the start with a 138 game, but wavered to finish with 371. Meade finished third at Temple last week.

Pegler Says:

Navy Will Attract Little Interest Today Unless Columbia Wins.

By Westbrook Pegler.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 10 (Spl.).—The Annapolis football team, which is helping the propaganda to make the country Navy-conscious, will play Columbia tomorrow afternoon in the comparative seclusion of Baker Field, which is one of those intimate football parks dating back to the quaint old theory that football was strictly a sport between schools and no part of the circus business. In this case, however, the Midshipmen can not expect to promote the prestige of the Naval service much. In fact, they will attract very little attention unless they somehow contrive to lose. For, although the Navy never has beaten Columbia, their circumstances just now are such that a victory would be routine, whereas a defeat for Annapolis would be regarded as a flop.

Last week the Navy beat Notre Dame, another school which had always licked Annapolis, but the more a football team does the more it is required to do. A team which licked Notre Dame could not have a very good excuse for losing to the current Columbia team and it seems that in the event of such a loss the Notre Dame boys would have grounds for a suit against the Navy for holding them up to public ridicule. That would be adding insult to injury, but it is not likely that the Navy will subject Notre Dame to this further humiliation.

Typical Student Team.

This is not intended to insult the Columbia team, either, but it is necessary, in such pieces as this, which seem to be a necessary evil at this time of the year, to describe the quality of various football teams in general terms. The Columbia team, like the majority of teams every fall, just isn't there. It is a typical student football team with one star named Cliff Montgomery, who can be smothered under individual attention, as the happy coincidences of Princeton demonstrated a few weeks ago.

The Navy's morale is high this year for the first time since the break with the Army in 1927. The squad is small in numbers, there being only about two full teams of players who can be regarded as really varsity, but the young men have a remarkable capacity for punishment and last week they evinced a gay impudence toward a more numerous lot of bigger men. During the game I saw Mr. Krause, the Notre Dame tackle, deliver an interesting modification of the famous old Notre Dame shove. The old-fashioned Notre Dame shove was a stroke delivered with the heel of one hand or with the heels of both hands held together with the fingers interlaced. It landed on the base of the brain and, although various coaches who taught the shove always insisted that this was a firm but gentle push and not a blow, the authorities decided that a clout by any other name could make just as many slobbering imbeciles out of healthy young athletes.

Shove to Head Revised.

So the Notre Dame shove to the head was revised. It was revised in this case, Mr. Krause brought it up off the turf and laid it against the Navy player's heart. The midshipman bounced, but bounced back. However, if this is a development in football to meet a situation created by a remedial rule, the architects who design the football armor probably will be coming along pretty soon with a steel vest.

The Midshipmen were given a mighty shoving around most of the afternoon in Baltimore, and if touchdowns were scored on the 28-yard line they would have lost the contest about 49 to 14. But, inside their 25-yard line they were much stronger than they were beyond it, and once when Notre Dame got a first down only 4 yards from the goal, the same Navy team which had been about as stout as a cloud of smoke elsewhere on the field became one of those stone walls and held for four downs. The boys were smart defenders against the forward pass, too, intercepting one and knocking down another close to their goal, and this fact suggests an afternoon of trouble and frustration for Mr. Montgomery, of Columbia.

The next really hard contest for the Navy prior to the big game with the Army will be the one with the happy coincidences of Princeton one week hence.

Happy Coincidence.

It was just by the rarest and most fortunate coincidence that a pack of remarkably fine young freshmen football players happened to enter Princeton at the time that Fritz Crisler went there to restore the glory of the old school.

"Mortals and Immortals" Topic at Science Churches.

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text is from Romans 8:19:2, "The earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Blessed is the people that know the joyful sound: they shall walk, O Lord, in the light of thy countenance. In thy name shall they rejoice all the day: and in thy righteousness shall they be exalted." (Psalms 89-15, 16).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science text book: "Man in the likeness of God as revealed in science can not help being immortal. Though the grass seemeth to wither and the flower to fade, they reappear. Erase the figures which express number, silence the tones of music, give to the worms the body called man, and yet the producing, governing, divine Principle lives on—in the case of man as truly as in the case of numbers and of music—despite the so-called laws of matter, which define man as mortal. Though the inharmony resulting from material sense hides the harmony of Science, inharmony can not destroy the divine principle of Science. In Science, man's immortality depends upon that of God, good, and follows as a necessary consequence of the immortality of good." (Page 81).

Woodward; the anthems, "Souls of the Righteous," by Tertius Noble; "The Recessional," by H. A. Matthews, and the benedictus hymn, "Pax Dei," by Thomas Troman.

Paul's Life of Adventure

Route of Apostle's Travels, Retraced Today, Tests Endurance of Wayfarer—Timothy's Songs Helped to Mock Dangers.

By William T. Ellis.

Despite their dangers and difficulties, adventurers are not to be pitied, but rather to be envied. A flood of foolish tears have been wasted over the Apostle Paul's travel troubles. True, he risked his life frequently, and was shipwrecked, mobbed, stoned, whipped and beaten with rods, and often imprisoned. But he really lived. He suffered, but he also achieved. His soul grew fat on the experiences that made his body lean.

Even today it is no de luxe excursion to travel Paul's route. I have done so, and I could tell a heaped-up tale of misadventures and difficulties and discomforts. Instead, I remember only the fullness and richness and variety of the experiences I underwent. This was real travel, such as the comfortable cruise tourists never know. Like Paul, I want to repeat the trip.

Nobody can persuade me that Paul did not enjoy his travels, or that his sensitive spirit was not stirred by the natural beauties and historic sites that came under his eye.

Meaning in His Silence.

No word has he left of these in his writings; he had a greater theme to engross him. But I am sure he gloried in the grandeur of the Cilician Gates; the majesty of the Taurus Mountains, the sunrises on the Galatian Plain, the wonders of the tepid mineral springs at Heirapolis, the beauty of the Graeco-Roman cities, with their consummate art and architecture; and the mighty and mysterious mounds which mark the graves of the Phrygian kings.

Anybody who knows personally the scene of Paul's travels must ponder over the significant fact that he is silent upon the topics which occupy the minds of other sight-seeing travelers. But Paul was, in his highest sense, a one-idea man. He had a story to tell—the Story of Christ and Him crucified. So he saw people as wandering sheep, needing the Good Shepherd. A passion for souls burned in his breast, night and day.

This was the motive that spurred him on his journeys, to the subordination of all other interests. It was this pastoral purpose which led him, after the momentous Council of Jerusalem, to propose to Barnabas another tour of the new churches in the lands they had previously evangelized.

Barnabas Departs.

Barnabas proposed that they again take his young kinsman, John Mark, who had deserted their first tour. But Paul wanted no slacker in his strenuous group. Thus these veteran yoke-fellows decided to part company.

So Barnabas took Mark and sailed for Cyprus. That is the last we hear of him. He disappears from the story, though doubtless it was his training that fitted Mark to become years later the beloved helper of Paul and the amanuensis of Peter.

In place of mighty Barnabas, Paul chose Silas, or Silvanus, as his traveling companion. The Church has always thought of Silas as the singing saint; because, when the two were in jail at Philippi, we find them lifting up their voices in song at midnight.

Timothy Joins Paul.

God is especially good to the man or woman who is given a singing companion for life's journey—one who meets misadventures with a song, instead of a whine. The Silas sort of Christians are a blessing beyond measure.

Early in this great tour Paul and Silas came to Derbe and Lystra, where they found young Timothy, to take Mark's place. I have been in Timothy's home town, now a malaria-ridden little village, but the people were hospitable, and loaded our car with luscious melons as we left. Timothy was of mixed race—it would be "RAUS MIT" him in Germany today—son of a Greek father and a Christian Jewess mother, with a devout grandmother in the background.

Right here we have an illustration of great Paul's magnanimity. He was fresh from the Jerusalem conference, where he and his friends had won a victory over the Judaizers who insisted that Christians should be circumcised. Yet Paul circumcised Timothy, out of consideration for the Jews. What he could of right have refrained from doing he did of a chivalrous good will.

Homeric Site Visited.

I had to go to Troas for myself to glimpse the relationship between Paul and Homer. He had been given guidance not to tarry in the Province of Asia, but to proceed to the coast of the Aegean Sea. Thus he came to Troas, the port of the Troad, Homer's Troy. We find him returning thither later.

Paul was a classical scholar, who probably knew the Odessy and Iliad by heart, for they were then the great staples of culture. It must have been a thrilling moment for him when he set foot on the scene of the immortal epics. They do ill by Christianity who would divorce it from scholarship and culture. Some of the greatest saints of the church have been her greatest scholars.

Everybody is familiar with the figure of speech, "The Macedonian call," and "The Man from Macedonia." Actually, there was no real man. It was a vision, given by God, that Paul saw one night in Troas—probably his waking thoughts of Homer and the immortal Greeks and Macedonians may have had something to do with it—when he heard the call from Macedonia, "Come over into Macedonia and help us."

Needs Before Desires.

It was the imperialist in Paul, a vaster spirit than brooded over Alexander the Great, that responded to this vision. He knew, as the record declares, that it was God who called him.

As a matter of fact, Macedonia did not want Paul, though it needed him. One of the commonest errors of the missionary propaganda is this oft-repeated assurance that the heathen are crying for the Gospel. They are not. But they need it none the less, even as Macedonia needed Paul. And we serve mankind best, not by meeting its desires, which are often for the wrong things, but by meeting its needs. The world may not desire Christ, but, oh, how it needs Him.

Every cigarette smoker, though he rarely knows it, has a link with this story; for the most famous tobacco port in the world is the modern Kavalla, which is the ancient Neapolis, where Paul landed to enter Macedonia. It was the port of Philippi, the city where Philip of Macedon ruled and where his greater son, Alexander, first dreamed his dreams of world conquest.

Earthquake Opens Jail.

As usual, Paul's ministry began at Philippi in peace and ended in a riot.

He and Silas were stripped and flogged and jailed, thrown into the innermost dungeon. But while the two men were praying and singing at midnight, an earthquake opened the prison doors.

Out of that experience came the conversion of the jailer and his family; and Paul's manful demand of the praetors for an apology for having beaten and imprisoned Roman citizens without a trial. What a man was Paul, and what a life he lived!

Dr. Stockdale Lauds Ellis Bible Feature

The Post Rendering Real Service, He Says.

Many religious leaders of Washington are commenting with enthusiasm on the value of the Ellis Bible feature that appears each Saturday on this page of The Washington Post. This week, Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, pastor of the First Congregational Church, said:

"I have noticed with genuine pleasure and a deep sense of gratitude the regular appearance in The Washington Post of the Sunday School Lesson comments by Ellis. This is a real service rendered to the citizens of Washington.

"Ellis is an acknowledged authority in such a field and his lesson comments reach not only persons going to Sunday School or teaching classes, but also those who may have drifted away from the regular attendance habit.

"It is highly commendable that The Post recognizes and serves such a class of readers. A newspaper must print so much material that qualifies only on the news value basis that it must be a joy to be conscious of contributing to the cultural needs of humanity."

"Cap" Stubbs — Opening Numbers — By Edwina

Walt Mason Himself

In my pleasure, in my sorrow, I have friends throughout the town; but when I attempt to borrow fifty cents, they turn me down; and thereafter when they meet me they will view me as a bore and they will not gladly greet me as in happy days of yore. "I will pay you back tomorrow," I remark, in earnest tones, when I sally forth to borrow fifty cents or seven bones. Now and then a friend will lend me such a sum as I desire, but I know in thought he'll send me to the land of brimstone fire. All my merits and my graces he forgets at such a time, as all mournfully he chases through his pockets for a dime. He forgets that I would aid him if conditions were reversed; he is sore because I raid him, in his mind I'm roundly cursed. Once I had my friends in legions, they were roosting on the trees, they were thick in all these regions, they were like a swarm of bees. They would give me cordial greeting every place I might appear, and they saw no harm in treating me to a stein of Volstead beer. They'd invite me to their houses, where I met their aunts and wives, and we held such mild carouses as will brighten human lives. But I started in to borrow fifty cents or fifty-four and discover, to my sorrow, they don't love me any more. When I journey to my lodging I behold some well known gents, but they're always busy dodging one who borrows fifty cents. So I'm lonely and deserted where I used to proudly walk proud and haughty, silken-shirted, with nine friends on every block.

Capital Pays Honor to War Heroes Today

Rites Will Take Place at Unknown Soldier's and Wilson's Tombs.

Washington and the Nation will keep faith today with those who went "west" in the World War, and exercises beginning in the Capital at 9 a. m. will reach a solemn crescendo as President Roosevelt lays a wreath on the symbolic Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Addresses at the latter services, under auspices of the American Legion, will be delivered by Secretary of War Dern and National Commander Edward A. Hayes, of the Legion.

Using a National radio hook-up, it is the desire of Rice W. Means, in charge, to have every World War veteran participate in the celebration.

Miss Dragonette to Sing.

The Legion program will start with a call to order by Commander Means, followed by an invocation by the Rev. Robert J. White, National chaplain of the Legion. Miss Jessica Dragonette will sing the "Star-Spangled Banner," accompanied by the United States Marine Band. She will sing again following the address of Secretary Dern, the songs, "Roses of Picardy" and "Taps."

The annual service in memory of President Woodrow Wilson will be held this afternoon at 3:15 in the Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral. John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, will deliver the memorial address. During the services conducted by the cathedral clergy, a prayer will be offered by the Rev. James H. Taylor, D. D., pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church.

Services in Hospital.

Armistice Day services have been arranged at the Army Medical Center Hospital by the Fort Stevens Post of the American Legion. Gen. A. E. Truby, commanding officer of the center, and Chaplain J. E. Koch, are in charge. The Right Rev. John M. McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore, will celebrate mass at 9 a. m., assisted by the Rev. William J. Sweeney and Chaplain Koch.

It has been requested that all uniformed members of the American Legion, the Victory, Costello and Europe Post drum corps, report at the Arlington Amphitheater at 10 a. m. instead of 10:30 a. m.

Others to Place Wreaths.

Lieut. Col. George E. Ijams, national commander of the Military Order of the World War, will place a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier during exercises by that order from 12:30 to 12:45 p. m. Mrs. Ben H. Fuller, wife of the commander of the United States Marine Corps, also will place a wreath on the tomb in behalf of the American Women's Legion, of which she is national president. Wreaths also will be placed by employes of the United States Veterans' Administration.

Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler, U. S. M. C., retired, will be in Washington to serve on the reception committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at the Wardman Park Hotel. Tickets for the V. F. W. ball, at the Wardman Park Hotel, may be obtained at the Colorado Building and at the National Service Bureau, in the Tower Building.

Legion Ball at Mayflower.

The American Legion Armistice Ball at the Mayflower Hotel tonight will present "The Pageant of the States" at 9:15 o'clock, with a series of patriotic dances under the direction of Anna T. Mitchell.

The Adas Israel Congregation, Sixth and I streets northwest, held special services last night. Rabbi Solomon H. Metz delivered the sermon on "The Significance of Armistice Day." Edward Rosenbloom led a discussion on "The World Today."

Jewish war veterans will conduct impressive services over the week-end at local synagogues, while Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, will be the principal speaker on a national radio hookup. Commander William Berman will lay a wreath on the tomb at 3 p. m.

Stag Dinner to Follow.

Representative Herman P. Koppelman, Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo and Col. Julius I. Peyser will speak at services conducted by Washington Post, No. 58, of the J. W. V., and following services at Arlington the post will give a stag dinner to its commander in chief at the Ambassador Hotel.

A rally, with symphony orchestra music, will be held tonight at the Jewish Community Center. Presentation of post colors by Commander Berman, songs by Mrs. Herman Hertzberg and talks by Rabbis Metz and Volkman will be on the program.

The portico of the Arlington Mansion will be illuminated by flood lights tonight under direction of the Office of National Parks, Buildings and Reservations.

Sunday evening Mrs. Ethel Cohen, national president of the Ladies Auxiliary, will install the local auxiliary of the J. W. V. at the Jewish Community Center.

The Talmud Torah B'nai Isreal Congregation joined with Washington Post No. 58 in services at its synagogue, Fourteenth and Eemerson streets last night. Rabbi Volkman officiated and the speakers were Col. Peyser, Dr. R. F. Guynn and Commander Pelzman.

The League of Nations must be preserved Senator William R. King, Democrat, Utah, yesterday told students of the University of Maryland at their annual Armistice Day observance.

Salvation Army Pleads For Women's Clothing

Used women's coats and winter dresses are greatly needed at the Social Service Branch of the Salvation Army, John G. McGee, director, stated yesterday. The recent cold wave has increased the demand for clothing.

The clothes are remodeled by unemployed men and women to fit needy school children. Salvation Army trucks are sent wherever contributions are available.

Beauties and Committee Prepare for Armistice Fetes

Martin Luther Paid Tribute; 4,000 at Rally

New York Pastor and German Ambassador Are Speakers.

"There strikes a time when to be God-headed and an idealist means recovery and to be hard-boiled and practical means revolution," the Rev. Dr. Paul Scherer, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church, New York, told 4,000 persons gathered last night in Constitution Hall to celebrate the 450th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther.

Dr. Scherer drew upon the dramatic life of Luther to point out that "we dare not go on substituting fiction for truth, relying upon investigations and surveys when there must be a rediscovery of man, truth and faith."

The new German church was described by Ambassador Luther as comprising in its organization the totality of the Reich in its church life in full analogy to the "long-hoped-for and finally accomplished complete unification of German political life."

Lauding the aspirations and influence of his ancestor, Martin Luther, the German diplomat said that despite the various aspects of Protestantism in the United States there are evidences of a tendency toward greater unification.

Prior to the addresses a colorful procession of leaders of religious, educational and civic organizations and members of the Diplomatic Corps, led by a massed choir of 300 voices, filed down to the altar to the strains of "Come, Holy Spirit, God and Lord," written by Martin Luther in 1524. The Washington Orchestral Society presented the "Allegro con Brio" of Beethoven, and for the postlude, "The Prophet," by Meyerbeer. The musical program was under the direction of John Monroe, organist and choir director of the Concordia Lutheran Church. Dr. C. E. Christiani directed the orchestra.

Farley Talks District Jobs To Roosevelt

Conference Expected to Speed Selection of Local Officials.

A conference tomorrow between President Roosevelt and Postmaster General Farley may result in appointment next week of the District Commissioners, a United States Attorney and other local officials.

The President previously indicated he would seek to fill the offices before departing next Friday for a vacation in Warm Springs, Ga. Observers believe every phase of the Washington situation will be thrashed out at the week-end parley. Every indication suggests that the President would be gratified to finally dispose of the political plums.

Melvin Hazen, District suryeror, is believed to have the inside track for one of the commissionership appointments. The other civilian on the board apparently has not been chosen. Some of the men reported under consideration are said to have declined, including J. Fred Essary, chief of the Washington bureau of the Baltimore Sun, and Admiral Gary T. Grayson, personal physician of President Wilson.

Walker Among Favored Ones.

Others under consideration include H. Rozier Dulaney, jr., and Oscar W. Underwood, jr., son of the late Senator from Alabama. John F. Costello, Democratic National committeeman and John B. Colpoys, chairman of the Democratic Central Committee of the District, have urged selection of Ernest G. Walker and Malcolm S. McConihe.

After discussing prospective Commissioners with the President recently, Mr. Costello said he expected the posts to be filled before Mr. Roosevelt goes South.

Ralph A. Cusick has been prominently mentioned for United States attorney. Friends also have advanced the names of Lucian H. Vandoren, former assistant United States attorney; Michael Doyle, former judge of Juvenile Court, and Lansdale G. Sasscer, Maryland Democratic leader.

Few Want Utilities Job.

The name of William A. Roberts, an assistant corporation counsel, has been proposed for a vacancy on the Public Utilities Commission. There have been few other candidates for that position.

Meanwhile, the President has made known he still wishes one-man rule for the District by a governor or a city manager. Civic organizations and members of Congress have been outspoken in their opposition to any change in the present commission form of government.

Subway Urged To Cut Street Crossing Perils

Sheds for Loading Center of Trolley System Also Proposed.

Proposals for construction of a subway connecting the street car loading platforms at Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue and Fifteenth street and New York avenue will be considered next week by a committee of Government workers.

W. E. Hoffheins, chairman of the public utilities committee of the District Federation of Federal Employes, announced yesterday his group also would discuss suggestions for inclosure of several loading platforms in sheds, including those at Fifteenth street and New York and Pennsylvania avenues, at Ninth and F streets and at Nineteenth street and Constitution avenue.

The employes' leader declared the subway should be built to "eliminate hazardous pedestrain crossings at such an important transfer point." He said rerouting of lines by the new Capital Transit Co. due to the traction merger might remove need for the subway.

"Sheds should be built at important loading centers," Mr. Hoffheins declared, "so patrons will not have to stand in rain and snow while they wait on cars. Such conveniences are provided in other cities and there's no reason why we shouldn't have them."

Hoffheins suggested the improvements be financed with public works funds or by the traction company.

Other problems arising from the merger will be studied by the public utilities committee. A definite date for the meeting remains to be announced.

Officials Blamed In Mob Hanging

Convention in Baltimore Promised Evidence.

Authorization was made, at a mass meeting last night at the Phyllis Wheatley Young Women's Christian Association, for delegates to attend a National antilynching convention next Saturday and Sunday in Baltimore, where Bernard Ades, counsel in the Euel Lee case, will present evidence in connection with the recent lynching of George Armwood in Princess Anne.

Ades, who addressed the meeting, stated he had in his possession testimony to implicate Sheriff Daugherty, States Attorney Robbins and Judge Duer in the Armwood lynching, and to show Attorney General Lane and Gov. Ritchie are only making a pretense of an investigation.

The Baltimore convention, he said, will develop agitation for civil rights of the Negro in State legislatures and Congress.

Charles H. Houston, counsel in the Crawford case, addressed the meeting sponsored by a committee consisting of Bernard Ades, Gertrude M. Price, Charles Spencer and George B. Murphy, who presided.

Child Burned

Acid Spilled by Girl, Aged 2, Endangers Life.

The child pulled the container from the radiator and spilled a mixture of creosote and carbolic acid over body and arms. Although seriously burned, Dr. E. Kirby Smith says she has a good chance for recovery.

The phenol was used as an inhalant for croup. Joanne had been left alone in the room for only a minute. The caustic mixture did not touch her face or throat, Dr. Smith reported.

Ahearn Awaits Jail Sentence

Last Appeal Lost, Night Club Owner to Start Jail Term Monday.

With his last hope gone of evading a sentence of 10 months and a fine of $1,000, Jack Ahearn, night club proprietor, yesterday arranged to begin the sentence.

Ahearn was convicted of contempt of court by Justice Jennings Bailey in February, 1932. The charge arose out of liquor raids at two places—725 Seventeenth street and 1636 Connecticut avenue, both northwest—after Ahearn had been enjoined from violating the Volstead law.

He lost an appeal to the Court of Appeals, and the United States Supreme Court last week refused to review. Capt. Harold W. Orcutt, who prosecuted the contempt charge, notified Ahearn's bondsman to bring him in Monday.

Adventists to Mark Burst of Meteors

Sermons Today Will Recall "Warning" of 1833.

Sermons in local Seventh Day Adventist churches today will mark the centenary of the meteoric shower of November 13, 1833, which the church holds was a fulfillment of a scriptural prophecy.

The Adventists believe the falling of the stars at that time was the last great celestial announcement of Christ's return and the promised end of the world in its present condition.

They also believe the crime increase and social, religious and economic disturbances are other signs that "the end of all things is at hand and hasteneth greatly."

City Liquor Plan Argued by Dealers

Scheme Favored Resembles Present Beer System.

A District liquor-control system, with licensing of retail and wholesale dealers and barring combination of the two methods of sale, is favored by the Retail Beverage Dealers Association here. The dealers met yesterday.

Such a plan, already submitted to District authorities, is to be submitted to the organization at their next meeting. It resembles the present beer licensing system.

Whatever the plan adopted, it will be sent to civic clubs for approval and then forwarded to Senator King.

U. S. Workers Form Council In Pay Fight

Legislative Group to Back Merit System and Civil Service Appeals.

Restoration of the Government pay cut will be one of the goals of the National Legislative Council of Federal Employes Organizations, formed yesterday.

Members represented exceed 150,000.

Other objectives of the council will include maintenance and extension of the merit system, a more equitable retirement system and establishment of a Civil Service court of appeals.

Leaders said the new organization was needed to prevent spoilsmen from disrupting the merit system. The organization adopted the slogan: "Cooperation, Coordination, Continuity."

Bristol Named McLean's Aid

Will Guard Interests of Insane Sportsman in District.

Justice F. D. Letts, District Supreme Court, yesterday appointed Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, retired, as committee for Edward B. McLean in this city. Admiral Bristol already was serving as personal representative of McLean through an appointment by a court at Towson, Md., in which the former sportsman was adjudged to be of unsound mind.

George B. Fraser, attorney for Mr. McLean, filed a petition here asking that some person in this city, friendly to McLean, be appointed to serve as his committee. He based this request on the fact that the Maryland court, while it had jurisdiction of McLean, did not reach to his interests in this city.

Acting on that, Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, estranged wife, asked that Admiral Bristol be appointed to supervise her husband's interests in this jurisdiction. Justice Letts, in ruling that Admiral Bristol should serve here, said that since the ruling finding McLean of unsound mind was unchallenged, the further action of the Towson court in appointing the receiver could not equitably be questioned.

Students in Football Jamboree Defy Police, Not Father Cassidy

Neither the firemen nor the police could stop a football pep jamboree at Catholic University last night, but stern-visaged Father F. P. Cassidy, prefect of discipline, accomplished what the bluecoats could not.

Against Fire Department orders, the students started a bonfire in leaves. When firemen tried to extinguish burning leaves, they found other fires springing up by the simple process of matches dropped from students' hands into dried leaves.

Then the students headed for Trinity College, and succeeded in arousing all of the girl students, who generally are in bed at 9 p. m. There were cheers for Trinity and C. U. and berries for Detroit.

They tried to bar police from the grounds by stretching ropes across the driveways, but the students, tugging at the ropes, were dragged along by police cars. Somebody pushed a police lieutenant and police cars charged into the mob of students. Motorcycles scattered them around the campus.

Then Father Cassidy appeared and the ebullient students, envisaging possible discipline, went quietly to their rooms.

Cooper Calls U. S. Agents In Bank Suit

Presses Battle to Force Treasury Approval of Reopening.

Two National bank examiners were put through a statistical examination yesterday in District Supreme Court as Col. Wade H. Cooper pressed his fight to force the Treasury Department to license the United States Savings Bank for reopening.

Following their testimony the hearing was adjourned by Justice Jennings Bailey until Monday on account of the sudden illness of W. Bissell Thomas, one of the counsel for Col. Cooper.

William M. Taylor and R. O. Bishop were placed on the stand to show that substantial amounts of bonds and real estate had been rejected by the Treasury as unacceptable assets for the purpose of reopening the bank.

Would Give Depositors 65 Per Cent.

F. G. Awalt, Deputy Comptroller of the Currency, had previously testified that in reopening banks after the holiday those institutions which had been relicensed were permitted to carry bond depreciation as an asset, providing all other factors in the bank were favorable.

The plan Col. Cooper is trying to force the Treasury to adopt for the United States Savings Bank would require that depositors waive 35 per cent of their deposits in order to get 65 per cent when the bank reopened.

The 35 per cent would be guaranteed by the remaining assets of the bank plus a promise on the part of the stockholders to contribute all dividends and to pay $100 a share if necessary at the end of five years.

Treasury Objects.

Treasury officials object to the plan on the ground that it involves too great a sacrifice on the part of depositors.

Reports of the two examiners, both of whom made examinations of the United States Savings Bank, differed as to the assets and the deficit, but this was attributed to changing market values used as standards.

Taylor said that out of a total of $744,300 in real estate loans held by the bank he had listed $584,911 as good, $12,000 as liquid, $116,000 as slow and $30,000 as doubtful.

He said he had listed as liquid bonds the sum of $372,742.20, and had written off as repdeciation $11,595. The bank has a total of $1,900,000 in acceptable assets, he added.

Examiner Testifies.

Under the Cooper plan, he explained, the bank would have $1,150,000 in deposits and a capital of $150,000. After paying off about $500,000 in bills payable, there would remain approximately $100,000 in acceptable assets to back up the 35 per cent of deferred deposits.

Bishop, who is now an examiner for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, said that he found the bank's assets listed at $2,285,000 in October, but that only $1,404,000 had been placed in the aceptable column. The bank's liabilities were $1,953,000, including $1,781,000 due depositors.

He also testified that he had listed a bond depreciation of $188,000 on a book valuation of $488,000.

Philadelphia Milk Case Argued Here

Legality of Regulations Under Advisement.

Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue yesterday took under advisement a request by the Capital City Milk Producers Association, major producers of the Philadelphia milk shed, that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace be enjoined from putting into effect dairy regulations for that area.

The litigation is the second to involve constitutionality of the agricultural adjustment act. The first, in Chicago, was decided in favor of the Government by Justice O'Donoghue.

Prices Quoted To Gas Firms Under Others

Hearing of Utilities Body Reveals Wide Variance in Many Items.

Comparison of company and commission figures on thousands of items making up the physical properties of the local gas companies, disclosed wide discrepancies in prices quoted to the commission and the companies' engineers, it was disclosed at the gas valuation hearings before the Public Utilities Commission yesterday.

Evidence that manufacturers had quoted higher prices in response to inquiries from the commission than they quoted to the Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation, employed by the company for the valuation proceedings, was developed by Stoddard M. Stevens, jr., of company counsel, during testimony of August C. Klein, chief mechanical engineering of the valuation firm.

In one instance the Washington Pump and Machinery Co., of Harrison, N. J., told the commission its price for a pump was $1,500. The same company quoted a price of $524 to the engineering corporation for the same pump, it was shown by exhibits presented by the company.

Discussed in Private.

These facts were developed in the course of long and detailed testimony by Mr. Klein in the course of which he testified that thousands of items had been discussed between company and commission representatives during private conferences authorized by the commission and held prior to the beginning of public hearings.

No effort had been made to have a stenographic report of the conferences which continued from March 5 to June 21, Mr. Klein said, adding that it would have required a year for such a job. Only certain statements made of certain methods and principles which guided the decisions and practices of the two groups were reduced to writing, he said.

Reproduction Cost Factor.

Through Mr. Klein's testimony, company counsel sought to develop the reasonableness of the unit and total prices fixed as the fair reproduction cost of properties by company representatives.

Commission counsel is expected to try to show that figures quoted by company experts are too high in many instances. William A. Roberts, counsel for the commission, sought to show a close tie-up between the Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation and the owners of the controlling interest of the local gas companies.

Such a connection was traced through the relationship between the head of Stone & Webster with the Chase Securities Corporation which formerly was admittedly a prime mover in buying control of the local gas companies. The connection also goes into the North American company which owns most of the stock of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., the commission experts contend.

Hearings were adjourned yesterday until 10 a. m. Monday.

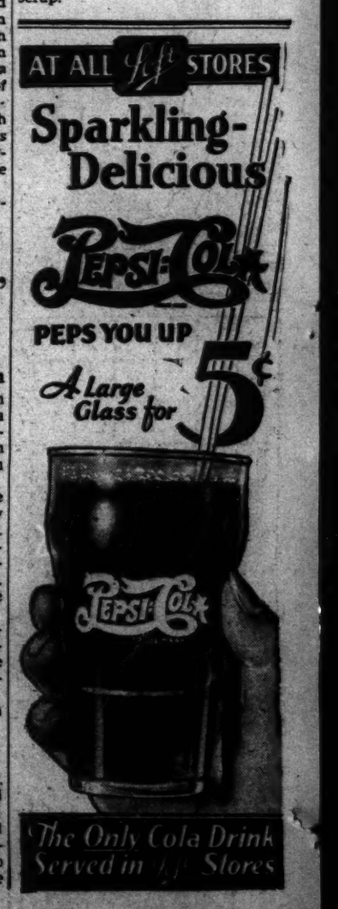
Inquest Today in Jones Bootleg Murder Here

Although three men have been indicted already for the murder of Charles Jones, 32, small-time racketeer, in the alley of the Government Printing Office on September 18, an inquest will be held at 11 a. m. today in the District Morgue.


Max Peltz, Michael Vigilucci and Beuford Findly are now in the District Jail awaiting trial as the slayers of Jones, who was killed, according to police, for hijacking a load of liquor in a small bootleggers' scrap.
